All boys are invited to join the volley ball practice. If interested in this game report for practice on school grounds at 3:30.

PLANS FOR ANNUAL BEING COMPLETED

It used to be that the G. H. S. Annual was a thing to be read and admired, but for several years, due to the stress of war and H. C. L., the Senior classes have not issued an Annual.

Mr. Myric, director of the Glee Club and Orchestra at Elong College, proposes bringing his musicians to Greensboro. The Senior Class is to have charge, but without any expense, of the advertising, selling of tickets and securing of a place for the entertainment.

"A LITTLE ADVICE"

If you ever get down hearted And you are feeling sort' a blue Just read Kipling's "If" and wonder If he hasn't a message for you.

Or perhaps you are feeling discouraged Because of a streak down your back, Just read the poem of the "Manly Man" Then gather in all the slack.

Maybe your soul is needing A moral or a spiritual balm, Turn to the book of David, and read The fifth or the twenty third Psalm.

We all are weak in some respect, But there are men in ever land, Who are glad to give you all you need, From their foot prints on the sand.

SOPHOMORE TEACHERS ENTERTAINED

On Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 3, 1920, the Sophomore teachers were the honor guests at a most delightful tea given by Mrs. E. Sternberger at her lovely home on Summit avenue.

REAL PLUCK

Jack Hammond was the forward for Baxter High School. There had been a race all the season between Garland Braxton and himself in all the games, yet honors were about even but it was thought that the one who played in the game against their ancient rivals, the London Military Academy, would be officially announced as the school forward.

Garland was a good student in Geometry, but Jack was a boy who just did make it. The notice on the bulletin board announced that a meeting of the faculty of both schools had decided that an average of ninety must be had to represent the team.

On the morning of the examination Jack came from his room in a hurry to go to one of his classes when he saw the professor of Geometry, who was a short way in front of him, drop a paper. Garland picked it up and walked on in another direction.

Should he tell the professor what he had seen and thereby win the coveted place? It was a real problem, but at last he formed his decision. If he could not get the place by fair means, he would not by foul.

The test came and the professor arose and stated that as he had lost the original questions, so he did not know the ones that were asked. Each passed the examination by hard work and so won his position.

THE IGNORANT VOTER

Undoubtedly the greatest menace to our national, state and municipal welfare is the ignorant voter. There are thousands upon thousands of them right here in our country. They are as deadly as the poisonous sting of some vicious insect in the effect they have on our elections.

Now just what does this mean? Simply this: If a person has two or more chances to guess, he is just as apt to guess wrongly as rightly. In the case of the ignorant voter, he or she has just as many chances to guess wrongly as not in voting.

We know our problem, then. Let us now look at the causes. There are several reasons why people vote ignorantly. First, some people are so dependent upon others that they let someone else set the pace for them to follow.

"Where there is a will, there is a way." The intelligent voters of this nation ought to realize the seriousness of the situation and furnish the will power. The way is a system of public education that will reach every nook and corner of the land.

But what about those who cannot go to school? Serial lectures on local and national topics would be eagerly welcomed. Do we not hear people say every day, "I wish I could go to school and study the League of Nations?"

The situation is very grave. Our citizens never needed to vote more carefully and intelligently than at this time, when we have so many questions vitally concerning our future to decide.

The Girl's Glee club will sing in chapel on one day next week. The Boys' Club will also appear. Both Glee clubs have been working hard for the past month, and have been doing fine work under the able direction of Miss Clement.

"You can always tell a Senior, For she's so sedately gowned; You can always tell a Freshman, By the way she struts around You can always tell a Junior, By her worried looks and such; You can always tell a Sophomore— But you can not tell her much."
