

11 Couples Of Synonyms Members Of High School

Did you know that there are twenty-two synonyms at Senior High? Extraordinary as it may seem, there are eleven sets of people at school who well qualify for "The Name's the Same." Some vary by a letter or two, but the names sound enough alike to be very confusing upon occasions.

Two of them, Carol Apple, and Carolyn Apple, seniors, are even in the same home room. Just imagine roll call with two Apples bobbing up together.

Miss Joann Scott and Miss Joanne Scott have made things considerably harder for students by being teachers. They even go so far as to teach the same subjects.

Two fellows who wear identical nameplates are Jerry Varner and Jerry Varner. But Jerry Varner is a senior; so next year, if things run smoothly, Jerry Varner will have the sole honor of the name Jerry Varner. Bob Miller and Bobby Miller are in the same boat as the Jerry's. But with graduation just around the corner, Bob Miller optimistically states that, "Things are looking up for us Bob Miller's!"

Marie and Margie seem to be closely related also, especially when they both have a Mitchell tacked on the end of these monickers. Deanna Dixon and Dianne Dixon have something in common with Marie and Margie, for their names are close enough to be easily confused. When Deanna and Marie graduate on May 31, they will be two of the very few people who can boast leaving their names behind.

One surprising thing is that, while there are quite a few Smith's and Jone's at GHS, there are no duplicate first names. There is an abundance of Betty's, Jane's, Bob's Dick's, John's and Judy's around, but none of them could agree on a last name. However, Bill Ward and Bill Ward obviously hit a very happy medium when they chose names. But one happened to beat the other by a whole year, so one is a sophomore while the other rates juniorhood.

Two girls who giggle every time they think about the similarity of their names are Carol Barber and Carole Barber. Being in the same

French class presents quite a problem, but the junior partner is known as Carole Barber room 6; the other one, a sophomore, is Carol Barber room 12. Imagine having an antecedent all your life!

Jefferson was a Davis, and perhaps that's why two certain girls didn't choose "Jeff" as a front flicker . . . they didn't want to be confused with the original. But problems will always arise. The Davis girls are Carolyn and Carolina. This proves to be quite a diction test for their home room teacher.

"Nancy Martin, come here this minute!" shouts the teacher. But what is a poor pedagogue to think when two Nancy Martin's come bounding to her beck and call? This is a very possible problem, for within the halls of Ye Olde Alma Mater there are two Nancy Martins. But the situation is eased slightly by the fact that one is a sophomore and the other a junior.

So if you call someone and some two come running, as in the case of the two Nancy Martin's, perhaps you will understand. It isn't April Fool, they're merely a couple of synonyms.

Graham Winner Of Civitan Essay Contest

Susan Graham has been named state winner of the Civitan Club essay contest on "Privileges and Duties of Citizenship." Susan was a county winner several weeks ago and received a $15 award on her essay. Then, her essay was entered in the state contest, and last week she was notified that she was one of the four finalists. The finalists appeared on a Civitan program in High Point Saturday night, with Susan being named the top winner from that group.

Susan was awarded a $100 scholarship, and became eligible to enter the National Civitan contest in the summer.

She is active in several phases of school life at Senior, and is a member of the Torchlight Society and editor of the annual.
