

Juniors and Seniors Are Tapped in Ceremony

Career Day Will Be Tuesday, March 22

Inauguration of Career Day will be Tuesday March 22. Guest speaker in Assembly will be Dr. Richard A. Bardolph, Associate Professor of History and Economics at Woman's College. His talk will be along the lines of "It is never too early to plan."

During the day, the homerooms will go to the Library to talk with various representatives, as they did recently on College Day.

Representatives

The following trades will be represented at the round table discussion in the library: Building And Construction, Homemaking, Transportation And Aviation, Distribution And Advertising, Communications And Radio, Personal Service, Professions, Public Service, Engineering, Military Occupations, Manufacturing, Office Occupations, and Auto Mechanics And Related Fields.

Bulletins to all students explaining the schedule and giving speakers will be distributed Monday before Career Day.

A luncheon will be given by Miss Mary York and her students for the speakers.

Morning Chapel

Chapel will begin with invocation by Margaret Hilton, followed by a statement of the purpose of the day by Frank Dixon. Tom Neal will introduce the main speaker, Dr. Richard A. Bardolph.

Musical numbers will be furnished by a trio from the Vocational Department.

Ginis Is Winner In Two Contests

On Wednesday, March 2 five Senior High students competed for first place honors in the Guilford County American Legion oratorical contest.

Thomas Ginis, a sophomore and winner of the recent World Peace contest, was declared first place winner; while Rebecca Frazier won second place.

Last Friday night Thomas spoke again at the Legion building and was named first place winner of the 19th District. He went to Raleigh yesterday to compete in the American Legion contest for this area.

Cashwell Is D.A.R. Winner For Two Consecutive Years

Winning first place in the D.A.R. menu contest was Fannie Cox Cashwell. She was first place winner last year in the same contest.

Fannie Cox has recently been accepted by Queens College, Charlotte, N. C. for the 1949-1950 session. She will major in Home Economics, mainly in foods. Her aim, even during her early years, was to do work in nutrition.

Honor Project Begins With Chapel Program

Striving to make Senior High a school of honor, the sophomore class has chosen honesty as their project. Program Is Presented

Last Tuesday morning the sophomore council presented a program to tenth graders only, in hope of putting their project across to them and later to the whole student them. They plan for the seventeen representatives to give talks in their respective homerooms each Tuesday on some selected topic and place slogans on the boards.

Bryan Heads Council

"Let's make this a school in which honorable dealing is the rule, in which the law-breaker meets the challenge of every good citizen" is the motto of the sophomore council with Jerry Bryan as president and the presidents acting as representatives of the various rooms. Mrs. Nellie Blackburn is faculty adviser for this group that meets every Thursday afternoon.

March 8—Care of desks, chairs, and tables.

March 15—Care of walls.

March 22—Care of library materials.

March 29—Care of textbooks.

April 15—Use of cafeteria.

April 12—Responsibility of found articles.

April 19—Lying.

April 26—Cheating on exams.

May 3—Opportunities to be honorable.

Junior Class To Sponsor Annual Clean-Up Day; Agapion Chairman

Steve Agapion, a member of the student council, was asked to serve as chairman of Clean Up Day for this year. Since he is President of the Junior Class, he asked permission to have this as a class project rather than just a clean up day for the Student Council. The Presidents and Vice-presidents of the Junior homerooms, the Junior Class officers, and faculty of the Juniors homerooms met and have worked out the following plan which they have submitted to the approval of the Juniors.

The project is a homeroom beautification program. The purpose is to promote a plan whereby Homerooms are encouraged to clean, keep and beautify, in so far as possible, their rooms. It will work as follows:

During the months of March, April, and May, the council shall select the room of the week at intervals of two weeks. This room will receive a plaque which will travel from winner to winner. On May 24, the grand winner will be announced and will receive a prize of money to be used for decorations or materials for that room. The rooms will be scored Wednesday and Thursday preceding each date of announcement. The scoring will be done by the ten Junior teachers and a student committee during a period when the room is vacant. These scores will be turned over to a final committee which will choose the winning room each two weeks and the final winner.

Dates for the announcement of the winners are March 11, March 25, April 8, April 22, May 6 and May 20. The final winner will be announced May 24.

The council hopes that the students will fall in line with these plans, and that the students will help to lead the school in this much needed project.

Senior Students Place In Scholarship Finals

Yvonne Schweistris and Bill Wright have been chosen to participate in the finals for the Angie B. Duke scholarship. Although the boy and girl scholarships are separate, they take the same preliminary exam, and the procedure is the same for both. Those who are outstanding in the preliminary exam go to the regional meeting from here the winners go to the district meeting. North Carolina is divided into the East and West districts, and each year two boys and a girl from each district win a $3,000 scholarship to Duke University.

Jean Thacker, Sidney Smith, and Bill Sarles were also in the semi-finals.

Honor Society Holds Semester Induction

Last Tuesday ten seniors and five juniors were taken into Torchlight, National Honor Society, at the Spring tapping. The students were elected on the basis of the four qualities for which the society stands—Character, Leadership, Service, and Scholarship.

The new members are from semesters six and eight. From the senior class are Pat Carson, Beverly Chalk, Jerry Fletcher, Alice Hardin, Nancy Lowder, Gordon Nelson, Tommy Payne, Ray Showfety, Jean Sharp, and Sarah Swain. Carolyn Birgel, David Bradley, Sue Purdom, Carol Williams, and Elinor Wrenn were tapped from the junior class.

During the ceremony Jackie Stafford, president of Torchlight, told of the aims and purposes of the society. Betty Jane Thompson, Sidney Smith, Yvonne Schweistris, and Treva Adams spoke respectively on character, scholarship, leadership, and service. Other members of the society are Anna Beeson, Bobby Michael, Julia Ann Doggett, Jean Thacker, Jackie Miles, Bill Wright, Dick Painter, Bill Sarles, Oscar Paris, and Emily Ann Dees.

Election Proceedings

Persons are tapped into the society on basis of four ballots. Those people with a scholastic average of 90 per cent or better are voted on by their classmates and the faculty. Members of Torchlight count these votes and vote accordingly. Final votes are cast by a committee appointed by Mr. A. P. Routh.

Talent Show Scheduled For Tuesday, March 15

Next Tuesday Torchlight, National Honor Society, plans to present their annual talent show. This year the talent will vary and many of the participants will be those people at Senior with "unknown" talent. Also, as an added attraction there will be talent other than from the school.

Tickets are 25 cents each; the proceeds will be used in paying for the society's new white robes and for the 100 dollar scholarship offered each year to some senior.

Jean Thacker is student chairman for the talent show, and Oscar Paris is to be master of ceremonies.

Art Classes Send Entries to Exhibit

When the 1949 National Scholastic Art Exhibit opens at Pittsburgh this year, eleven of the entries will be from Senior High School. The school's entries were selected by the process of elimination by Mrs. Grace Fayer and Mrs. Braswell, and then judged by a committee of college art instructors.

The national prize winners will be exhibited at the Carnegie Institute galleries. Many of the prizes are scholarships or cash. Some of the pictures will be used for reproduction under such famous sponsorship as Ingersoll calendar.

Senior high students whose paintings and other works of art are to be sent to Pittsburgh are: Don Vaughn, Sidney Smith, Estelline Patterson, Herman Welker, Frank Hough, and Leonard Allred.

Although Polly White is a 1948 graduate of Senior, her tempera painting of Community Life also be sent since it was done after January 1, 1948. Leonard Allred, Don Vaughn, and Estelline Patterson have two entries; the others have one each.
