

Local Dept. Store Sponsors Art Contest

Jr. Red Cross Boxes Will Go to Europe; 7 Allotted Each Room

The American Junior Red Cross is sponsoring the preparation and shipment of boxes of supplies needed by school children in Europe. This school is a member of the Junior Red Cross, and its quota amounts to approximately seven boxes per home room. If the students can not bring the needed articles, they may contribute funds for that purpose. The campaign is under the direction of the student council.

Pencils, paper, washcloths, soaps, needles, thread and numerous other articles are needed. The factories of Europe which were not destroyed were engaged in war work. Production of the so-called "luxury goods" ceased entirely. Now, with the return of peace, these articles are desperately needed overseas. The American Junior Red Cross is attempting to meet this need with the aid of its high school members.

Each home room has been supplied with seven boxes to be filled. Homeroom chairmen, who will collect money and supplies, have been appointed and accumulation of the desired articles is under way.

7 Names Omitted In Previous Story

In the last issue of High Life, there appeared a Quill and Scroll story which contained the names of outstanding English students who have been recommended for membership to that organization. An error was made and a group of names submitted by Mrs. Pat Myrick was not published in that article.

Those students who were selected by Mrs. Myrick but were not included in the story are: Lucile Driver, Betty Carroll Wimbish, Helen Mae Sarles, Doris Cooper, Virginia Ligon, Martha Nell Keith, and Nancy Burton.

Training Offered In Naval Reserve

Through the Organized Naval Reserve Battalion which has recently been formed in Greensboro, all boys between the ages of 17 and 18½ years now have an opportunity to receive naval training on a part-time basis and still remain in school.

Naval Reserve activities include weekly meetings, at which informative and helpful training is given, and also a cruise each year with full pay and allowances to some foreign port on a Navy Combatant ship. An attractive feature of the Naval Reserve Organization is the new naval armory which will be built soon and will be located near the Memorial stadium. This armory will offer reserves training in up to date shops of all kinds equipped with the latest equipment possible. At the present time meetings are being held at the Guilford County Court House.

The Greensboro unit has been allotted a maximum of 600 reserves but it has already signed well over 100 enthusiasts. It is expected that the new battalion will soon reach its quota and Lieutenant Commander M. W. Hovis has urged all boys interested in the organization to come by the Naval Reserve office, 4th floor, Post Office Building any day until 4:30 P.M. or on Saturday until noon, and get all details.

Briefly the Naval Reserve has to offer both veterans and non-veterans:

(1) Enlist in the Naval Reserve at rate held on discharge or as Apprentice seaman for Non-Vets.

(2) Attend meeting once a week on Wednesday nights in Navy Unit.

United Nations Visited by Over 5,000 Young People

More than five thousand high school students have visited the United Nations meetings at Lake Success, N. Y. according to a dispatch received recently by High Life. From October 23, until the first of 1947 high school visitors filled more than half the seats assigned to all educational groups—colleges, clubs, adult education organizations, teachers, and school administrators.

The students, who come from as far away as Virginia and Washington, D. C., give various reasons for their visits. "To get a story for my school paper," "To see what the headlines are all about," "to test out my French," or "to find some arguments for a debate." Some are interested in jobs with the U.N. "How good does a stenographer have to be to take dictation for the Security Council?" several girls have asked.

Among the other points of interest at the U.N. meetings are the conference rooms equipped for simultaneous translation, and the circle of 55 flags outside the building.

To answer student questions, the U.N. provides information, free of charge to anyone requesting it.
