

Of College Applications It's Greek To Me: Po' Soul

After hearing from the seniors about all the red and black tape you must go through simply to apply for college entrance, Po' Soul decided that even though he wouldn't graduate for one, two, maybe three years he would get ahead and send in his applications now. You know, "Mail early and avoid tht Christmas rush."

Please note the word applications. Po' was strongly advised against only applying to one college. The theory is that you may then take your pick (or shovel if you must dig for it) of the schools at which you are accepted.

Po' is not worrying now about being accepted, however. At the moment his main trouble is getting his applications completed by the deadline. There are so many little details. Try folding something 87 pages long according to the prescribed instructions. Po' spent one and one half hours accordion pleating one choice number last week. Three whole dollars and another two hours were spent in the "Self-Photo" booth in Woolworth's basement just making pictures to "attach here."

But getting the things folded and the pictures pasted on wasn't the hard part. That came when he had to translate the applications into understandable colloquialisms or as the case may be (and in fact is low-brow slang.)

Here are a few of the questions which especially puzzled Po. Are you a naturalized citizen? "Am quite natural, thank you. Will forward certificate of birth from hatchery as soon as possible."

Do you wish a A.B., B.S., M.D., M.S., B.C.E., B.E.E., M.M.E., or A.M.? "I have already received my A.B.C. but would not mind having another. Please send the price list."

Estimated sources of income for freshman year. (please be frank.) "I am very sorry, but I have no desire to be Frank, Herman, Melville, or anyone else. I am content with being just Po'. It would also appear you are advising me to avoid the tax collector by changing my name.

Concert, Activities Bands Present Joint Program

Greensboro Senior High School's Bands presented a joint program Thursday, January 17, in the Senior High auditorium.

The Training Band, conducted by J. R. Still, opened the program with Morning, Noon, and Night Overtures by von Suppe. Next was Colonel Bogey March by Kenneth Alford, which was followed by Emperor Waltz, the creation of Johann Strauss. David Bennett's George Gershwin Selections concluded the first half of the program.

Concert Band Began

After the intermission the Concert Band, conducted by Herbert Hazelman, began the second half of the program. The first two numbers were Iphigenia in Aulis, by Christoph von Gluck, and Polka and Fugue, by Jaromir Weinburger. My Fair Lady selections by Loewe-Bennett and the 1812 Overture Solennelle by Tschaiakowsky ended the last portion of the program.

Premier Performance

The performance of Blankenberg March is the premiere of the work in Greensboro, if not in the entire United States. David Arner found this march in a little music store in Frankfurt, Germany, and transcribed it for the standard American band.

Mr. Arner conducted the My Fair Lady selections.

The concert was free in order to show the band's appreciation for the support given them by the community.

Daily Doubles

While Miss X is watching her beau practice his saxophone, let's find out a little about them.

Very conclusively, Mr. X's hobby is playing in the ever-popular dance band at Senior, and as you can see Miss X's hobby is listening to him. Incidentally, his favorite subject is band.

Mr. X, a green-eyed, brown-haired senior standing 6 feet 1 inch is President of the Les Amis Hi-Y Club and is a member of the G-30s. His hardest subject is French.

Miss X, a brown-haired, brown-eyed senior standing five feet, 4 inches, is a member of the WST Club. Her favorite subject is family life, while her hardest is history.

The Daily Double couple, who started going steady May 6, 1956, enjoys ham and cheese on rye, and "Moonglow," as that was the song playing when Miss X was asked to go steady.

Mr. X, however, doesn't enjoy girls who say "no lie," and she doesn't approve of "fussin' and fightin'."

If you notice a boy playing a sax at one of the open houses and a girl standing nearby, that will be the Daily Double couple.

Garvin, Sutton Attend Rotary Club Meetings

Libby Garvin and Liz Sutton, daughters of two of the Rotary Club members, were selected to attend the club meeting for the month of January.

Every Monday during the month of January from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. Libby and Liz will attend the luncheon meeting and program of the local Rotary Club, an international business organization.

For the months up to January, members of the football team went to the meetings although they were not necessarily children of the Rotary Club members.
