Twenty New Members Added to Present Club; Largest in Local History

Greensboro debaters, under the direction of Miss Mozelle Causey, regional leader, will be hosts for the first district debating meet ever held in North Carolina, the last part of this semester. Although the date is not yet definite, about 50 or 60 teams from the Graham-Charlotte area are expected.

The state has been divided into three groups, the other two planning meetings at Asheville and Kinston on a designated Saturday. Lasting all day, the contest conferences will have as their objective, the entrance of as many teams as possible from all schools, with the prize being awarded to the top ranking school selected by competent judges.

In preparation for this and other events, 20 new members, the largest in the local club's history, have been added. Coming mainly from the junior group they are as follows: Charlotte Graham, Majorie Burns, Neil Beard, Martha Faulconer, Doris Osborne, Paul Miller, Melvin Grablowsky, Sam Whitaker, Phil Griffin, Jane Eller, Rozell Yoder, Dorothy Best, Bayard Whitehurst, Martha Ann Moore, Bobby Bowman, John Swan Taylor, Herbert Hattaway, Charles Fogleman, James Boyles, and Margaret Eiler.

Moser Notes Difference in U. S., Mexican Thought

"When we Americans speak of the United States, we speak of it as a whole; when a Mexican speaks of Mexico, he means Mexico City alone—for to him there is little to his country except that place," Miss Margaret Moser pointed out in talking to one of Miss Blackmon's history classes Monday. "This attitude I found to be much in evidence in the weeks I spent there," she declared.

Government Holds Upper Hand in Elections

A particularly interesting practice, she went on to say, was that during the elections the government in office at the time held the upper hand, for when the voters went to the polls, the ruling party always rushed to get there ahead of the opposing side and "saw to it" that the opponents voted the other way.

Cardenas Candidate Naturally Won

"It so happened," she continued, "that the adversary, Almazan, really held the majority of votes, but, owing to intentional miscounting of the ballots, Cardenas' candidate won, though he had only a handful of votes."

Natives Dislike Lindbergh

"When I visited Lindbergh's villa there, I discovered that the natives think 'our Lindy' rather cold and reserved, but they hold his father-in-law, Dwight Morrow, in high esteem," she concluded.

Miss Moser has spoken to several classes recently about her visit in Mexico this summer.

Nature Study Class Plants Seed Beds

Mrs. Nellie Blackburn's nature study class is planning to plant a seed bed in the botanical garden at the back of the school within the next few weeks. The group will provide a variety of seeds, among them being the Siberian wallflower, pansy, Columbia, red oriental poppy, and English daisy seeds.

In the spring these plants will be moved from the beds and dotted around the campus to beautify the landscape.

Quill and Scroll Elects Officers for Year

Pike Stresses Fact Writing Ability Prime Requisite for Members

Senior high's O. Henry chapter of Quill and Scroll, an international honor society for high school journalists, recently elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Dianne Page; vice-president, Janet Cox; secretary, Irma Estes; treasurer, Frances Winslow.

Pike Stresses Writing Ability

In discussing the qualifications for membership, Miss Cathleen Pike, the club's adviser, stated, "Writing ability will get more consideration than scholastic achievements, thus opening Quill and Scroll to a larger field of students." On the other hand, however, a prospective member must be in the upper fourth of his class scholastically.

"Though plans for this year are still in a nebulous state," Miss Pike declared, "we are sure of a formal ceremony later on in the fall to initiate new members. Also we will present two or three radio programs in the spring."

Student Council Authorizes Inter-School Council Set-Up

Plans for an Inter-School council to coordinate the work of the existing student councils in the various junior high schools of Greensboro with that of the student council of the senior high school were discussed in the meeting of the student council held last Tuesday. The council authorized the president to appoint two representatives to continue negotiations with the various junior high schools, and Ann Thornon was appointed. The other post is being left open and will be filled later by the president from the members of the council elected by the junior class.

"The idea of the Inter-School council is a relatively new one, at least in Greensboro," it was pointed out by Douglass Hunt, president of the student body. "The purpose of the council would be to coordinate the work of the student councils in the various schools; but its particular job would be to arrange exchange assembly programs among the different schools in order to acquaint the members of one student body with the customs of the others, and, in addition, to familiarize the student in the junior high schools with the working of senior high school, before they are enrolled here."

Johnson Reports Supply Purchase

Large amounts of new stock are to be ordered for the school supply shop, according to information received from Mr. J. Stanley Johnson, faculty adviser to the supply shop, yesterday.

Already a large amount of post-erboard has been purchased, and this material is now available to all students desiring it. Plans also are under way to order new stocks of notebook fillers—ruled and plain—ink, fountain pens, rulers, compasses, drawing tablets, paper clips, notebook reinforcements, and other commodities needed by the student body.

Mr. Johnson stated that the supply shop was emphasizing quality as well as quantity and expressed the hope that all the members of the student body would purchase their school supplies at the supply shop and thus aid the student council in raising the money needed for its financial program.

Miss Smith Exhibits Mexican Articles to Classes

Miss Louise Smith entertained her classes in the auditorium last Thursday, September 19, by showing them some of the moving pictures and articles which she brought back from her trip to Mexico. The photographs she took herself with a moving picture camera, which she says she didn't bother to learn how to use. The results, however, are extremely interesting and form a complete record of her trip. Some of the most interesting pictures are of the Alamo, the fortress in Texas where so many men lost their lives during the war with Mexico.

The articles which she collected on the way are varied and are typical of Mexican work. Modeled in clay are pig-banks and Mexican gods, and in metal, a small replica of the Calendar stone. In straw, besides the usual woven baskets and purses, she has a figure of Pancho Villa on his horse.

LeGwin Announces Provisions of Bill Passed Last Tuesday

The student council passed a bill at its last meeting Tuesday providing a council committee to assist in the planning of home room programs, it was announced Wednesday by Mrs. Estelle M. LeGwin, faculty adviser to the council.

The duties of the committee, according to the bill, are "to compile and keep a file of home room programs; to arrange exchanges of home room programs between the various home rooms; and to receive weekly reports from each home room program chairman as to the nature of the programs" held in that particular home room.

No Reason for Lack of Program

Mrs. LeGwin further stated that there would now "be no need for any home room's failing to have a program, since as soon as possible, the committee plans to make available a selection of programs suitable for use."

According to the bill the committee in charge will be composed of a chairman selected from the council, one faculty member selected by the principal, and two seniors and two juniors appointed from the student body at large by the president of the student cooperative association.

Paint and Furniture Occupy 'Home Makers'

With a dust mop here and a yardstick there, Mrs. Richards' home economics three class is renovating the study room between the two home making labs. This room was painted last spring when the rest of the science building received its new coat of paint.

Since the home economics three group is studying house planning and redecoration, they have taken the problem of furnishing this room as a project for this semester.

Planning Budget

These future housewives, after some class discussions, made trips to a few of Greensboro's leading furniture stores to study and criticize furniture. In connection with this problem, the group is studying budgeting. As soon as the members can decide upon furniture to suit the purpose and their budget, they are going to furnish the room. When completed, it will be used as a combination reading and conference room.

The speaker for the first meeting will be Mrs. Mary Leith Stewart, art instructor at Woman's college.
