EDITORIAL

The plan of the editorial staff is to publish a paper this year that will compare favorably with any high school or college paper in the South. This is our first edition and faultlessness is not one of our claims for it. It is our plan to carry in this paper all news items that we feel will be of interest to the readers. The co-operation of every member of the school is needed to make this a success. We feel that with the former loyalty and support of the school in such matters that we will succeed and go far beyond our goal. The editorial staff wishes to take this opportunity of thanking the faculty and students for their active interest in the subscription campaign recently launched.

SUNDAY GOLF

The students of the Greensboro High School have already begun to see that the happenings of such things as Sunday golf will in a few years be of great interest to them. They know that soon they will be the ones to do the deciding of such matters pertaining to their civic life. If Sunday golf is once permitted, it will be hard to stop.

Not that there is any more harm in Sunday golf than there is in automobile riding itself, but figure on what the sanction of Sunday golf will lead to. Folks say, "Oh well, nobody follows this game and watches it." This point is granted, but when Sunday golf is permitted Sunday baseball, which is a grandstand game, will likewise follow.

The G. H. S. Senior Class showed that its members felt that Sunday golf was wrong. In one of the classes the question of Sunday golf arose for discussion. A large number of the class took part in the discussion. A vote was taken at the end of the discussion, which proved that Sunday golf would have a poor showing if the town voted as the Senior Class, for out of fifty only one voted for it.

It seems that with this attitude in the High School it rests with the people of Greensboro to decide whether the future citizens will have to put up with Sunday golf.

IN MEMORY

What about those Senior privileges that we have always heard so much about? The only privileged character that we have seen around the school has been Mr. York's friend Gip. It seems that he has the privilege to enter the chapel and take his place in front of the audience at any time.

What has happened? Has the school become a new institution or has writing paper advanced? We see no rules and regulations on every blackboard and bulletin board. It is beginning to seem like a place of freedom and not a reformatory. It is the duty of every student to co-operate with the faculty so that it will remain thus.

Life is always generous to the man who has the nerve to ask for what he wants.

Additional Reporters for this issue are: Hubert Rawlins, Sarah Hunt, Nellie Irvin, Walter Robinson, Bertha Ferree.

Miss Sutton, (after explaining the dye industry of Phoenicia) — "What kind of kingdoms were there about Phoenicia?" Garland Daniel—"Dyeing kingdoms."

Mr. Brown: I had a queer dream last night, my dear. I thought I saw another man running off with you.

Mrs. Brown: And what did you say to him,

Mr. Brown: I asked him what he was running for.—Sidney Bulletin.

Think, Plan, Build!

THE BATITUDES OF BUSINESS

Blessed the those who THINK for thought is the motive power of action. The mainspring of success. Think Straight. Know exactly what you want. Set up a work to aim at—then Shoot. Blessed are those who PLAN for they carry the world forward. Planning is thought in harness. No lasting success comes without it. Blessed are those who BUILD for they add to civilization, and furnish work for millions who neither think nor plan.

True building—whether it be a bridge, a cathedral or a great business—is mans finest achievement.

Thirty-two (32) years ago, we thought of a business that might merit the confidence of the thoughtful people. We planned on honest dealing, fair and courteous treatment to all, and have built on this foundation a business that we are proud of. Boys and girls, of the High School we give you this bit of history and philosophy with a hope that it might be an inspiration to you in your life work and to remind you that Hendrix is a mighty good place to buy Shoes.
