RED CROSS PLANNING COURSE IN HYGIENE

As a cooperative undertaking by Senior high school and the local Red Cross, three classes in home hygiene and care of the sick were opened September 27 to the girls. Under the direction of Mrs. Grace B. Hatch, a Red Cross nurse, the program being carried out is a part of a health and physical education class which is to meet three days a week, for approximately the next eight to ten weeks. The classes meet Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 10 to 11 o'clock, from 11:50 to 12:50 o'clock, and from 2:30 to 3:30 o'clock.

Nursing of Sick Is Theme Within these classes girls will be taught the correct way to change a bed when a person is unable to get out of it, to bathe sick people and babies, and to administer first aid to the injured in any crisis that might arise. Only those girls having study periods were eligible. The maximum number of girls in each class has been set at 20.

A similar class is to be started for the admits in Greensboro and is to work simultaneously with those at Senior high. Due to the present registration, the class will probably be at night.

Oriental Draperies Brighten Dark Lab

Hedy Lamarr has certainly had her influence even at Senior high school, in the way of the exotic, for, hanging in room 12 is a tapestry (just as glamorous as the movie star), which comes from Oriental Persia. Against a natural background, the dominant colors of reds and yellows stand out. The designs for the most part are mythical. A curious item is the liberty taken by the weavers with the design. For example, if a figure would not fit in the space allotted, it was distorted until it would. The pairs of peacocks and lions, however, have not suffered from this change and appear most realistic.

The most remarkable thing about the tapestry is the intricate designs, for all were printed by hand with wooden blocks and herb dyes. Miss Snowe Bradley, member of the home economics department, bought this oriental art treasure at Serunian's several years ago.

Other Unusual Objects

Two other unusual objects are small embroidered pictures which depict the processes of making the famed Persian rugs. One illustrates the manner of weaving. Multicolored threads that hang over the weavers' heads are plucked down and woven into the rug as the caller sings the design. This caller, usually a man, sings out the pattern as the women weave it. The other depicts transportation of the rug from the desert to the coast.

All should be proud of our Oriental treasures, for, though recently acquired, they have become so much a part of the home economics department.

Council Launches Visitation Plan

Home room council officers, who have recently been elected, are Robert Glenn, vice-president, and Sarah Armstrong, secretary. Because of his office as vice-president of the student body, Carlyle Groome automatically became president of the home room council.

At the first meeting of the group, which is composed of presidents of the various session rooms, the first big project of the year was launched, visitation in the home of each new-comer to Greensboro high school by a council member. In this way the governing body of the school hopes to become better acquainted with each new individual and to make him feel really at home as a member of this high school.

BIRD NEARLY EXTINCT DISCOVERED BY MILLER

A stuffed pileated wood-pecker, one of the rarest birds in North America, is on exhibition in the science department of Senior high school. This outstanding specimen was killed by Rudy Miller, senior, when he was scouting about two miles west of Greensboro, off Friendly road, recently.

Saw Male and Female

A strange "caw, caw, caw" attracted his attention. Upon close examination, he discovered a pair, both male and female, of pileated wood-peckers. Since Rudy is a former member of Mrs. Blackburn's nature class, he was able to identify his discovery, and knew to shoot only the male, which has a blackish-brown body, a white stripe extending from his nostril down his neck, and a scarlet streak across the head down to the bill. The female resembles the male, except for the amount of red on the head.

Bird Helpful to Man

This species is perhaps one of the most helpful to man, as the muscles of its neck are especially developed to allow it to strike hard blows, constantly, into decaying logs, where insect larvae are hidden.

KIWANIANS SPONSOR LECTURE PROGRAMS

Sight-Saving Class to Benefit From Collins Festival Course Beginning October 31.

Four Tuesday-night Collins festival entertainments are to be given at Senior high beginning October 31, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis club, for the benefit of the Sight-Saving classes in the city schools. The season ticket cost of all four concerts, which will start at 8 p.m., will be $1.25 for adults and 65 cents for students.

The first program will be given by the Mordella Merry-makers, who play a medley of folk songs, marches, and American classics. Flora, daughter of the famous Pietro Mordella, will assist her father. She graduated in music at the Boston university and two years ago won the all-New England Beethoven prize for sopranos. For novelty in the program, she plays the piano and accordion and gives humorous impersonations.

The second program features a well-known musical trio, Doris Davidson, a contralto singer; Mary Elizabeth Guthrie, a harpist; and Ruth Trump, violinist.

Dr. Frank G. Sayers will give an address on the subject of "An American Cavalcade" on the third Tuesday. His speech is packed with illustrations from the fields of history, science, travel, letters, and sports. Widely traveled, Dr. Sayers is especially well informed and is well fitted to give this address.

The last number of the program will be a gripping drama, "Youth Carries the Torch," which shows the tangle of love, human life, and international intrigue in the field of science. The hero, David Chandler, discovers a death ray that renders armaments useless. Terrified at its power, he leaves home trying to decide what to do with it, when love finds him just in time. This satisfactory show will end the novel entertainments offered by the Collins group.
