Second Semester Will Bring Changes in High Life Personnel

That the new semester has brought many changes to the editorial and business boards of HIGH LIFE is evident from an announcement issued this morning at the publication's office by Irwin Smallwood, editor, and Miss Louise C. Smith, adviser.

School Is Commended On Recent Bond Drive

In a letter addressed to Irwin Smallwood, chairman of the recent war bond drive which was sponsored by the student council, students of Senior high were commended for their active participation in the war effort through the sale of bonds and stamps.

In the letter, Mr. J. F. Stevens, chairman of the War Finance committee for Greensboro and rural Guilford, congratulated the school for having held several successful bond drives in the past. He expressed his opinion of the recent campaign by saying, "Each individual member of the student body has thus fulfilled a patriotic duty, and at the same time they have made a real contribution to the war effort."

The double "triple-threat" campaign was opened here December 7. Sales soon surpassed the goal, which was to sell enough bonds to buy two jeeps, two sea jeeps or amphibians, and two Grasshopper airplanes. When the campaign ended December 14, Miss Frances Sowell, who acted as financial adviser, announced that the total amount of sales was $12,601. This exceeded the original goal by almost $200. Elmo Sellars and Harry Turner were credited with buying the most bonds and stamps.

Routh Announces New Civic Representatives

Frank Eddie Curran and Robert Baxter were chosen to share the honor of being Junior Rotarians by the Greensboro Rotary club and Jean Freeland was named Junior business woman by the local Business and Professional Woman's club announced Principal A. P. Routh recently.

Each month the Rotary club chooses Junior Rotarians on the basis of their high school activities. This practice is followed also by the Business and Professional Woman's club.

Students previously chosen this year are Howard Morris, Irwin Smallwood, Ed Mabry, John Schopp, Allene Parks, Jean Barry and Dovie McSwain.

John Sevier and Aileen Mateer, associate editors, will be assisted in their duties by Adger Williams, who has been promoted from junior journalism chairman. Shirley Flowers, former exchange editor, also moves up to assist Beverly Bell, feature editor.

Irwin Smallwood retains his sports editorship, but will be aided by Carl Cochrane, who comes up from the first semester journalism class.

Back at their old jobs are Jean Freeland and Ted Williamson in charge of the make-up department, while Bill Bogart will be the new headline editor.

Replacing Shirley Flowers as exchange editor is Sally Waddell, a member of the senior journalism group. Ted Williamson continues in his second staff position as official photographer.

Several changes have taken place in the business staff as well as the editorial board. However, Davie McSwain and Jean Freeland are continuing as business and advertising managers.

Jimmie Rawlins, better known as the smooth columnist of "Student Stuff," takes over the circulation department on a partnership basis with Shirley Flowers.

In order to publish a paper, the reporter's manuscript must be typed before it is ready for the printer. This seemingly dull but indispensable job has been faithfully and cheerfully performed by Emily Ann McDowell, Ann Keys, Essie Brown, Betty Jane Tucker and Vivian Baker.

Miss Louise C. Smith and Miss Frances Cowell will continue in their duties as faculty advisers.

Deaths in Families Cause Two Absences

In the past week, two members of the Senior high school have been absent due to deaths in their families.

Miss Pike, teacher in the English department, was called away from school for two days last week because of the death of her father, Rev. W. M. Pike, who lived near Liberty, N. C.

Miss Amy Caldwell, also of the English department, was absent from school Friday because of the death of her first cousin, Joseph Franklin Kent of Charleston, W. Va.

Suggestions For Study Made By Mr. Routh

In making a list of helpful suggestions for Senior high school students, Principal A. P. Routh has listed the following as the most important points to follow in order to be considered a well-rounded student.

Select courses that will be most useful for your own purposes.

Make a personal schedule for your own day so that you will prepare every assignment. Get certain lessons during your study periods and have a regular time and suitable place for preparing other studies. Try to limit social engagements to week-ends.

Put forth your best efforts to make the highest possible grades. Future possibilities and opportunities will depend upon your success here and now. The average student does not realize how frequently employers inquire into his high school record.

Participate in school activities—music, speech, athletics or some other—but avoid overloads. Do well what you undertake.

Enter into the program at hand. There is a time to listen, a time to play, a time to speak up, a time to sing and a time to cheer. Do not cross up activities.

Be loyal to your school, your fellow students, your teachers and principal. Although no one claims that Greensboro high school is perfect, nevertheless, it ranks with the best and it deserves the very best support you can give it.

Protect the school's property; destruction is sabotage. Praise its good points.

Survey of Christmas Jobs

In a job survey conducted by Mrs. Christine Florence, diversified occupations director at Senior, it was revealed that Senior high students earned an estimated $9,350.40 from all types of work during the Christmas holidays.

Of the 515 students working during the holidays, 317 are part time students and 198 were employed for Christmas-time work. Of the 515 workers, 267 were boys and 248 were girls.

On the average, holiday workers received pay of 40 cents per hour for an eight hour work day.

This survey revealed that the majority of students working during the Christmas holidays were employed either in sales or office jobs. Of the 260 workers in sales jobs, 175 were girls

Exams Get Underway Today; Registration To Begin Soon

Examinations for the first semester of the school year 1943-44 are to begin this afternoon, when the students will take their sixth period exam instead of having their regular sixth and seventh period classes.

Students will report to their respective classes as designated by the exam schedule and will remain there for an hour and a half, even though the test does not cover the entire period of time.

Cheating during the examination will automatically give the pupil a zero on the subject for the semester. Those not reporting to their classes, whose absences are unexcused by the office, will also fail the course. Students are asked to bear in mind the fact that absences have to be reported to the office and admit cards

Noble Cain, Choir Director, to Visit City

Noble Cain, director of the Chicago acapella choir will visit Greensboro Thursday, February 10, when he will be at Woman's college for vocal instruction.

Greensboro's Senior high school choir has been asked to attend a vocal clinic under the direction of Mr. Cain, which will be held at the college during the early afternoon. The choir is highly honored by being invited to such an instructive event.

Two songs are being learned by the choir for this clinic. Under consideration are "Gonna Join the Heavenly Choir," a negro spiritual arranged by Mr. Cain, and "Prelude."

Cain has, on several occasions, been in Greensboro, although he has made no recent visits. Often he was the central judge in state music contests held here a few years ago, but such colorful events are no longer presented because of existing war and transportation difficulties.

At the present time, Mr. Cain is touring southern states trying to arouse more interest and enthusiasm in various vocal groups.

For many years Mr. Cain has resided in Chicago, Illinois, but his interests in music have taken him on several nationwide tours. This famous composer and arranger began his career as an organist and a choir director in a small church. During the post-war years of 1918-19, he served with the United States Naval Aviation. Cain has over 350 published works, many of which are well known.
