

Local Exhibits On Display

Greensboro's exhibits to the International School Art Program will be on exhibit locally April 5-16 at Jefferson Standard Building Lobby and April 5-30 at Glidden Decorating Center Lounge and Straughan's Book Shop, both in Summit Shopping Center.

Several of Grimsley's students have pictures on exhibit including Majorie Beane, Ronda Bentz, Sharon Beane Brooks, Constance Donnell, Margaret Ann Gibson, Sandra Kaye Holt, Susan Carroll Kenney, Sue McLawhorn, Leslie Mitchell, David Roger Parks, Betty Rains, Linda Singleton, Charlotte Tiller and David Lee Tucker.

The pictures in the Exhibit will be sent to the Southeastern Area Headquarters of the National Red Cross in Atlanta, Georgia. There they will be screened along with the works of students in eight Southeastern states. Those selected for tours will be assembled into exhibits. After their tour, the pictures are given each year to Red Cross Societies, Children's Hospitals, Youth Centers, and similar groups.

Art To Be Screened

The art work done for the International School Art Program is screened at three levels: school, chapter, and area. At the school, the work is appraised by both the teacher and student. The best is sent to the second level in which a group of art instructors assisted by chapter representatives screen the work.

Representative art from the chapters is viewed on the area level by a regional screening committee of the National Art Education Association with the assistance of the American Red Cross personnel. This group selects the pictures to be sent overseas.

The International School Art Program is co-sponsored by the American National Red Cross and the National Area Education Association. The association is primarily responsible for the screening of the art work while the Red Cross deals with the collection, circulation, and transportation of the works.

The purpose of the program is to foster mutual understanding among young people throughout the world.

Librarians Meet In Annual Workshop

Workshops, held in the Jack Tar Hotel, were one of the features of the recent North Carolina High School Library Association Convention in Durham.

One subject discussed was librarianship as a profession. Perhaps the most interesting was "Books That Shape the World."

Another part of the convention was a banquet, over which Sankey Price of Grimsley presided. The Durham Superintendent of City Schools was guest speaker.

Grimsley's two official delegates to the Convention on April 23-24 were Jo Ann Rouse and Marcia Lowe. Jo Ann is secretary of the North Central District of North Carolina. Sankey Price is vice president of the state association.

Miss Herring, GHS librarian, is historian of the 2000-member N.C.H.S.L.A. and the only person to attend every meeting since it was formed in 1948.

Other representatives from Grimsley were Paulette Poteat, Jane Bowman, Ellen Huffines, Brenda Dick, and Dotty Best.

Romans Feast In JCL Banquet

Grimsley's cafeteria was transformed into a Roman restaurant this past Saturday night when the J.C.L.'ers staged their annual banquet.

The familiar eating place was practically unrecognizable, as it was decorated to resemble a triclinium—the dining room of a wealthy Roman's house.

Many types of "Romans" were present. Nobles reclined at the tables. Their orders for more food were constantly heard, as the humble sophomore slaves scurried back and forth to fulfill the request.

The meal itself was authentic with the exception of wine. There were several courses, consisting of soup, fish, chicken, pork, ham, vegetables, bread, and fruit. Also served with olives, endive, radishes, nuts, and cheeses. Fruit for desert included figs, dates, plums, and grapes. All of this was eaten with fingers, except for the soup. That was sipped.

With such authenticity, Grimsley Classical Leaguers did not fail to arrive in full regal dress. Young male Roman citizens wore their tunics — short-sleeved garments reaching to the knees.

Those who remembered that the banquet invitations requested formal wear, wore their togas, a white cloth which is wrapped around and around till it reaches one's feet.

Maidens wore tunics and stolas, which are the same as togas, with the exception of a fastening at the waist.

This year's banquet ended with the pontifex maximus' (chief priest) prayer to Jupiter.

Over $2100 Now Available In Scholarships For Seniors

Seniors graduating from Grimsley this spring will find over $2100 in scholarships available to them. Most of the scholarships will be awarded on the basis of academic achievement and need.

Newest and largest of these is the scholarship for $400 offered to senior girls by the Junior Civinettes.

According to Civinette President, Sally Andrews, the club hopes to give this aid for each of the four years the recipient attends college, provided that the student continues to meet academic standards.

Final decision on the extension rests with next year's members. Applications are considered by a committee formed of Mr. Routh, Mr. Glenn, Mrs. Woods, Mrs. Coltrane, and Sally Andrews.

Other scholarships offered are the Junior Jaycee's presentation of $300 and the $200 Leslie Garrett Scholarship for Special Education. The Jaycees choose their own recipient.

The Leslie Garret grant was established last year for a student planning to teach in the fields of speech therapy, education of the mentally retarded, or academically talented.

Sears, Roebuck and Company annually offers five scholarships of $200 each. Applications for these are available in the GHS guidance office. A faculty committee, headed by Mr. Routh, selects the Sear's recipients.

Other scholarships available are Torchlight's $200 grant, and Cone Hospital's offer of $150. Torchlight members choose their scholarship winner, and Cone Hospital does the same.

In addition, various school organizations give scholarships to their own members. Examples are the scholarships for graduating Future Teachers and the Co-operative industrial classes.

Registration Set In Buddy System

Grimsley's Junior Jaycees have started planning for their second annual Buddy System. The purpose of the Buddy System, according to Charleen Pyron, manager of the project for 1965, is to help new sophomores and transfer students become acquainted with GHS when they enroll next September.

The Jaycees have already filed the name of volunteers to act as "buddies" next fall prior to the opening of school.

Next August when upperclassmen are assigned to new students, invitations will also be sent out for a "get to know Grimsley" party.

Plans for this year's party, while far from complete, include entertainment by a combo and the serving of refreshments in the Grove. This will give students a chance to meet GHS upperclassmen and acquaint themselves with the campus.

Candy Sauer, president of the Jaycees, estimates cost to the club at $350. This is the Jaycees first project for the school each year.
