

Tentative Programs Announced by Choir

Under the able direction of Miss Eula Tuttle, the choir has begun to plan for the coming school year. First was the election of choir officers. The following members were chosen: Dickie Chalk, president; Stanley Wilson, vice-president; Barbara Prago, secretary; Larry Emerson, treasurer; Chris Velonis, librarian and Virginia Redread, accompanist.

Although no definite dates have yet been set, the choir will make several guest appearances. Vocal entertainments for the Civic Clubs of Greensboro and for both Greensboro and Woman's Colleges have been planned. These programs are popular with all choir members, the latter two especially so to the young gentlemen.

During the first week in December the choir and orchestra will stage their annual variety show which promises to be a real treat to all students.

After Christmas, with the assistance of the band, the choir will present a concert combining the talents of both organizations. Music, both vocal and instrumental, will comprise the program.

The choir will then begin to prepare itself in earnest for the year's climax, the state contest held in High Point.

The North Carolina Music Festival will be the final event. It will be held at Aycock Auditorium in Greensboro.

Torchlight Officers Chosen At Session

The scene is set, the lights are dimmed. Suddenly there is a tap on your shoulder and you experience the greatest thrill of your high school career. You are being inducted into Torchlight National Honor Society.

This group is made up of Senior's very best students. The first requirement for induction is scholarship. You must have a 90 or better semester average for your high school career. In addition to this requirement, you must also meet three others: leadership, character and service. The time to start working toward the goal of Torchlight is your very first day at high school.

Last spring Torchlight "tapped" five Juniors into the organization. This group began its semi-monthly meetings Thursday morning, September 11. At this meeting they elected officers and began making plans for the main events of this year. They are: College Day, for which Torchlight members act as host and hostesses, the annual Torchlight Talent Show, and both fall and spring Torchlight tapping ceremonies.

The group, which is composed of Ann Carlson, Joe Le Bauer, Joyce Lee, Pat Gregg and Virginia Redhead, elected the following officers: President, Joyce Lee; Vice President, Joe Le Bauer; and Secretary, Virginia Redhead.

History of New Teachers Reveals Varied Talents

also attended the Boston Museum School for four years. During World War II, he taught airplane mechanics in the Philippines and at various bases in the United States. He is interested in sports and has played football under Mr. Jamieson. At Carolina he won his letter in track and also was on the track team here at Senior High.

The new typing teacher, Miss Rowena Montague, graduated from East Carolina College and is now working on her master's degree. She makes her home in Oxford, North Carolina, a town in the eastern part of the state. Her special interests are travel and reading.

Mrs. Mary Siler, formally of High Point, is teaching biology here at G.H.S. She graduated from Elon College and came to us from Jamestown High School. Her special interest is travel, and she has toured the United States and Canada. She is also interested in photography and develops her own pictures.

Earey in Physical Education
Last, but not least, is the tall, red-haired Mr. Patric Earey, the new physical education teacher who is helping the football team this year. Mr. Earey graduated from the University of North Carolina, and this is his first year of teaching. His special interests are sports and reading.

Billy Hiatt To Head Playmasters Group

At the initial meeting of the Playmasters on September 18, Billy Hiatt was named president of the dramatics organization. Other officers of the group representing the three classes of speech and dramatics are as follows: Ann Falk, vice-president; Margot Hammond, secretary; and Nancy Cook, treasurer.

Class chairmen of the three groups which are taught by Miss Catey are Margot Hammond, second period; Sherold Klein, sixth period; and Billy Hiatt, seventh period.
