Page Eight

HIGH LIFE

UNC Student Teacher

UDSERVES CLASSES Recently the Science Depart-ment under the direction of Miss Blackburn has been under the observance of a certain Mr. R. M. Litaker of the University of North Carolina, student teacher. Mr. Litaker has been observing all phases of the classes offered by the Science Department of this school. In addition to the Biology classes, Chemistry and Physics, Classes, Chemistry and Physics, Classes, Mr. Litaker has been observing the Family Life Classes for which he will prepare an audit. A tpresent Mr. Litaker, a native of Concord, North Carolina and an air force pilot in the last war is doing undergraduate work at the University toward a B. S. de-gree. He will graduate this year and plans to enter some phase of school or community health edu-cation.

Observes Classes

VOCATIONAL CLASSES PLAN BANQU

Chancellor House Is Featured Speaker

FEGILIFED SPECIACE Amid a flurry of invitations, place cards, programs, and various plans, the students of both the Diversified Occupations and Dis-tributive Education classes are striving to make their Ninth An-nual Bosses's Banquet as success-ful as the eight previous pro-grams have been. This event, which is sponsored annually by the D. O. - D. E. cooperative part-time program of GHS, will be staged in the Masonic Temple on April 8 at 7:30 P.M: The Bosses's Banquet is design-ed by the students to honor em-play important roles in the co-parative program. Both students and their bosses look forward to this festive occasion when for mality is shed, and employers and omployees become better ac-quainted.

mality is shed, and employers and employees become better ac-quainted. Polished plans for the tradi-tional Bosses's Banquet are being discussed by a committee formed by presidents of D. O. and D. E. Clubs. Larry Russell, J. D. Phil-lips, Jaynelle Martin, Bob Gold-berg, Becky Phipps, and Carolyn Royal are holding regular sessions in order to complete preparations for the banquet on April 8. Approximately 300 will attend the program, including students, their employers, and special guests. Representatives of the Greensboro Chamber of Com-merce. Greensboro Industries, Greensboro Merchants' Associa-tion, North Carolina Employment Service, North Carolina State College, Woman's College, Na-tional Office Managers Associa-tion, Greensboro City School Board, State Department of Pub-lic Instruction, and the Greens-boro News Company have received invitations. School personnel, former co-ordinators, and co-ordinators from schools of the surrounding area are included on the guest list. Chancellor Robert B. House of the University of North Carolina will be the featured speaker at the annual affair. When the re-nowned educator, author, and editor addresses the group con-cerning "Resources," he will have his famous mouth harp. Entertaining numbers will be presented by talented students of the cooperative part-time program school or community health edu-cation. Litaker says that he is deeply impressed with the efficient mov-ing of the student body between classes. He stated that Greensboro High was the largest high school he had ever been in and was also one of the nicest. The precision dancers from Radio City, New York, the Rocketts, made a personal appearance during the campaign speeches. The young dancers performed one of their most difficult acts, and were received with great ovation by the student body. They are left to right: Unknown Female, Dickie Chalk, Alan Sharp, Jack Hardin, Lawrence Beall, and Jimmy Tunstall.

at the Bosses' Banquet. Glenda Cox and Shirley McEntire are rehearsing a specialty number on skates, while Sylvia Shore pre-pared to do the Charleston for the guests. Slated to appear as vocal soloists are Larry Russell and Louise Clark; Betty Welborn and Joanna Smith will offer a piano duet. A barber shop quartet formed by Bob Goldberg, Larry Russell, Gene Stout, and James Gordon will top off the student entertainment. Gene Frederick and Keenan entertainment. Gene Frederick and Keenan Neese will fill the positions of master and mistress of cere-monies. Place cards, entertain-ment, and decorations will carry out the Springtime motif.

dent seemed to be just an average mar to me. But at the present ime the United States needs more than an average man in the White dents of the cooperative program. Members of Miss Browne's classes have designed programs and place cards. This group will also handle seating arrangements at the Masonic Temple. Talented D. O. and D. E. stu-dents have been auditioned by a committee of Judges from Mr. Jones' classes which are in charge of entertainment. In Mrs. Hodden's classes stu-

In Mrs. Hodden's classes stu-dents are planning decorations PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Henry Ferrell, editor of High Life, appeared on Edward R. Mur-row's "See It Now" program at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, March 16. Henry gave his views of President Truman after hearing him speak at a banquet climaxing the 28th annual Columbia Scholastic Press Association Meet. "I was impressed more with what Mr. Truman represented than the man himself. The Presi-dent seemed to be just an average man to me. But at the present time the United States needs more than an average man in the White House," said Mr. Ferrell. Henry also conducted a round

| (-1 ) A | litch  | hell   | -Dixon        |
|---------|--------|--------|---------------|
| Entre   | OFFICE | SUPPLY | COMPANY, Suc. |

Necessities for Your Office Phone 3-6988 114 North Greene St. Greensboro. N.G.

... LANE'S LAUNDRY The Housewife's Friend