

Two Students To Attend Girls' State This Summer

Carole Lineberry and Nancy McNairy have been chosen delegates to Girls' State on the Woman's College campus, June 17-23. Approximately 300 girls from all parts of North Carolina will attend.

The aim of these girls during the seven days which they are together is to make a thorough study of state and local government. The group is divided into two political parties, and campaigning, nominations, and elections ensue. Each party is allowed to present its own platform to the convention.

Several trips are in store for the girls. One day they will go to Durham, where they will receive a brief tour of the Duke University campus. They also journey to Raleigh, have dinner at N. C. State College, and meet in some of the government buildings. The installation of the newly elected officers takes place in the House of Representatives, where Governor Sanford or some other state official will speak to the group. The trip also includes a visit to the Governor's Mansion.

Meet With Boys' State

On Friday of that week, the girls will travel to Chapel Hill for a visit to the planetarium (and to Boys' State). According to Miss Ruth Scarborough, counselor for the two delegates, this evening is usually the climax of the week.

Mr. Charlie Phillips from Woman's College is in charge of Girls' State, and most of the instructors come from the staff of WC. The agenda includes lectures and discussions, often with outstanding speakers. Parliamentary procedure is gone over thoroughly with the group. Last year Thad Eure, treasurer of the state of North Carolina, installed the new officers of Girls' State, during which the governor takes the actual oath of office for the North Carolina governor.

Most high schools send one representative to the gathering, but larger student bodies are allowed two delegates. This is determined by the number of students in the schools.

Water Problem Discussed

During the business meetings the girls discuss local and state affairs; the water problem is often a topic for these discussions. Many bills are passed by the mock Senate and House of Representatives, some serious and others of a lighter nature. Last year the group passed a bill stating that only good-looking policemen between the ages of 18 and 25 would be employed on the WC campus to help the girls across the streets. They also passed legislation to determine their idea of the legal voting age.

For recreation in their few spare moments, the girls put on a talent show, sing, and have skits. At the end of the convention each girl receives a certificate at the final ceremony.

3 Council Members Serve Prison Terms

BY JOAN MCNAIRY

"Help! Help!" There aren't any door knobs!" Student Council members Carolyn Rich, Ed Goode, and Dick Tontz suddenly discovered themselves condemned to a prison stretch in Mrs. Mary Lea Hamilton's little litter room, (a cubby hole adjoining her classroom).

After voluminous laughter from their fellow council members, the three prisoners moved a table in front of the door to make easier conversation with outsiders. Ed Goode climbed through the transom but Carolyn decided that her dress presented too much of a problem for such an awkward ascent. In order to entertain her during her dilemma, Dick stayed trapped with her.

Several messengers coming into the room showed no surprise in seeing four arms and two heads over the transom. Anything is believable with those two. Finally the janitor came to free the prisoners and Mrs. Hamilton got some new door knobs.

Dwarves, Apples, Clocks Dance Before 'Queen of The May'

BY SHERRY BUNDY

May Queen Libby McComb reigned over May Day festivities at Greensboro High School to the theme of "Three Coins in a Fountain."

Page Jim Freedman, started the afternoon's entertainment by declaring it a holiday by proclamation of the Queen. Forming the court of Maids of Honor were Senior Maid of Honor, Linda Blair, escorted by Bobby Quakenbush; Junior Maid of Honor, Donna Lane, escorted by Barton Jones; and Sophomore Maid of Honor, Gail Pfaff, escorted by Chip Crumley. Each girl was dressed in a roce-colored formal, white gloves, and carrying a large bouquet of flowers.

Leading the court of ladies-in-waiting were Patsy Allison, escorted by Sherrill Newnam; and Carol Gordon, escorted by Richard Sain, who were dressed in canary yellow gowns. Patsy and Carol were succeeded by Ann Huckabee, escorted by John Marshall, and Deanna Huckabee, escorted by Charles Bennett, who were dressed in pale green.

Pink Chosen

Pastel pink was the color worn by Camilla Walters, escorted by Sam West, and Candy Bernard, escorted by Ed Goode. Following in sky blue, were Becky Cain, escorted by Ken Gibbons, and Gloria Cox, escorted by Ken Williams.

Georgianna Sartin, escorted by Mike Lawrence and Anne Tate, escorted by Miles Brown, chose lavender as their colors, while Carole Lineberry escorted by Bill James, and Carol Sheets, escorted by Ed White, chose aqua. Blue was the color worn by Mary Earle, escorted by Bob Powell, and Babs Andrew, escorted by Joe Parkes. Attending the Queen were Jamie Parker, flower girl and Bob Parker, crown bearer.

Following the coronation of the Queen by Student Body President Dick Tontz, was the scene of the three coins. Sandra Parker presented one lucky coin a piece to Cinderella (Bonnie Davant), Bashful (Sidney Matlock), and the Ugly Duckling (Margaret Farrow).

Cinderella's wish, as she tossed her coin into the well, which was watched over by the Guardian angel (Brenda Maxwell), was that she might attend the royal ball and meet the prince (Larry Lund). As she left to prepare for the ball time had a holiday when several clocks decided to have a dance. The dancing clocks were: Louise Ruffy, Ellen Barrier, Parker Norman, Gwyn Coble, Pat Coble, Marilyn Jenkins, Kay Leavel, Amy Jamieson, Margaret Keese, Nancy McNairy, Dina Steed and Carole Harrod.

Court Dance

The next scene, in which the Queen's court did a minuet and Cinderella's which came true, was followed by the presentation of Snow White (Linda Filipski) and the old Hag (Janice Matthieu). Accompanying the old hag were the poisoned apples (Jean Bernheim, Lea Jane Coble, Glenda Brown, Linda Lael, Sandra Neal, Vera Leonard, Betty Scott, Ann Joyner, and Joan Baber) who danced happily when Snow White was poisoned. Also dancing merrily were the seven dwarfs (Don Matthieu, Sidney Matlock, Jack Scarboro, Eddie Strange, Jody Nuckolls, Jeff Phillips, and Kent Jones) until they saw Snow White

Continued on Page Eight

DE Club Initiates New Members

New members of the Distributive Education Club were initiated Wednesday night at a party given in their honor.

Approximately 80 people attended this party. Of the 80 present, approximately half were new members.

Refreshments were prepared and served by the DE class presidents Tommy Smith, Carol Shepard, junior and Clyde Smith,

Senior Room 301 Leads Special Honor Roll List

Topping the special honor roll for the second grading period of the semester was home room 301, with four persons maintaining an "A" average: Lana Miller, Diana Neal, Sherrill Newnam, and Sandra Parker.

Juniors making special honor roll to put their class in the lead were: Pat Adkisson and Steve Anthony from room 303; John Bercau, 106; Frank Crothers and Mike Ephland, representing room 2; Sarah Flintom from 307; Lola Gurley, room 27; David Layton, 12; from room 300, Sandra Lowe and Nancy McNairy; Carol Marvin from room 23; and from 306 three representatives, William Norman, Linda Nunn, and Donna Paoli. Room 4 boasts Karen Schwabenton; room 61, James Powell and Alan Robinson; from room 9, Chini Smith and Nancy R. Smith; Monette Weaver and John Weisner from room 302; and representing room 309 was Kay Wharton.

Seniors Take Second Place

Pete Bondanella from room 202; Carolyn Dees, room 1; Jim Freedman from room 68; Bob Groat and Mary Hartman, room 24; and Sherry Kellett, Linda Lael, and Nancy Long from room 311 helped to put the seniors in second place. Other seniors making special are Libby McComb, Jayne Marsh, and Janice Matthieu from room 6; Lana Miller, Diana Neal, Sherrill Newman, and Sandra Parker representing room 301; Kaye Riley from M-204; Dale Stansbury, room 313; Anne Tate and Camilla Walters from room 22; and from room 102, Dolores West and Billie Wharton.

Sophomores Place Last

Sophomores earning places on the list were: Gary Anderson and Virginia Bardolph, home room M-202; Stephen Best from 103; Brenda Carter from 206; from HE-100, Patsy Coe; room 7, Lola Gray; Martha Kistler and Ann Roberta Lashley, room 317; Fred McCall and John McSween from 11; Jeff Osmint, Mary Parker, and B. J. Pearce from HE-202; Kathy Poer, HE-201; Becky Rees, HE-200; and from home room 14, Emily Steifle and Anne Tietz.

School officers for the next school year are, left to right: Bob Lambeth, traffic chief; Mary Rountree, secretary; Anne Phillips, treasurer; Sally Jo Welch, youth recreation chairman; Donna Newman, Junior Class President; and Mary Earle, Senior Class President. Insert are Bill James, President; Irvin Parce, Vice-President.