

Jr. Civitan Club Formed By Group of GHS Boys

Greensboro High School's Junior Civitan Club, a service organization consisting of 30 boys, is the first junior club of its kind in the surrounding area.

Its members, who are chosen by merit of leadership and scholarship, meet every Wednesday night for dinner meetings at the Mayfair Cafeteria. The club, which has for its purpose, service to the school, has for its advisers, Dr. K. I. Andreve, a Greensboro orthodontist, and William E. Taylor, a member of GHS's faculty. The club has taken on several projects such as selling fruit cakes for the senior club, maintaining the bulletin board in the main hall, selling tickets to athletic events, and is considering publishing a handbook for the school in the future.

Charter members of the club are Reggie Bell, Dave Bescherer, Bob Herford, Robert Hewett, Larry Hoyle, Bose Ravenel, and Jan Hensley, seniors; Rick Aderhold, Lee Cory, Chip Durham, Stratton Eldridge, Fred Hitchcock, Paul McGwier, Peyton Neal, Karl Ray, Currie Singetary, Allen Thomas, and Ronnie Buchanan, juniors; Jimmy Eskridge, Edgar Sockwell, Bob McNairy, Roy Michaux, Larry Wachter, Harry Smith, and Spencer Gaylord, sophomores. These members were sent letters inviting them to join when the club was organized in November. Later in January, Edmund Schenck and Dave Plyler, seniors; Butler Bennett, junior; and Wallace Williams and Allen Andrew, sophomores, were voted into the club.

Serving as officers are Bob Herford, president; Karl Ray, vice president; Stratton Eldridge, secretary; Edgar Sockwell, treasurer; Currie Singetary, sergeant-at-arms; and Jan Hensley, chaplain.

Dramatic Class Choose Contest One-Act Dramas To Be Enacted At W. C.

Selections have been made by the dramatics classes of the one-act plays to be presented at the district dramatics contest at Woman's College and at Senior High on March 15.

"When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet," a comedy in one act written by Charles George, will be dramatized by the junior group of Playmasters.

Susan Glaspell is the writer of "Trifles," the presentation to be made by the seniors.

The sophomore dramatists will produce "Grandma Pulls the String" by Edith Barnard Delano and David Carb.

These three one-act plays will first be dramatized on March 15, at 8 p. m. in the school auditorium. Then they will be given by the groups at the district dramatics contest at Aycock Auditorium. All other schools in this district will also give plays for the approval of the judges.

The plays that receive a sufficiently high rating will be given the "go-signal" for the state contest, which is in Chapel Hill, North Carolina at the University of North Carolina.

WHIRLIGIG'S deadline has been met according to Miss Virginia Powell, publication adviser. The traditional volume, this year 16 pages longer than previous editions, will cost over $6,000 to print. The books should return from the Lassiter Press in Charlotte during the last week in May. Above are members of WHIRLIGIG staff giving the "dummy" a last check before sending it off to press. From left to right are Judy Schaffer, Bose Ravenel, Jane McLennan, Miss Virginia Powell, Carolyn Whittington, and Martha Williamson.

D. E. Classes Take Tour Of Daily Newspaper Plant

February 15, after a dutch supper at the Mayfair Cafeteria, the Distributive Education classes took a field trip to Greensboro Daily News office in order to learn about the publication of the morning paper.

Joe Herndon, a member of the Distributive Education program, won the third highest honor in North Carolina for the Christmas decoration of the window at the Shell service station where he works. This contest was on a business level and not a school level.

The juniors and the seniors taking D. E. for the first year are being taught by a student teacher, Miss Mary Anne Sherrill, from Woman's College. She is studying to be a D. E. co-ordinator. Miss Sherrill is also helping the D. E. Club in its activities.

Plans are being made for the 12 annual State Distributive Education Convention to be March 2 and 3. Officers for the state will be elected at that time.

After a full day of activities at the convention, a banquet is to be in the O. Henry Ballroom, March 2. On March 3 the officers and winners of contests will be announced and the new officers installed.

The classes are also making plans for the annual Bosses Banquet that is to be March 13 at the Masonic Temple. To be present at the banquet will be members of the D. O., D. E., and D. O. trade classes, and a representative of the companies for which the students work. Approximately 300 persons will attend.

Angela Butt Winner Of B. Crocker Prize

Angela Butt, a senior at GHS, was the recipient of a pin and an opportunity to enter the state competition when she took top place over 105 Senior High girls in the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow contest on December 6.

The contest was sponsored by General Mills, and its purpose was to find the homemakers of tomorrow.

Upon being notified by Mr. Routh two weeks ago that she had won, the surprised Angela commented, "I've never even taken any home economics."

Any senior girl from any high school in the United States was permitted to take the test, which consisted of questions about cooking, sewing, and home living in general. Home economics training was not necessary for qualification.

The awards for the state winners are a $1500 scholarship to any college for any subject and also an education tour to be taken in April of Washington, D. C., Colonial Williamsburg, and Philadelphia. The national award is $5000.

Townsend New Aide For School's Library; Replaces Mrs. Ayers

If any of you have been wondering who the new worker in the library is, it's the new assistant librarian, Mrs. Stella Townsend, filling in for Mrs. Kathryn Ayers who has resigned.

This is not Mrs. Townsend's first job in a high school; she was a librarian at Waynesville High School for two years. For seven years she was assistant director of the Greensboro City School libraries; however, she resigned that job about a year and a half ago to be at home with her children.

Mrs. Townsend's hometown is Boone, and she attended Appalachian College where she majored in social studies and library science.

"Miss Herring put me right to work when I got here," says Mrs. Townsend. "There's a lot to be done with term papers beginning. I have to check and pull cards and help students with their term papers."

Next year she plans to leave library work for awhile and return to her housekeeping and her children. She has a little girl three years old and a little boy 15 months old. Her husband works for the GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS.

Mrs. Townsend's main job is assisting Miss Herring. Besides that, she helps the students find materials and attends to the audio-visual circulation.
