Sympathy

The staff of High Life wishes to extend sympathy to Ann Hunter, upon the loss of her father, Mr. William Hunter, and to Delbert and Elbert Parrish, upon the loss of their sister.

Making plans for the Social Standards Day Program are Jerry Bryan, President of the Student Council, Henrietta Bell and Jimmy Betts, co-chairmen of the Social Standards Day Committee.

Vocational Group To Be Held; Frazier To Speak in Afternoon

The annual Social Standards Day will be observed in Senior High School on Thursday, November 16. Keynote speaker is to be the Reverend Kenneth Goodson, pastor of the Wesley Memorial Methodist Church in High Point. Mr. Goodson spoke on Social Standards Day four years ago when he was the assistant pastor of West Market Street Methodist Church here in Greensboro.

The topic will be "Our Wide, Wide World." It is designed to take in every phase of living in the world today, and students will have the opportunity to think about their vocation, entertainment, hobbies, the world situation, and the spiritual side of life. The program was developed by a student council committee, headed by Henrietta Bell and Jimmy Betts, with Miss Dorothy McNairy and Miss Lucille Brown as faculty advisers.

The students will go from homeroom to the morning assembly where Rev. Mr. Goodson will deliver his address. The program at this time will include music. From here, at about 10:30, students will go to various vocational interest groups.

Preference Shown

Of these vocations offered at this time, engineering for the boys and secretarial work and nursing for the girls seemed to be the most popular. Both teachers and students have assisted the committee in obtaining speakers for these group meetings. Business and professional men and women from Greensboro and several neighboring cities will lead discussion groups. Students will be assigned to their various groups in the homerooms.

From 11:45 to 1:15, a lunch and recreational period will be observed. The home economics department will prepare and serve lunch to the speakers for the day. Students will find several forms of entertainment and recreation at this time, the highlight being the traditional student-faculty softball game.

Frazier Speaks in Afternoon

After lunch, special interest groups will be held. Of these, the most popular were sports and music, although music as a vocation was in demand for the morning sessions also. Because of the large number signing up for the discussion group, "Korea As I Saw It," it was necessary to divide the applicants into two groups. John K. Wilson and Miss Mildred Cherry, both of whom have recently been to Korea, will be the speakers.

At 2:30, Robert Frazier will speak to the group as a whole. Pupils will return to their homerooms at this time and go in their regular groups to the auditorium for this talk. Mr. Frazier, who is mayor-pro-tem of Greensboro, will have as his topic, "The World Today."

American Education Week Is Observed by Various Activities

Greensboro Schools observed Wednesday, November 8 with a half holiday, but hundreds of teachers in the city observed it as Industry-Education Day. From 2:00 to 4:00 in the afternoon the teachers went about the city getting first hand information on the industries of Greensboro. Approximately 350 classroom teachers, principals, and supervisors were divided into 15-30 member inspection teams for the visits, following the tour's end discussion periods were held with officials of the companies.

The day was climaxed with banquet at the Starmount Country Club. Speakers for the occasion were Dr. B. G. Childs of Duke University, who spoke for education; and Dr. Franklin H. McNutt, dean of Woman's College and managing director of Greensboro Industries, Inc., who spoke for business.

Firms opening their doors to the teachers were: George C. Brown and Company, Blue Bell, Inc., Burlington Mills Corporation, Carter Fabrics, Carolina Paint and Varnish Company, Greensboro Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Cone Mills Corporation, Guilford Dairy, Mock Judson Voehringer Company of N. C., Container Corporation of America, Sears, Roebuck and Company's mail order plant, Wysong and Miles Company, and Vick Chemical Company.

Sponsor of the day was Greensboro Industries, Inc.

Another Observation of American Education Week

The speech class under the direction of Miss Mozelle Causey presented three scripts which were given to the entire student body over the loud speaker and also over the school radio station.

These scripts were: "Johnson's Caravan" presented on Tuesday, November 7, by Jack Ogburn, Garland Coble, Dickie Williams, Lucinda Calloway, Tommy Hubert, and Jean Calhoun; "We're New Here" with Howard Brewer, Norma Veney, Joe Cox, and John Ellington on Wednesday, November 8; "And To Secure Her Freedom" given on Thursday, November 9 with a cast which included DeArmon Hunter, Andrew Bristow, Joseph Hodgkin, Janet Davis, Jane Wilham, and Rita Schneider.

Annual College Day Is Held at Senior; Many Students Attend

College Day was held Thursday, November 2 here at Greensboro High School. Both Seniors and Juniors and a few Sophomores attended the conferences which were held in the library.

By consulting the representatives from the many schools, the students learned the following helpful information: the required entrance credits, cost, social life, curriculum, extra curricular activities, a special school for such as Journalism, Business Administration, and available scholarships or help. Many of the parents of students consulted the representatives also.

Those schools represented were: Wake Forest, State, Carolina, Duke, Clemson, Citadel, Woman's College, Salem, St. Mary's, Meredith, Peace, Brevard, Pfeiffer, Black Mountain, Avery, Sullins, Converse, Hollins, Stratford, Mary Baldwin, Sweet Briar, Agnes Scott, Mary Washington, University of Virginia, Guilford, High Point, Fairfax Hall, Virginia Intermont, Lenoir Rhyne, Catawba, Davidson, Atlantic Christian, Limestone.

The Home Economics Department had a luncheon for the guests and the members of Torchlight. Hosts for the event were the students who belong to the Honor Society.

During the week several other North Carolina cities held College Day, an annual event. This enabled the school to have more representatives here. It was due to the much greater number of contacts with students the representatives could make.

Those who represented the colleges gave various literature concerning the institutions to the students with whom they talked. They also showed the pupils annuals and other booklets from their respective schools.

Miss Mary York's home economics class prepared and served lunch to the college representatives on College Day, November 2.
