THE MYSTERIOUS LIGHT

Patrinka was a poor little girl who lived in Belgium. She did not know what a real Christmas was, because her father had been killed in the World War, and her mother had to make the living. They were so poor they hardly had enough to eat, let alone have any presents.

It was Christmas Eve, all was still save the shrieking of the old wind mill. Katrinka lay on her little bed wishing Santa Claus would come and visit her that night. Suddenly a thought came to her. She jumped out of bed and wrote a note and stuck it in her little wooden shoe, and set it beside a glowing candle out side her door. She then went back to bed.

A large car was speeding northward. Its occupant a pleasant looking young man was thinking as her sped along of his home in old Kentucky. He was wishing he could spend Christmas with his mother and sisters. Suddenly there was a loud noise. The man stopped the car and got out only to discover a puncture. He felt in his pocket for a match but had none.

As he was looking around he saw a gleam of light in the distance. He followed it and was brought to Katrinka's door. He read the note and felt sorry for the little girl. He carried the candle down to the car and fixed the tire and rode off to the next city which was twenty miles away.

When he reached there he went immediately to a dry goods store and bought clothing, next food, dolls, and candy were bought. He went back and placed the things with the candle at Katrinka's door.

The next morning Katrinka was very happy for Santa had certainly visited her that night.

Wanted—A New High School.

How can we get it?
I heard you say.
Grumble and grumble? No, that's not the way;
Hope, and work, and we'll get it some day.

Schools must be larger, there is no doubt;
Care just a little,
Help us out!
Open your pocket-book
Once again;
Let everyone try to do what he can.

JUNIORS GET TOGETHER TO STUDY LITERARY DIGEST

Not long ago Miss Killingsworth suggested to her class that they make the study of the Literary Digest part of their English work. The two Junior classes, who, like all students in G. H. S., pride themselves on their modernness, at once looked favorably upon the suggestion. So their English committees met and decided how they would do it.

This is the plan. The class is divided into three groups. Each member of the committee is chairman of one group. He or she selects one member of his or her group for the leader. One group takes charge of the program each week. The chairman and leader of the group taking part make out the program together. The parts are assigned on Thursday, program is on Friday. The entire recitation period is given over to the study and discussion of current topics based on the Literary Digest. The purpose of the club is threefold:

1. To encourage an interest in present day problems and happenings.
2. To help promote good speech by practice.
3. To make the English course more varied and interesting.

This program, carried out by the third period class, shows how the plan works out. First ten minutes, chairman Nida Swaim asked questions to the class at large, which resulted in three discussions:

1. The Child Feeding Fund—Pauline Fitzgerald.
2. Closed vs. Open Shop—Myrtle Ellen LaBarr.
3. A Campaign of the Relative Interest of Henry Ermond and the Literary Digest—Ethel Waugh.

The meeting was then turned over to Ethel Stockton, leader, who read a letter written as though she were Charles Garland, writing to a friend and explaining why he refused a $1,000,000 inheritance.

Short Talk; The Coal Situation—Albert Stanton.

Teach Observance of Traffic Laws—Andrew McGlammy.

Discussion of Cartoons—Aileen Wolfe.
Paper—Who Is to Weed the Onions When Everyone Has An Education?—Eula Beall.

Poem—Sea Gull Song. Read and interpreted by Gladys Holland.

The chairman then took charge and called for general discussion of topics presented.

Critic's Report—Myrtle LaBan.

Selections of topics best suited to be given in chapel next week. Eula Beall's piece was considered most timely.

Miss Tarbell and a committee of Sophomore girls were visitors at the club's first meeting.

The club is hoping that visitors will enjoy coming in to hear their Friday programs. If you have the third period vacant, you are extended a cordial invitation to visit them and see how an up-to-date English class conducts itself.

MORAVIAN MINISTER TALKS IN CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

Mr. Kenneth Pfohl, from the Moravian Church of Winston-Salem, spoke to both the lower and upper classes at the Christmas program. Mr. Pfohl came down to talk to us by special invitation, and we greatly enjoyed him and appreciated his coming so much.

His topic to the lower classes was "The Star in Your Heart," and the subject for the higher classes, "Jesus Christ the Light of the World." Both talks were clear, simple and to the point. Mr. Pfohl has a beautiful singing voice and sang Holy Night, Silent Night, as a special request, much to the pleasure of everyone.
