

Luncheon Highlights Class Day Program For 1942 Graduates

With the presentation of the superlatives and the reading of the Last Will and Testament climaxing the event, the senior class combined their class day program and the annual senior luncheon Wednesday at the O. Henry hotel.

Because the class day program is usually presented to the student body, the combination of the two major events was an entirely new idea.

The luncheon program began with toasts to the school, the senior class, and the faculty. After the responses to these, the seniors sang their school song and a number of other songs, accompanied by several members of the high school band.

Present Will and Prophecy

After luncheon the main entertainment of the afternoon began. First, the last will and testament and the prophecy, written by Bennie Lowe and Helen Marks, were read. Then came the climax of the event, the presentation of the superlatives, selected by the vote of their fellow students. Their identity remained secret until the program and the announcement was a complete surprise, even to those elected.

The committee in charge of class day was headed by Rachael Whiteside, chairman, and Miss Louise Smith, faculty adviser. The remainder of the committee consisted of the following: ticket committee, Joan Holleyman, Preston Mc Laird and Edgar Sikes; staging, Joe Powell, Richard Kiser, James Dobbins, and Paul Miller; superlatives, Betty Routh, Melvin Grablow-sky, Paul Miller, Shannon Schumann, Joyce Pope, and Barbara Bond; last will, testament, and prophecy, Bennie Lowe and Helen Marks; decorations, Dick Kiser, Bennie Lowe, and Herbert Hattaway; place cards, Preston Mc Laird and Joe Powell; music, Edgar Sikes and Jack Watson; general, Ruth Winterling, Joyce Pope and Herbert Hattaway.

Pageant, Awarding of Diplomas To Conclude Senior Activities

With the annual pageant and awarding of diplomas climaxing a week of heated activity, which will end the high school career of some 400 boys and girls, Senior high school students will conclude senior week tonight.

Highlight of the week's program, which included a baccalaureate sermon by Dr. J. B. Craven, of West Market Street Methodist church, and a concert by members of the high school choir, Sunday evening, will be the presentation of the pageant, "Our Fight for Democracy," tonight. The pageant was written under the direction of Miss Cathleen Pike, of the school faculty, and Phil Griffin, student chairman. Miss Dorothy McNairy, chairman of the senior teachers, headed the commencement committee.

Patriotic Scheme

This year's pageant will be of a patriotic and timely nature, keeping in step with current affairs. Scenes in the production include the introduction, role of industry, role of agriculture, role of the state department, role of education and the conclusion. Phil Griffin, assisted by Paul Miller, will read the pageant.

Individual scenes, all of which depict the Americans at war, will be supervised by Misses Mary Ellen Blackmon, Estelle Mitchell, Mrs. Blanche Smith, Miss Ida Belle Moore and Miss Dorothy McNairy. Herbert Hattaway will be chairman of the state department scene, which will bring the play to a conclusion and which will summarize the ideals and principles dramatized in preceding scenes. Other leading figures include Almeda West, who will depict the Statue of Liberty; Paul Miller, representative from the United States; Bob Perry, delegate from Canada, and Neil Beard, secretary of the board.

Superintendent Ben L. Smith and Principal A. P. Routh will award diplomas to the 402 seniors tonight.

Local Council Presents Banquet For Varsity

Before the Senior high commencement prom last Saturday, the student council gave a banquet at the Lotus restaurant for the boys on the varsity teams of the various sports at Senior high.

Among the other guests at the banquet were the three coaches of G. H. S., Jamieson, Mann and Johnson, Superintendent B. L. Smith, and Principal and Mrs. A. P. Routh.

Members of the outgoing and incoming councils also attended.

At this banquet the varsity letters for the newly completed major sports at Senior high were awarded. The banquet was concluded in time for all attendants to get to the prom on time.

Music Federation Dance To Climax Spring Events

Members of the Junior Federation of Music clubs will conclude their spring activities with a dance Saturday, May 30, at the home of Mrs. W. S. Coulter on Sunset drive. David Evans, president, and Joan Holleyman, social chairman will assist Mrs. Coulter in preparing for the event.

Couples for the occasion include: Joan Holleyman and David Evans, Muriel Fiske and Graham Meade, Margaret Evans and Charles Strandberg, Jewell Hyatt and Jack Smith, Annie Laurie Bennett and Thomas Huffines, Doris Osborne and Bill Halladay, Grace Lane and Herbert Hattaway.

Junior Marshals Selected To Aid Graduation Fetes

Junior home room teachers and Principal A. P. Routh chose 22 boys and girls from the 11 junior home rooms Monday to aid in the commencement activities as ushers.

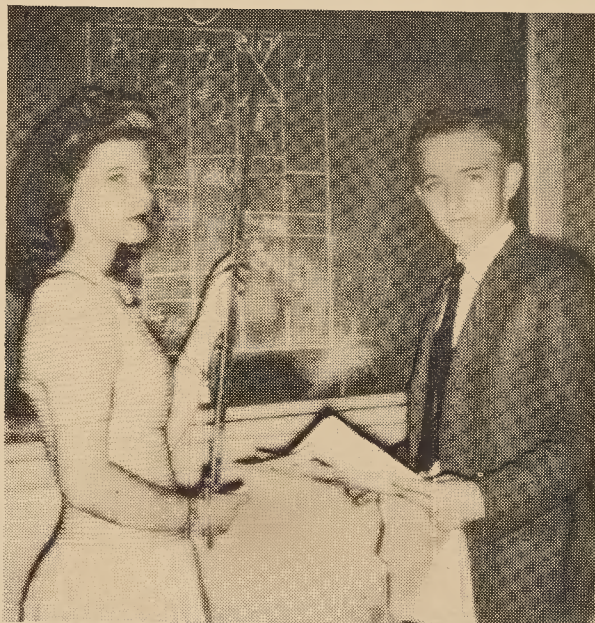

Their activities included serving as ushers at the baccalaureate sermon Sunday, comprising the greeting committee at the class day celebration Wednesday, and acting as ushers at the graduation ceremonies tonight. On the night of the big event, the marshals will be dressed formally. The present officers of the junior class, including Bernard Lane, president; Mary Neese, vice-president; Virginia Foster, secretary; and Edward Alexander, treasurer, will lead the procession of graduating seniors to the front of the auditorium tonight when they receive their diplomas. They will also serve at various other commencement festivity fetes.

Principal Routh announced, as he revealed the names of the marshals, that they had been chosen only after careful consideration by their home room advisers.

The junior class marshals for the 1942 Greensboro Senior high school graduation include Ashton Kearny, Rachel Johnson, Tommy R. Gilbert, Peggy Flowers, Dan Wagoner, Marilyn Yonice, M. C. Anderson, Gertrude Archer, Claude Phipps, Carolyn Pleasants, Walter Taylor, Doris Jean Thomas, Bobby DeSanto, Martha Current, Wiley Sholar, Mary Frances Stack, Pete Miller, Allene Parks, Marshall Clegg, Nancy Clendenin, Amos Lashley and Sue McFadyen.

New Editor and Advertising Manager

Bob Lloyd Succeeds Miller As Staff Head; Kindley, Ad Head

Bob Lloyd will serve as editor-in-chief of High Life, local student publication, during 1942-43, Paul Miller, retiring editor, revealed this morning in an announcement of major staff appointments.

To assume the important position of advertising manager, Miller and Betty Routh, who has directed the business department of the publication for the past two semesters, named Margaret Kindley. Both Lloyd and Margaret Kindley are well-known juniors and members of the honor roll.

"Owing to the uncertainty of just what organization of the staff will be necessary next year, no other appointments have been made to either the reportorial or business departments," Editor Miller declared. Other positions include those of sports editor, feature editor, fashion editor, headline supervisor, copy chief, circulation manager and business manager.

Record Cited

Lloyd was promoted to the advanced class early in the year and has served as assistant to the make-up editor during this semester. The new editor has also been an advertising solicitor and an agent in the business staff of High Life, as well as member on the second debate team.

Margaret Kindley has assisted Betty Routh in the capacity of assistant in the advertising department this semester and earlier in the year was junior journalist chairman.

In commenting on the new staff officers, Miller said, "I feel assured in leaving the office of editor of High Life to Bob Lloyd. He has already displayed, through his active participation in the many departments of the paper, a wide interest in the publication. The entire class recognizes the new editor for his ability and his sincere interest."

"Margaret Kindley has received considerable training in the business department," declared Betty Routh, "and is therefore qualified to assume the duty of advertising manager, a most difficult post."

F. E. Thomas Awarded Summer Fellowship

F. E. Thomas, local history instructor, has been awarded a fellowship for work in the field of social studies at the University of Chapel Hill, during the summer term this year. The announcement of this achievement came from Clyde A. Erwin, state superintendent of public instruction, last week, but Thomas has not yet announced his acceptance of the fellowship.

Curriculum work in the field will be carried out under the leadership of Dr. Carson Ryan of the University faculty and M. E. Yount, chairman of the social studies committee. Not only will graduate credit in the field of education be given for all courses but Superintendent Erwin stated that the experiences gained in this work will be of great professional value.

The fellowship offered to Thomas is one of several provided by the executive committee as a means of carrying forward the 12-year program study.

Hazelman Leads Band At Memorial Service

Under the supervision of Herbert Hazelman, the local band played at Forest Lawn cemetery Sunday afternoon for the memorial service of the American Legion.

Other scheduled band activities include attendance at the music school in Chapel Hill this summer.

Eve Curie Declares France Will Rise But Must Have United Nations Aid

"I think the French are proving to be a very brave people led by very bad leaders," stated Eve Curie, daughter of radium-discoverers Pierre and Marie Curie, in an interview before her lecture at Aycock auditorium, May 15.

When asked if France would rise again, she replied simply: "Of course, France will not rise in revolt, however, unless she is sure of aid from her rightful allies, the United Nations," she added.

When informed of her daughter's decision not to enter the field of science, Madame Marie Curie, a great believer in individual independence, offered no objections. Therefore, with tacit parental consent, Miss Curie embarked on a literary career. She soon became a distinguished writer and is author of the widely-read biography, "Madame Curie." She is also co-author of "They Speak For a Nation," as well as a writer for the Baltimore Sun.

Miss Curie, who arrived in the United States only two weeks ago after a trip to Russia and a return journey through India, China and other places where the war is actively raging, declared that she believes Russia is able to withstand the German attack.

Bulletin!

For all students planning to enter an eastern or northern state college next fall, an aptitude test will be given at Chapel Hill, Saturday, June 13, at 9 o'clock, by the College Board of New York.

Any person interested must get in touch with Mr. Ben Husbands of Chapel Hill immediately so that he can notify the New York Board.

This test is not compulsory at present but may become necessary for college entrance in a few years.

Local Girls To Attend Annual Girls' State

Third annual session of Tar Heel Girls' state will open Sunday, June 14, at the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina, and will last through Saturday, June 20. Approximately 200 girls from all parts of the state are expected to attend.

Each unit of the American Legion auxiliary in North Carolina has been asked to sponsor one or more girls to Girls' state. The purpose of the annual session is to give training in an educational program of practical Americanism to as many future citizens of North Carolina as possible.

In this program, a broader comprehension of the functions of government and a keener realization of a girl's individual responsibilities to her community are stressed.

Feature Many Events

The Girls' state session features a daily resume of world events, reveille and retreat, a day at the state capital, a banquet, honoring the governor of the present session, moving pictures, dormitory pajama parties, and a Girls' state frolic.

Last year, 18 girls from Senior high represented Greensboro.

Those girls attending this year's Girls' state from Greensboro have not yet been announced.

Quill and Scroll Accepts Eight New Members

Initiated Tuesday into the O. Henry chapter of Quill and Scroll were eight local students, who include Lolene Harrison, Bob Lloyd, Ruth Winterling, Sue McFadyen, Betty Clement, Dorothy Parker, Bob Perry and Almeda West.

These new members were officially accepted into the society in an assembly program, conducted by Rachael Whiteside, president of the group.
