400 Students To Attend N. C. Governor's School

"The Governor's School of North Carolina" is a unique summer school to be held during 1963, 1964, and 1965.

On the basis of a proposal submitted by the Governor of North Carolina, the Carnegie Foundation has made the sum of $225,000 available to the North Carolina State Board of Education to operate a summer school for "highly gifted high school students" of North Carolina. This grant was matched by contributions from individuals, industries, and foundation of Winston-Salem. The total amount of $450,000 will be used to operate the school.

Salem College
The Governor's School will operate during the summer of 1963 on the campus of Salem College in Old Salem, Winston-Salem, North Carolina. All the facilities of both the College and the Academy have been made available to the school. The school will be in session from June 10, until August 2, a total of eight weeks.

Tuition, room, board, instructional supplies, and books will be furnished without charge. There will be no charges for any instruction or for attendance at any of the activities provided by the school. Limited laundry service will also be free. Students will be expected to bear the expense of travel to and from Winston-Salem. Also, a small amount of money will be needed for personal expenses.

Purpose

During the summer of 1963 the school will provide a variety of unique and distinctive educational experiences for approximately 400 students who will be juniors or seniors during the school year 1963-64. The school will serve as a model for schools wishing to improve their own programs for the gifted, and will help to train teachers and administrators in providing appropriate experiences for gifted students.

Students will be offered experiences in the fields of the humanities, foreign languages, mathematics, natural sciences, social science, fine arts, music (vocal and instrumental), dance, and drama. A student will be expected to concentrate in one area on the basis of his aptitude, ability, and interest. Also offered will be opportunities of learning outside the major area of concentration. Seminars in a variety of areas, opportunities for individual research, recreational experiences, concerts, plays, forums, and lectures will be made available to all students.

Admission to the school will be on the basis of criteria and standards now being developed. These will be made available to all interested students in the very near future.
