

Seniors Compete Here at Senior For Duke Awards

Nine Senior High School students won the right to compete this week in district eliminations for the Angier B. Duke Scholarships. They are Elinor Wrenn, Sue Purdom, Nancy Benson, Margaret Pearce, Fred Upchurch, Bob Greeson, Bill Ferguson, David Bradley, and Alex Panas. The girls took their final examinations at Raleigh yesterday. The boys are being tested today.

These students were selected from seven boys and seven girls from Greensboro who took the preliminary tests last month.

Nine scholarships of $750 each are awarded annually to six men and three women. These are awarded for one year and are renewable from year to year for a maximum duration of four years, on the condition that the holder maintain a scholastic average in the upper quartile of his class, and further, that he show evidence of developing the qualities of leadership which served as the basis for the original selection.

Any resident of the state of North Carolina is eligible to apply, regardless of where he or she prepares for college, but they must be eligible for admission to Trinity College, the College of Engineering or the Woman's College. A candidate must have attained a scholastic standing in the highest 25 per cent of the class of last semester.

As students they should possess creative scholastic ability and a mind that can digest and use the knowledge which they acquire. These scholarships are designed to stimulate the recipients to become citizens with a genuine interest in society and ability to influence and direct the course of affairs.

A. I. S. C. Scholarship

Five students from county schools, five from Senior, and two from Curry will go before the College Entrance Board, March 11, in Winston-Salem, to pick two winners for the American Institute of Steele Construction Scholarship.

Sears-Roebuck Offer Scholarships

Sears-Roebuck Company, Greensboro, has offered through Mr. O. C. Jenkins, General Manager, ten $100 scholarships to worthy students at Senior for the college of their choice. These scholarships are being offered for the first time this year.

The applications of those interested are judged by a committee composed of the Dean of Students, Outside Activity Supervisors, Senior Class Adviser, and the Principal.

Red Cross Meets; Projects Discussed

Representative for the Junior Red Cross from Senior High met on Thursday, February 16, to discuss projects which they will undertake this semester.

A pencil campaign was started on Monday the 20th. G.H.S.-ers are asked to deposit any short pencils (five inches or under) in the designated boxes furnished to each home-room by these representatives. These pencils will be sent to veterans' hospitals.

It was announced by Constance Curry that the L. S. P. Club has made approximately twenty scrapbooks composed of jokes and cartoons. These will be distributed by the Junior Red Cross to veterans' hospitals.

Representatives for Senior High are Elizabeth McPheeters, Constance Curry, Patty Vaughn, Jody Wilkinson, Tommy Fesperman, and John Stuart. Faculty adviser is Mrs. Mary Madlin.

N. C. Press Group Adopts New Masthead

In noting the masthead, you will see the seal of the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute, which was adopted at the fall meeting at the University of North Carolina. This seal was designed by Keith Boyd of Durham and members of this institute decided that they would like to use it on the mastheads of their papers to indicate membership in the institute.

The executive committee which was elected in the fall meeting with Bob Williamson of Raleigh as president, will meet sometime this spring to make preliminary plans for next fall's institute.

Those attending the fall meeting from Greensboro were Anne Lewis,

Irene Hutchinson, Barbara Whittington, Elizabeth McCulloch, Rosalind Fordham, Tom Neal, Carolyn Lentz, Martha McIntosh, and Sam J. Underwood, faculty adviser. Tom Neal spoke on "Editorials," and Mr. Underwood made a talk on "Financing the School Paper."

Juniors Choose as Project Slogans on School Spirit

The Junior Class Council has undertaken a new and helpful project of this semester, that of impressing on students at Senior the importance of good school spirit.

Senior is a school of which students should be proud. In this school there are students and teachers of superior quality, the type of students who should have a perfect school spirit.

Nevertheless, certain phases of school spirit are lacking. Choosing the topic, "How You Can Show Your School Spirit," the juniors plan to leave this thought with the students daily.

In doing this, every week a new slogan will be chosen. The first slogan is, "Help keep the building and grounds clean and attractive." Senior has excellent buildings and a beautiful campus, and with the new paint job, it is up to individual students to keep it that way.

Each week the new slogan will be posted in the main building under the clock. Students are urged to watch this place for the new slogan each week.

Mrs. Grace Faver's art students are assisting the council and are making the posters. Those who worked on the first week's slogan are Bert Wade, Julia Blanchard, Virginia Harris, and Dot Michael. Mrs. Nellie Blackburn, junior class adviser, said that she appreciates all help received.
