

DAILY DOUBLES

By Mary Wheeler

Well, well, caught in the act! Miss X seems to be getting in some practice for the future. A bit of advice to Mr. X: "Best better not be late for Miss X another time." We'll leave them to the fate of the rolling pin for awhile.

Our Daily Doubles are both juniors and have been going steady since June 30, 1955.

Mr. X, a 5 foot, 10 inch boy with blond hair and hazel eyes, attends South Elm Street Baptist Church. His school activities include being a junior marshal, and playing the cornet in the Marching Band. Mr. X, who went to Gillespie before coming to Senior, can be found usually with Lofus Neese. His pet peeve is doing homework.

These Daily Doubles agree that their favorite song is "He," but they disagree on food. He likes fried chicken while she prefers Angel Hash.

Miss X, who came from Rankin, attends the Buffalo Presbyterian Church and is a member of the FTA and the HIGH LIFE staff. Her pet peeve, as we can gather from the picture, is Mr. X's being late. Miss X is an officer in the county for the 4-H Club and can usually be found with Helen Payne.

Miss X recalls an amusing incident as "the time Mr. X was teaching me to drive and I almost tore up his car. He thought it was

Diversified Occupation Offers GHS Students Opportunity To Work

"Earn while you learn" is the motto of the Diversified Occupations office practice workers who are students in the morning and paid employees in the afternoons.

The 50 junior and senior girls who make up the D.O. group this year are just like all the rest of the students from 8.30 a. m. until 12 p. m. But at that time they leave all that behind to take their places in the affairs of the business world of the city.

These girls study many textbooks, such as business magazines, fashion magazines, booklets, newspapers, and the literature of the companies who cooperate with Mrs. Kathryn McEntire, the D.O. coordinator, and the school. They are also learning the three R's, reading, writing, and arithmetic. These are studied so that the student will be a well-adjusted member of the business community, so she will understand others; and so that she will understand herself. Good personal grooming a pleasing personality, and a willingness to work are their most effective tools on the job, besides the basic technical skills.

The firms of the city have repeatedly evidenced their interest in this program by employing the student learners year after year. The companies who take part range from Pilot Life Insurance Company, Blue Bell, and Burlington Industries to small offices in which the D.O.er may be the only office worker, besides the boss. Approximately 50 different kinds of jobs and 25 different companies are represented. The jobs vary from Ediphone operators and library to telephone operators and library assistants.

The D. O. coordinator is gladly given permission by the companies to go into the departments to see how her students are getting along and to give them some pointers on how to improve on the job. This helps the employers rather than hinders them, because they know that the time the teacher takes will be made up in improved office skills and manners.

Besides the class work and the "laboratory work" these girls find time for weiner roasts, field trips, and movies about subjects which are related to their jobs.

Student Teachers From Colleges Gain Experience In GHS Classes

Have you ever wondered about the student teachers who are working here—where they came from, where they plan to go after graduating from college, and what they want to teach? Well, here's some first-hand information about five of the student teachers.

Miss Margaret Ann White, a senior at Guilford College, is teaching English in one of Mrs. Jean Newman's classes. Miss White, who attended Woodland-Olney High School in her hometown, Woodland, North Carolina, plans to teach English in Maryland next year. Besides being president of the Women's Student Government, Miss White is a member of the Guilford College A Cappella choir, a member of the Honor Board, the Woman's Athletic Association, and is vice-president of the Student Affairs Board. When asked what her impression of Senior High was, Miss White replied, "An hour a day can hardly give one a complete picture. Even so, my impression is that Senior is quite an outstanding high school."

Teaching French in Miss Estelle Mitchell's class is Mrs. Uile Shoaf, who is a senior at Guilford College. She graduated from Bridgeton High School in Bridgeton, New Jersey. Mrs. Shoaf, who is a member of the International Relations Club, Future Teachers of America, and the French Club, plans to teach in Winston-Salem next year.

In one of Mrs. Grace Alton's Algebra 1 classes is Miss June Bunn, who is majoring in mathematics at Greensboro College. She graduated from Nashville High School in Nashville, North Carolina, her hometown and hopes to teach next year in Maryland. Miss Bunn, a member of the Math Club, Future Teachers of America, and the College Honor Society says, "Coming from a small college as well as a small high school, my first impression of Senior High was one of its large size. However, I soon found that the students were just as friendly and courteous as were those of the smaller educational system. Through my pleasant contacts with Greensboro Senior High students, faculty, and administration, this first step in the profession of my choice has been both challenging and inspiring."

Miss Alice Normile, a Guilford College senior, is teaching one of Mrs. Blanche Smith's history classes. She attended the Melbourne High School in Melbourne, Florida, and hopes to teach at the New England High School. Miss Normile is a member of the International Relations Club, and the History Club. "The students are very friendly for such a large school," Miss Normile says of Senior High.

Teaching history in one of Mr. Long's classes is Charles Trafford, who is majoring in history at Guilford College. Mr. Trafford, who attended Manasquan High School in Manasquan, New Jersey, has no definite plans as to where he will teach next year.

"I believe I shall teach in New Jersey or Pennsylvania for a few years and then go into Educational Services for Public Schools in Pennsylvania," says Mr. Trafford. He is the treasurer of the Senior Class at Guilford, president of the College History Club, a member of the Monogram Club and Future Teachers of America Club. He also has played varsity baseball for three years and was captain last year. Says Mr. Trafford, "Senior High has impressed me very favorably. The organization of students and activities is very well-rounded and is very important toward good school life. The students are attentive and well-disciplined and the friendly attitude of all the people, faculty, and students, makes one feel comfortable and at home. It was with great surprise that I recognized the conscientious effort of the students to get an education."

Hobby Horsing

By Judy Shallant

Did you know that we have right here in Greensboro one of the most beautiful and largest toy and hobby stores in the entire South: namely the Summit Toy and Hobby Shop in the Summit Shopping Center plenty of free parking).

On this trip I was interested in games suitable for us teenagers.

I never realized that so many games existed; the Summit Toy Store certainly did not miss me.

For the more serious ones, there is a very big selection of chess sets, even extra boards. For those who follow the TV shows, I noticed: Masquerade Party, Truth or Consequences, What's My Line, etc., all priced very reasonably.

But I like excitement, and by gosh, they do have exciting, thrilling games, like Mr. Rhee, Clue, and a few other detective games.

Much to my surprise, I saw quite a few "Scrabbles", that famous word-game (which is still hard to get, so I understand).

The Summit Toy and Hobby Store certainly has a vast selection.—Ad.
