

Taking a "chaperone's holiday" are teachers Bob Jamieson, Mrs. Mary Siler, and Miss Louise Smith. The picture in the center is the changing of the guards at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery. This was viewed by seniors who took the annual Washington trip two weeks ago. Carolyn Whittington was the photographer for these Washington snapshots.

Diabolique Starts May 13 In City Victory Theater

BY SUE HOFFMAN

"With" the purchase of this ticket, I do hereby agree that I, the party of the first part, in consideration of the fullest enjoyment of this film by other parties, will not by my own free will or under duress, directly or indirectly, reveal the ending of DIABOLIQUE to my relatives, friends, or even enemies."

Why are patrons asked to sign this "Article of Agreement?" No climax can be that important to a picture! That's what you think --I shall say nothing more--after seeing DIABOLIQUE, you'll need no further explanation.

If thrills and chills is your dish, the skipped heartbeats and edge-of-the-seat anxieties you'll experience at this unusual movie will suit you to a "T". The setting is a boys' school in suburban Paris where Monsiur Delasalle conducts affairs with a, shall we say, firm hand.

Both his wife and his paramour are embittered by his dictatorial methods, so the ladies form a secret conspiracy to put the Monsieur "out of commission," which they effectively do by giving him poisoned whiskey and putting him in a bathtub (full of water, naturally) in an old country house. They return to their hideout after taking the dead body and depositing it in the school swimming pool, convinced of a perfect alibi.

Everything's fine, until—the pool is emptied for cleaning, and the body isn't there! At this point, DIABOLIQUE reaches a feverish pitch of suspense, and, if you're capable of any feeling, you'll start biting those fingernails off three at a time. Of course, the villainesses are having a pretty acute case of nerves themselves, when . . .

By the way, DIABOLIQUE starts at the VICTORY THEATRE May 13.—AD.

Female Athletes Of GHS Attend Play Day at WC

Girls from the GHS physical education classes are attending a play day at Woman's College today to compete in ping-pong, bowling, volleyball, and relay races.

This is the state high school play day, and approximately 30 schools will attend. Last year 32 schools were there with a total attendance of over 500 girls.

Petitesa Klenos and Prissy Wyrick will represent Senior in ping-pong. The volleyball team will be composed of Elaine Kithas, Lynn Rankin, Martha Yates, Pat Gilley, Shelba Creed, Kathleen Satterfield, Bobbie Tice, Joy Brown, Janice Black, Ann Bolding, Lillian Lovings, Billie Jessup, Carolyn Hinshaw, and Brenda Ammons.

These girls will also make up the bowling and relay teams.

Athletic equipment will be awarded to the winners of the various events at which WC physical education majors will officiate.

After the play day today at W. C. the Girls' Athletic Association is going to Ocean Drive beach for the week end. Miss Margie Gabriel is going to be the chaperon for the group. Martha Yates, Cynthia Burley, Vickie Stewart, Bobbie Tice, Shelba Creed, Joy Brown, Kathleen Satterfield, and Lynn Rankin will be the ones going.

Soon after their return the association will be voting on the girl to receive the athletic cup.

Malones Instructors Of Tennis Teams

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Malone are instructing the girls' tennis team which was just organized this year.

There is both a beginning and advanced group of girls.

The first match was played at Burlington, and the GHS girls were defeated.

Prissy Wyrick, Lynn Rankin, Liz Sutton, Jane Lynch, Ruth Mary Stanley, and Alleyne Garton went to Burlington as the team.

Others that are out for tennis are Jeris Edwards, Elizabeth Antrim, Nancy Neill, Pat Howell, Bobbie Jean Williams, Marsha Bumpass, Mary Katsikas, Diana Harmon, Sarah Jo Stanley, Paula Tuttle, Ann Robinson, Peggy Sink, Becky Tuck, Nancy Brothers, Molly White, Susan Brooks, Jeanine Van Kerckhove, Donna Williams, and Valinda Beall.

They have matches scheduled with Winston-Salem, Salisbury, and Burlington.
