

Co-op Department Presents Annual Assembly Program

Various angles of the Co-operative program were presented by D.E.-D.O. students at their annual assembly April 20.

Mr. John R. Foster president of McLeod Industries and former GHS student, addressed the student body in a talk concerning the benefits of joining the Co-op department.

In his speech, the speaker asked the question, "How can an economic system in which everyone is trying to get ahead of everyone else make anyone happy?" The answer given by Mr. Foster was that Americans in the business field must learn to work together for a stronger economy.

He stated that the purpose of the Co-op program was just this. The instructors provide the students with jobs to suit their tastes and aptitudes and teach them to get along with their employers and fellow employees.

"Hopes and dreams are not enough." According to Mr. Foster, this is a world of reality, and work is necessary in order to see dreams succeed. He reminded that hopes should not become habits; the conscientious young person will prepare for getting ahead in the business world.

Next, a variety of entertainment, introduced by master of ceremonies Barry Cockman, senior, was presented by several D.E.-D.O. students. Linda Robbins, senior, headed the display of talent by singing "Getting to Know You" from THE KING AND I.

Don Douth, senior, and his dummy Jacob extracted several chuckles from the audience. When asked to recite the Boy Scout Pledge, Jacob replied, "On my honor I will do my best to take what you give and steal the rest."

A singing "plug" to the tune of the L and M commercial was rendered by Mary Lou Kiser, Dot Cannon, juniors; Martha Gibbs, Jim Lowe, Johnny Stuart, and Tom Williams, seniors.

Diane Taylor, senior, began with a comedy skit and then sang "Oh What a Beautiful Morning."

Mrs. Kathryn McEntire, head of the Diversified Occupations Office Practice, declared that students under her supervision found jobs as secretaries, stenographers, and other office workers.

Sampson, Kivett Place At State Science Fair

Two Senior High students, Shirley Sampson, sophomore, and Paul Kivett, junior, won places in the state science fair in Raleigh, April 15-16.

Shirley's project, "Our Human Eye," won a third place and $25 in the biological science division. Paul's "Microhydrophone" won for him a fourth prize of $15 in the physical science division.

Shirley and Paul were among Piedmont district winners attending the all-expense paid two-day fair at State College. They went down to the fair April 15 to set up their projects which were judged that night. Highlighting the state fair was the awards luncheon Saturday. The fair closed at 3:00 Saturday.

Sidney Young of Broughton High in Raleigh and Charles Kling of Washington High won top honors in the biological and physical divisions, respectively.

Senior's Steadies

BY JEANIE DEESE

It's amazing! Unbelievable! Astounding! There are advantages to taking algebra! So say two seniors who (back in the dark ages of their sophomore days) met in an algebra class. They got acquainted, but at that point things came to a halt until December of their junior year. They then began to date regularly but still dated other people.

If you happen to know any cute, funny couple, then you're well on your way to guessing the identity of this week's couple. Miss X considers Mr. X funny, and he thinks she's cute. Each agrees that the other is very sweet and understanding—sometimes! They say they have numerous fights over numerous subjects.

These two cute, funny, sweet, understanding people date in a black '57 Chevrolet, sometimes doubling with Marion Dixon and Lind Kirksey. Mr. X can usually be seen with Steve Oliver or Marion, and Miss X's closest friends are Ruth Ennis and "any of the L.S.P.'s." She is also in band and FTA. Miss X kinda' has to watch her step. It seems that Mr. X is sergeant-at-arms of the G-30's!

With summer coming up, they're both looking forward to playing tennis and doing some target practice with Mr. X's rifle at his lake. Both of them enjoy steak suppers, and strangely enough, Mr. X is the "cook" of the couple. He must like his cooking, 'cause Miss X fusses that he eats too much, to which Mr. X says she flirts too much! When he can take time from his hobbies of hunting and shooting pool, our couple enjoys going to the movies and out to the Castle. Current musical favorite is "Forever."

If you're still not "in the know" look for a 5'10" blond fella escorting a 5'7" brunette (who very appropriately has green eyes) to her church, First Baptist, or to his, First Presbyterian. Bonus question: What boy do you know who will be at Carolina next year, whose girl will be at WC? If you aren't confused now, you never will be! Confuse Us says: Try Hall Tales!

Minton Heads Orchestra; Monroe Is Vice-President

Anne Starr Minton and John Monroe, juniors, have been elected as next year's president and vice-president of the Greensboro Senior High School Orchestra.

Anne plays the violin and John is a cellist. Arthur Springer and Anne Foster, viola and cello players respectively, are the graduating officers of the orchestra. Mr. J. K. Harriman is the director of the organization.

Radio Institute Offers Invitation To Students

Juniors and seniors interested in a radio or television career are invited to attend the Tenth Annual U. C. High School Radio-TV Institute, to take place in Chapel Hill, June 16-30.

Applications may be obtained from the guidance room or by writing to the Director, N. C. High School Radio-TV Institute, Swain Hall, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C. Applications must be in by May 10.

Management, sales, news, sports, and engineering are all discussed by executives and staff members of leading N. C. radio and TV stations.

Actual training and group participation are offered to all Institute students, using University equipment.

The cost is not large because University dormitory rooms are made available to students at small charge, tuition is at a minimum and recreation facilities are made available.

Music Groups Participate In Annual State Contests

Students in the glee clubs, the choir, the concert band, the training band, and the orchestra have attended annual state music contests during the past few weeks.

The choir sang "Tenebrae Factae Sunt" and "The Last Words of David" under the direction of Miss Eula Tuttle, choir director. A rating of superior was awarded to the choir.

The Girl's Glee Club and the Boy's Glee Club returned with ratings of superior and excellent respectively. The girls sang "Adoramus Te Christe" and "Peace Comes To Me" under the direction of Miss Jeanne Meredith, assistant director. The boys, singing "Thou'rt Like a Lovely Flower" and "Come Now Sweet Death", were directed by Miss Tuttle. All three groups attended the contest March 17.

"Russian and Ludmilla," "The Finale of Tchaichovsky's Fourth Symphony," and the "Last Movement of the Third Brandenburg Concerto" were played by the orchestra April 7 at Aycock Auditorium. Directed by Mr. Kimball Harriman, their rating was excellent.

The training band, directed by Mr. Herbert Hazelman, band director, returned a superior rating. Pieces played were "March of the Champions," "Oasis," and "Montmartre" on April 4 at Aycock Auditorium.

"Standard of Saint George March," "Overture to the Die Fledermous," and "Overture to the Merry Wives of Windsor" were played by the concert band March 8 at Aycock Auditorium. The band, directed by Mr. Hazelman, received an excellent rating.

Junior Engineers Group Choose Kutos President

Ray Kutos, sophomore, was elected President of the Junior Engineers at their regular Tuesday night meeting, April 19.

Other officers are as follows: junior, John Monroe, vice president; junior, Irene Gullledge, secretary; and sophomore, Mary Brennan, treasurer.

These officers are effective the beginning of the next school year. The four officers make up the executive committee, whose duty it is to plan club activities, and along with the vice president, set up programs and speakers. The committee also plans the Science Day assembly.

Outgoing officers are Larry Sawers, president; Sherry Rottman, vice president; Susan Williams, secretary; and Jerry Sawers, treasurer.
