

Modest Seniors Fail To Claim Activities

Recently it seems that senior students were requested to record all extra-curricular activities on Whirligig activity blanks. More than adequate space was allotted, but in most cases, according to senior editor Ann Hobbs, students made use of only several lines. This can only be attributed to one of two things. Students either failed through lapse of memory to list all legitimate activities, or they did not dare to risk their all and reveal those which can only be termed as slightly questionable.

Since one and only one conclusion—the latter—can be reached by any wide-awake GHS student, an attempt will be made to produce said activity blank correctly. If students had listed all activities, the following would probably be typical:

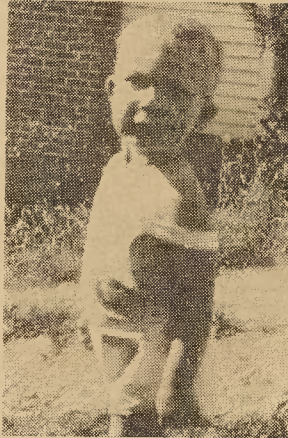

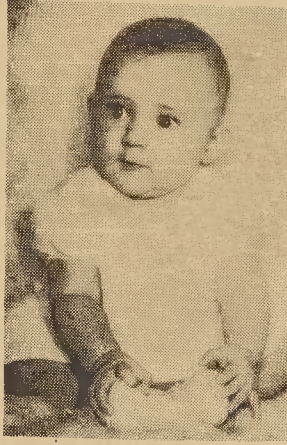

Assembly Programs: listened 2, did homework 3, slept 4; Cafeteria: at there 2, ate off campus 3, 4; Study Hall: studied 2, copied homework 3, talked 4; Cars: rode with Fran 4, spent semester in hospital 4; Steps: up up stairs 2, down down stairs 2, down up stairs 3, 4, up down stairs 3, 4; Latin Class: in one ear and out the other 2, 3, 4; Textbooks: locker 2, radiator 3, car 4; Band: practiced 2, Mr. Tonis 3, 4; Library: chewed gum 2, talked 3, no library privilege 4; Traffic Squad: directed traffic 2, sat on radiator 3, flirted with "girl of the hour" 4; Conditions: looked up at Seniors 2, looked down at Sophs 3, 4; Conditions: searched for elevator 2, resorted to stairs 3, 4; Torchlight: hoped 2, hoped 3, lost cause 4; GHS: scared 2, didn't know any better 3, not a care in the world 4.

Undoubtedly there are other "activities" in which GHS'ers participate, but space will not permit them to be printed.

Hurry, Sophs! You still have time to participate in all the preceding "undercover" features of high school life.

DAILY DOUBLES

By JOANNE GOURLEY

You should be able to recognize our little Miss X for this week by simply looking at her picture and noting those round, sparkling eyes that she is so fortunate to possess. This popular, brown-haired Junior, who is a member of the Les Seours Club, first rested those long-lashed eyes upon Mr. X when she was a wee Sophomore at G. H. S. and he was a mighty upperclassman.

Mr. X, who stands six feet in height, to her five feet, four inches, is a member of the Key Club, the Monogram Club, and the Hi-Y. If I really wanted to give the secret away I'd whisper that an outstanding performance on the athletic field earned Mr. X a lot of well-deserved mention only a couple of weeks ago, but since we like to keep this puzzle as difficult as possible, such an obvious feat will not be told.

Just about any day and any hour you can see the blue eyes of Mr. X meeting the glances of Miss X's beautiful hazel ones, for on October 11, 1952, this couple started going steady. She says that their favorite song changes with their mood, but the one that captures their fancy and that leaves them sentimental at the present is "Yours."

His favorite food is steak sandwiches and hers is ice cream, and as of yet they have no special peevs against each other.

Last week's well-known pair was David Lambeth and Peggy Welch.

City Teachers Make Tour of Industries

On Friday, November 12, the Greensboro Industries, Inc. presented its third annual Industry-Education program for the teachers of the Greensboro city schools.

A dinner meeting was arranged for the teachers at Starmount Forest Country Club. Tours of several local industries were arranged on Friday afternoon including: Cone Mills, Duke Power and Light Co., Reynolds Tobacco Co., Monarch Elevator Co., and the Textile Specialty Co.

A luncheon was given by the teachers of Senior High feting the local industrialists. The special guests were Mrs. Arthur Scott, president of the city P.T.A. council, Mr. B. L. Smith, superintendent of the city schools, and Mr. J. C. Cowan, a member of the school board.

Students Contribute To Junior Red Cross

The annual enrollment poster of the American Junior Red Cross, created by Joseph Binder, internationally famous artist, recognizes the thirty-fifth anniversary of the Junior division of The American Red Cross as founded on September 15, 1917, by President Woodrow Wilson.

Mrs. Mary Madlin, Junior Red Cross adviser, announced that one hundred per cent of the student body contributed during the 1952-53 drive. The total amount received was $113.36.
