

PIX BITS

By Elwood Hartman

For those of you who haven't finished your Christmas shopping and need some suggestions for gifts, here is an important tip from the CAROLINA THEATRE. On sale now in the box office are theatre ticket books priced at $1, $2.50, and $5. Why not give these gifts to all your teenage friends? I'm sure they will enjoy them.

For your special holiday entertainment, Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis are coming your way in that side-splitting comedy, "Artists and Models." Dean, an aspiring young artist, and Jerry a budding would-be writer, are again teamed up in another of their fabulous slapstick comedies. Because these two zany characters live in the apartment house with a comic book illustrator, several amusing and highly entertaining coincidences occur.

Of course, as the title foretells, "Artists and Models" is not third grade entertainment. It is kept quite spicy by the supporting roles of the beautiful and gorgeous Shirley MacLaine, Dorothy Malone, Eva Gabor, and Anita Ekberg. Neither purely adult entertainment or Circle K variety, "Artists and Models" is just steamy enough for real enjoyment.

For all Martin and Lewis fans, this holiday treat will be especially interesting to you. After all, who doesn't enjoy Dean and Jerry?

Stars for Seals

Rosemary Clooney, Paramount singing star, will be heard throughout the country in a transcribed radio show for the annual Christmas Seal Sale now being conducted by the 3,000 tuberculosis associations affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association.

Junior Classical League Has Christmas Program

Members of Junior Classical League conducted their annual Christmas program December 7, in Mrs. Tuttle's Room 309.

To start the program, all club members sang "Adeste Fideles." David Miller, JCL member, read The Roman Saturnalia, a Roman religious celebration.

David Craig, JCL president, Gordon Egbert, vice-president, Jean Ogburn, secretary, and Ruth Hunt, treasurer, lighted the Saturnalia Candles.

Elwood Hartman played a piano solo, "Jesu, Bambino." Accompanied by Elizabeth Sutton, Jane Lynch sang "O, Holy Night."

The Christmas Story was read in English by Margie Rose, and in Latin, by Jerry Danford.

All the members sang "Hark The Herald Angels Sing," and "Silens Nox". Jay DeFell concluded the program by reading a Christmas Prayer.
