Fredrickson Relates Exchange Experience

BY GENIE SYKES

Robert Fredrickson, history teacher and assistant orchestra director, at Senior High School, was a part of the exchange between nations last year. He received a Fulbright Grant for exchange teaching in Israel, being the first American to teach in that troubled spot.

In this age of conflict, the understanding of and sharing with other peoples is an all-important factor if we are ever to gain world peace. Our nation has finally awakened to that fact; therefore, along with increased diplomacy among nations, we have now enacted an exchange of individuals with these nations. This program is more important because it leads the citizens of these nations to better understanding of the truth about other countries.

To receive the grant Mr. Fredrickson applied to the State Department and indicated his interest in teaching overseas. He was then screened and interviewed by four professors at the University of North Carolina. The data being sent back to the State Department, they later notified him that

Home Room 5 Is Winner Of Bulletin Board Contest

Mrs. Evelyn Stanton's home room 5 placed first for a prize of $3 in the College Day Bulletin board contest, sponsored by the Student Council, October 16.

Second place winner for $2 was room 7, Miss Peggy Ann Joyner's, and room 9, Miss Ruth Scarborough's won the third prize of $1.

The winning bulletin board featured a modern cardboard stork holding the traditional bag in his bill—a grab bag of college names. Yellow and black letters announce the arrival of Joe College October 21, 1958, whose proud parents are Mr. and Mrs. G.H.S. The bulletin board chairman of room 5 was June Rubin.

A crepe paper girl, dressed in red, was the center of Miss Joyner's bulletin board, with the question, "Are you going to college?" on one side and "Which one will you choose?" on the other. The little girl held a list of credits and a diploma in either hand and her suitcase showed college stickers. Also on the bulletin board was a typed list of accredited colleges.

The third place bulletin board was headed by the words "College Day, Peace Through Education" and showed red paper faces of men wearing graduation caps. Underneath these were the flags of seven different countries.

Judges for the contest were GHS students Jerry Robertson, Dave Liner, Robin Farr, Carolyn Crutchfield, Mary Win Corcoran, Jeannie Anderson, Bobby Whittington, and Lacy Coble.

Senior's Honor Society Heads State Publication

At the State Convention of the National Honor Society last March at Wingate College, the Greensboro chapter was asked to be chairman of the state publications committee.

Being chairman of this committee means that the chapter is responsible for editing the state paper twice during the current year. There will be an issue in the fall and another in the spring.

Carol Eichhorn, newly elected Torchlight president at GHS, has appointed seniors Pat Hutchins and Robin Farr as co-editors of this publication.

Torchlight advisers are Mrs. Mary Madlin, Latin teacher, and Miss Sara Mims, head of Senior's English Department.

Council Corner

By Jerry Robertson

Your Student Council would like to announce that a public telephone cannot be placed outside the girls' gym or outside the stadium gates. It was decided that the telephone would not be used enough to be profitable for the telephone company. The company is also considering removing the telephone from the boys' gym because it is not being used enough.

There have been several complaints about the condition of the sidewalks on rainy days. Your council hopes that these can be fixed in the near future.

College Day, October 21 and 22, is a day in which students can learn much about colleges and their requirements. Your council would like to remind each student of this fact and urge you to take advantage of the opportunity.
