Summer Jobs Open To City Students

At the suggestion of Mayor David Schenck and City Manager Mr. George Aull, the City Council has appropriated a sum of money to provide a limited number of jobs this summer during the morning hours.

Many teenagers find it difficult to find employment, and this act by the council is an effort on the part of the Greensboro city officials to help them be occupied. The senior high schools of Greensboro were provided with application forms which were given to students interested in a summer job. These applications were due back in the office of the school on Tuesday, April 30. These applications have been turned over to the city officials, and the students will be notified about their jobs.

In signing their applications, students agreed to work the full weeks from June 10, to August 16 and to work the required period of time from 8:00 a.m. until 2:00 noon, Monday through Friday. Students will receive 75 cents an hour in this work.

my Byrd; Ann Huckabee, John Marshall; and Candy Bernard, Bob Powell.

To add spice to the program, the Queen's Men, dressed as minstrels, sang. In addition to the minuet and the May Pole dances, there were three more dances.

Barbara Pinsker Wins Scholarship To Israel

Barbara Pinsker has recently won a trip to Israel this summer for 57 days, from the end of June to the third week in August.

Barbara is a member of the B'Nai B'Rith Girls Organization and through this group, applied to the state council for a scholarship for the educational tour. After three interviews, Barbara was chosen along with two other girls from North Carolina to make the trip.

The purpose of the tour is to gain knowledge and culture from the nation of Israel. When she returns, Barbara will travel around the state giving lectures of her trip.

After an orientation program in the Poconos Mountains of Pennsylvania, the group will travel to New York where they will board a jet to Israel. On the way over to Israel there will be a four-day visit in London of Amsterdam. When the girls arrive in Israel they will begin their tour of the country in a bus.

One week of the trip will be spent in a Kibbutz, a collective settlement formed after the war. Barbara will live with the settlement and will be a part of it by sharing in its work, which includes picking grapes and olives and milking goats. The visitors will only be allowed to work four hours a day.

During their stay the girls will spend two three-day periods in Israeli families. This will be in the cities of Tel Aviv and Haifa.

Barbara will also visit the Second World Jewish Youth Conference for two days at the Hebrew University. Here Ben Gurion, premier of Israel, will speak to the group. Other places to be visited are Anne Frank's home, several museums, Galilee, the Red Sea, and the Dead Sea. The tour also includes an Arab village and orphanages supported by B'Nai B'Rith groups in America.

This trip, supported by the world-wide council of B'Nai B'Rith, has taken place for the past 16 years.

Why couldn't I be May Queen?

GHS Students Attend Library Convention

Sixteenth Annual Convention of the North Carolina High School Library Association was held recently in Winston Salem.

The library staff of Grimsley Senior High School was well represented at this state conference. From the 35 members of the staff, the eight students who attended were Stewart Brittenham, Sara Flinton, Brenda Younts, Maurice Gullledge, Sara Ann Lynch, and Adella McKeown. The official delegates from GHS were Sankey Price and Margaret Keesee. Miss Mildred Herring and Miss Weir accompanied the group. Miss Herring, GHS librarian, had a part on the program in Winston Salem.

The Robert E. Lee Hotel provided the rooms and places of meeting for the group. The first afternoon the business session convened in the Grand Ballroom. During this time campaign speeches were given by those running for offices in the state association. Adella McKeown, from GHS, ran for the office of vice president, and Sankey Price was her campaign manager. In this meeting, however, only the candidates were allotted a speaking period of two minutes. Campaign managers campaigned outside the meeting only.

After this session the students took guided tours to various places in Winston Salem. They could visit Old Salem or Wake Forest College campus and ride through Reynolda Gardens and Whitaker Park Cigarette Factory. At the hotel there was time to see an exhibit of library books and material.

In the Grand Ballroom that night, a banquet and a combo were held. At intermission the candidates for the state officers were presented. In the session the next morning, the 1963-64 state officers were elected and installed. After a dinner for the out-going and incoming officers, the convention was adjourned.

Mrs. Herring, GHS librarian, announced that all books must be returned to the library by May 22 at 4:00 p.m. Students failing to do so will be fined $.25 per book per day late.

Council Adviser Moody Explains Convention Rules

Because of the widespread confusion over the use of the preferential ballot system, HIGH LIFE consulted Student Council Adviser Mrs. Mary A. Moody in an effort to explain what was, or should have been, done.

The system is based on the nominating procedures used by the two major national political parties.

OFFICES

The offices contested in the convention are the student body president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, Youth Recreation Chairman, pep board chairman, and traffic chief. The purpose of the convention was to narrow the field of contestants for these offices to two. Therefore, if there were less than three candidates for any one offices, the names of those candidates were automatically placed on the ballot.

This is how it worked. Each home room elected two official delegates to represent it at the convention. One of these was the speaking delegate; the other, the consulting delegate. Each room had two votes.

A few days later, the home room teacher received an official list of the candidates involved in the convention. The names were placed on the board and each student wrote down on a secret ballot (a piece of paper supplied by the student) the names of each candidate and indicated his first, second, third, and fourth choices, depending on the number of candi-

Views Of Candidates For Traffic Position

Editor's note: Each year at election time HIGH LIFE interviews each presidential candidate so that it can give the students an idea of each nominee's platform. This year, however, there is only one candidate for the offices of president and vice president. HIGH LIFE then interviewed each of the final candidates for the position of traffic chief to see how they would perhaps improve the squad over this year's.

When questioned, Jerry Jernigan said that if he was elected, the traffic squad would be "very organized" and would indeed be "worthwhile." "It will definitely not be a 'social squad,' as some people have termed it, but I will prove that it is a necessary part of GHS." Jerry said that he will chose capable boys to be on his squad and that they "will really be on the ball."

Jerry sings in the choir and is a member of the "Queen's Men." He is also active in the Junior Jaycees.

Dave Fieg said, "I don't want to take a lot of your time, so I'll come straight to the point. If I am honored by being your traffic chief next year, I will guarantee many needed changes. To mention a few, the squad will be cut to 25-30 boys who will be approved by the squad advisor. This means there will be no social club boys. If a boy is found off his post twice, he will be automatically dropped from the squad. Also, in accordance with the "School Beautiful" campaign, traffic before and after school and during lunch will be kept off the grass."

dates running. The ballots were then collected and tabulated. Since the first choice of candidate got one vote and the third, three, the candidate with the lowest total points carried the home room.

Splitting Votes

With regard to splitting the votes, Mrs. Moody said that the votes should not have been split unless the two front-running candidates were within three or four votes of each other. (Vote-splitting is giving one of the two votes to each of the two top candidates.)

The home room president announced the result of the tabulation and formally instructed the delegates either to cast two votes for John Doe or to cast one vote for John Doe and one for Jim Jones. The instructions to the delegates were written down and placed in a sealed envelope to be given to the election committee. The envelopes could be opened on request at the convention to make certain the delegates were voting according to instructions. They have been known in the past to ignore the instructions and vote as they pleased.

Nominations

At the convention any member of a room carried by John Doe, could have, when his room was called on for any nominations, put in nomination the name of John Doe, or, as usually happens, could have yielded to the home room of John's campaign manager, and the latter made the nomination.

After all the nominations for one office were made, the convention got down to the business of deciding which two names would go on the final ballot. The candidate getting 66 votes first had his name placed first on the ballot.

Candidates Selected In School Convention

Candidates for the final elections of school offices were determined at the convention held last Tuesday in the auditorium.

Dave Fieg and Jerry Jernigan will run for the position of traffic chief; Pat Roos and Ann McIntosh, pep board chairman; and Janet Turner and Wayne Farlow, treasurer. These names will appear on the ballot in this order.

Jill Miller, chairman of elections, was in charge of the convention. After the rules were given, the roll was called for all home rooms to make their presence known.

Nominations were made for the position of traffic chief. After all nominations, the roll was repeated for voting. The candidate who first received 67 votes will be placed first on the ballot in the final election. This nominee was then dropped from the list, and voting was repeated to determine the second name on the final ballot.

Assembly was adjourned when the bell rang for third period. The convention later reconvened at 1:30. This last half was attended by home room delegates. During the next hour the final candidates for pep board chairman and treasurer were selected in the same manner as those for the office of traffic chief.

The final voting will be held next Tuesday, May 7.

William H. Plemmons, President of Appalachian State Teachers College, will deliver the graduation speech, June 3, at 8:00 p.m. in the Boys' Gym.
