

Senior High Represented In 1957 Orchestra Event

piece group presents the 1957 All-State Orchestra Concert. This concert is set for 2:30 p. m. in the auditorium and is open to the public.

Under the direction of Henry Janiec, assistant professor of Music at Converse College and conductor of the Spartanburg Symphony Orchestra, the All-Staters will present an hour-and-a-half program. Numbers to be played include the Overture to "Orpheus In the Underworld Overture" by Offenback; "Symphony No. 4" by Tschalkovski; "Carmen Suite No.

1" by Bizet; "Roumanian Rhapsody No. 1", by Enesco; and "Three Sketches" by Gills.

Greensboro Senior High is represented in All-State by 26 orchestra members. First violinists chosen are Julia Adams, Kay Eastertling, Nan Hedrick, Lynn Rankin, and Janet Snider. Susan Deveny, Peggy Earle, Betty Harrell, Dorothy Klutz, and Janice Thompson are the second violinists, while Doris Guill is flutist and Jerry Robertson plays the bass.

Brynnar, Bergman Star In Film Starting Sunday

By Jane Thompson

Starting Sunday at the CAROLINA THEATRE is "Anastasia," starring Ingrid Bergman, who returns to motion pictures after a seven year absence, Yul Brynner, and Helen Hayes.

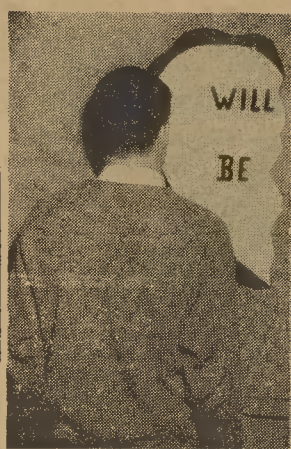

The story itself is about a Russian ex-general and his associates who intend to pass off another woman as the Grand Duchess Anastasia in order to gain control of a fortune that is being held in a bank for her.

A woman who resembles the authentic Anastasia is chosen and trained for the part, but in reality she is Anastasia.

Up to a point the story is based on fact. There lives today in a Black Forest Village of Germany, a 54-year old woman who goes by the name of Mrs. Anna Anderson, but who claims to be the Grand Duchess Anastasia.

She tells a story of being rescued from a massacre of the Imperial Family and smuggled across the Roumanian border by two deserters from the Soviet Army.

In the filming of this intriguing tale, many of the refugees who escaped at the same time as Anna Anderson have a part in the picture. Shooting of the film took place in Paris, London, and Copenhagen. —Ad.

Scholarship Plaques Awarded To Classes

Senior High home rooms received the scholarship plaques for having the highest scholastic averages.

The sophomore home room winner was Mrs. Martha W. Hundley's room 24 with an average of 83.38, while Mrs. Blanche H. Smith's room 203B was second with an average of 83.06.

Junior winner was Mrs. Jean Newman's home room 305 with an average of 86.36, and Clifford Long's room 301 came in second with 85.79.

Mrs. Nancy Edwards' home room 8 won first place for the Senior Class with an average of 86.56, and Miss Mildred Maddox's home room 306 was second with 86.54.

10 GHS Boys Attend All-State Band Program

Chapel Hill, North Carolina, was the scene of the annual All-State Band Program in which 10 GHS band students participated last week-end, February 1-3.

This year's representation from Greensboro included only boys, as housing problems in Chapel Hill ruled out all girls who do not live in or around the university. GHS boys making the trip stayed in one of the UNC dormitories.

The boys left Greensboro Friday, February 1, at 12 p. m. and returned late Sunday night. The three-day program included rehearsals, a banquet, and a final concert. Going from Greensboro were Larry Brown, French horn; William David Miller, bass; Bobby Baynes, clarinet; Bobby Johannessen, bass clarinet; David Craig, clarinet; Bob Teague, alto clarinet; Bob Miller, coronet; Bob Wilkinson, drums; David Miller, French horn; and Rufus Russell, oboe.

Daily Doubles

BY PATTY SLADE

I'm certain our broken heart fits together because Miss Arrow and Mr. Bow have been dating steadily since the middle of May, 1954. They had their first date April 2, 1954.

Miss Arrow is a junior, as is Mr. Bow, and both have brown hair. Miss Arrow, who is 5 feet 6 inches tall, hails from Lindley and is a member of the LSP Club and is on the HIGH LIFE staff.

Mr. Bow, 5 feet 11 inches tall and also from Lindley, is the 165 pound wrestler on the Whirlie wrestling team. He was a guard on the co-championship football team. His most ardent fan, of course, is Miss Arrow.

The Valentine couple love to feast on pizza pie while listening to "If You Love Me" and "Love Is Strange." Some contrast!

"One in a Million" stands a favorite for Miss Arrow as she has beaten her beau only once at miniature golf.

Miss Arrow plans to go to Woman's College to further her study in business, and Mr. Bow is contemplating several colleges. Short-hand is Miss Arrow's favorite subject, while Mr. Bow prefers his Bible class.

The daily couple in last issue was Emily Hargrove and Dennis Maynard. This week's couple you will find in the direct path of Cupid's arrow.

On Movies Po' Says 'Longer Than Ever'

Through the fog the lights of the passing cars and the overhead street lamps looked like blobs of mashed potatoes on grandma's best black dress when Po' Soul snuck out of the house that night. Keeping back from the street Po' walked meticulously but clumsily up the lonely avenue. Suddenly at the edge of a park he disappeared into a clump of pine trees and presently reappeared riding the slender Sloborian bike he had stashed there before supper.

Arrives at Theatre

It was a little over 15 minutes later when Po' reached the parking lot, fell off his bike, locked on his "Dragnet" horn, and ran up the block only to stand stock still in surprise when he realized there were already two hundred and four, five, six, seven people ahead of him in the line standing under the glittering marquee of the Carolina Indoor Moon Theatre where the new five hour and 17 minute long Cinnamon Scope Watercolor Dogpatch Production of "It's a Gigantic or How to Shake a Leg" starring Elvis Presley is showing.

Then horror of horrors—in all the rush Po' Soul has lost his student card and must pay full price. There goes a month allowance.

Show Begins

Po' couldn't get his favorite seat down by the statue of Venus de Milo but had to take one about a third of the way down over near the illuminated "Exit" sign. He had just adjusted his monocle, opened his duffle bag, and gotten engrossed in the 45 minute travel short on the latest thing in African tribal pop when someone in the balcony under the edge of which he was sitting, emptied a cup of used ice down his back. At this action Po' let out a savage scream upon which the lady three seats down commented thusly; "This stirrhythmic sound is really the living and, n'est pas?"

During intermission Po' got out Walden which he had to have ready for a book report in first period English in about four hours, and finished off the last of his onion sandwiches with "AI" sauce. Po' had come to the 2:30 a. m. showing so he wouldn't have to skip any classes. After all, they were going to have assembly today.

Many Contests Now Open To Senior High Students

"Employment of the Handicapped—A Community Responsibility" is the subject of an essay contest sponsored by Employ the Handicapped Commission. The essay has a 1500 word limit and must be submitted not later than February 26. The state prize for this contest is a $600 college scholarship. First place winner of the national contest will receive a $1.00 government bond.

Another essay contest, "The Advantage of Private Medical Care," sponsored by The North Carolina Medical Association, is also being held during the month of February. The essay has a 1200-word limit and is due not later than February 26. First place winner for the state will receive a $100 check.

More Contests

Another essay contest which is open only to seniors is the National Peace Essay Contest that closes March 31. The first prize is a $1,000 government bond. There are two subjects on which the entrant may write. The first is a quote from A. A. Berle, former assistant Secretary of State. "What is needed is a declaration of moral principles to guide the American government in international relations. These principles would help build a free system so strong and so productive that every people cut off from the free world would seek to join it."

Quote of President

The second subject is a quote made by President Eisenhower from an address he made to the United Nations in 1953. "The whole book of history reveals mankind's never-ending quest for peace and mankind's God-given capacity to build." Students writing on this topic should evaluate the contributions the United States has made to peace since World War I and what further contributions it can make towards universal lasting peace.

The Odd Fellows of Greensboro sponsor a United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth each year. This year the subject of the speech contest is "My Community and World Affairs." The contest will take place March 1.
