NROTC Program Promoted In Nation's High Schools

A bulletin from the Naval Department in Washington, D. C., was sent to A. P. Routh, Principal, in regard to the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps. The bulletin was a duplicate of ones sent to high school principals throughout the nation. The purpose of this was to interest boys of high school age in the training program and to further acquaint them with its advantages.

The fall of 1950 will mark the enrollment of the fourth group of over two thousand competitively selected young men in fifty-two NROTC colleges and universities as students in the Navy's Officer Candidate Training Program. They will be appointed Midshipmen, USNR, and provided with tuition, fees, books, and a living allowance of $600 a year. These students will be required to take one course in Naval Science each term and to fulfil certain minimum requirements in English, mathematics, and physics. They will participate in two six-to-eight-week summer cruises and one eight-week period of aviation and amphibious indoctrination. Otherwise they may in general pursue at college the academic programs of their own choice. Upon graduation, they will be commissioned as officers in the Navy or Marine Corps and serve on active duty for a period of two years. Thereafter, many will have the opportunity to become career officers; others will transfer to the Reserve, where they will be trained and ready for service in the event of a national emergency.

"Whirligig" Is Chosen As Name for Annual

The contest to have a new name for the annual at Senior High this year has ended, and a name has been chosen by two members of the staff and two faculty members.

Jerry LeGwin submitted the winning name, "Whirligig," as name for the annual. The three reasons for this title are as follows:

- (1) Greensboro's famous son, O. Henry, wrote a story of that title.
- (2) The title is a play on the word "Whirlies," which is our team's name.
- (3) Definition of "whirligig" is "a pivot"—the South's pivot is Greensboro.

Council Has Info. Desk in Main Hall

An information desk, located in the main hall, is a new attraction of Senior High this year. Under the direction of Miss Dorothy McNairy, student council adviser, the welcoming committee of the student council put the desk in operation during the second week of school.

Flower Clinic Is Held At Senior High School

A Flower Arrangement Clinic is to be held at Senior High October 18. Mrs. M. Cochrane Cole from Bronxville, New York, will be the speaker.

The clinic will be divided into two periods. The morning session, 10:00-12:00, will be devoted to flower arrangements. The afternoon session, 2:00-4:00, will be concerned with mantel and table settings.

The Sunset Hills Garden club is sponsoring this meeting with the cooperation of other garden clubs throughout the city.

Miss Blackmon Lists Assembly Programs

Miss Blackmon has announced the list of assembly programs for the first semester.

Assemblies will be held each Tuesday morning unless otherwise designated. First, second or third periods alternately will be omitted.

- The assemblies are listed below:
- October 4—Open Council meeting.
- October 11—Athletic meeting.
- October 18—Senior forum.
- November 1—Open.
- November 9—Social Standards.
- November 15—Play practice.
- November 22—Thanksgiving program.
- December 1—Choir and orchestra.
- December 6—Glee club.
- December 12—Christmas program.

Local Station Presents Program on Television

A program about television and the local television studio was presented in chapel on Tuesday morning, September 26. It was sponsored by the Greensboro station, WFMY-TV.

Dale Kellar, director of audio-visual instruction in the city schools, introduced the speakers. First on the program was Bob Currie, Production Manager, who explained briefly the process of telecasting a program. Mr. Currie stated that much more manpower was required than in the radio field, and therefore jobs would be available for high school students who wished to train for this line of work.

Speaking after Mr. Currie was Norman Gittleson, Promotion Manager for the station. He talked to the students about the advertising and commercial side of television. Following Gittleson's speech, a feature movie on television was shown.
