

Boot Girls Will Be Welcome At Coming Half-Time Shows

One-two-three-four. One - two - three-four. That is the rhythm that the new boot girls at Grimsley may be marching to at future athletic events.

With Greensboro sandwiched between two cities that already sport the dancing girls, it seems as if it has taken GHS a long time to get the hint and join other schools in maintaining a well disciplined drill team.

Members of the O. Henry Juniors Service Club have initiated the project this year. In the first issue of HIGH LIFE a year ago, such a proposal was made. Two girls who volunteered to choreograph the dances were found, but response from the student body was low.

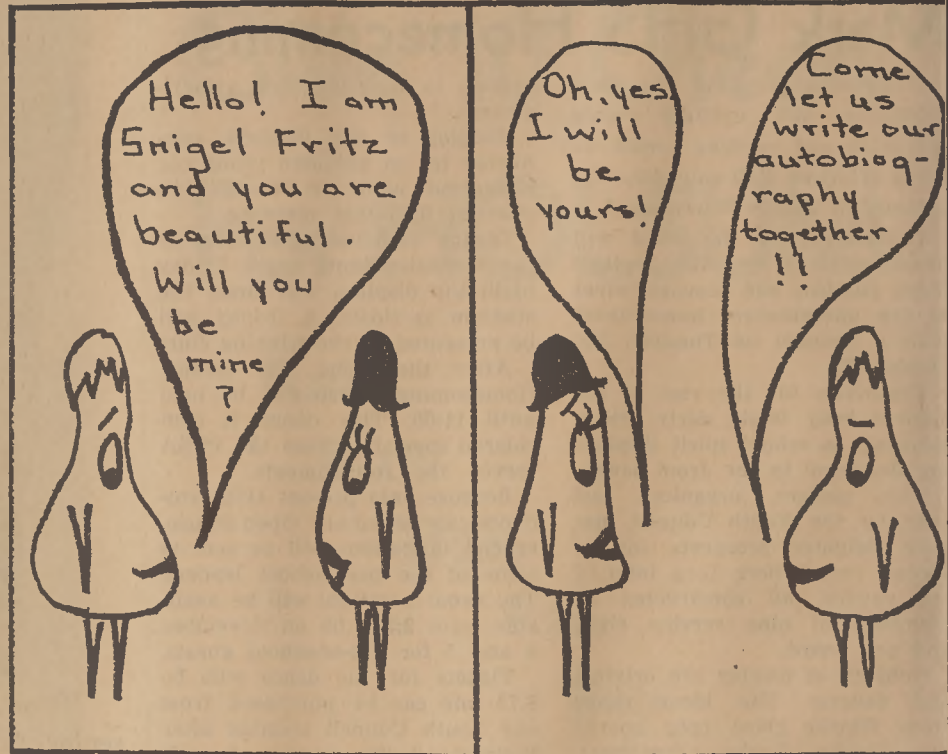

Perhaps the student were not ready to add a new feature to the traditional half-time shows at football games, but the boot girls of the future will be a welcome addition.

Not only would the dancing girls brighten up the mid-game festivities, but they will enable more people to participate in one high schools most popular entertainments, and they would allow more people to participate in a school wide activity.

Naturally, the Grimsley answer to the Williams and Reynolds girls will carry their own distinctive mark that will set them well apart from the rivals. Even a variation in the name—Dancing Boots for Reynolds and Boot Girls for Williams—will help to mark the distinction.

The O. Henry Juniors are to be commended for initiating this group. Innovations at GHS are always welcome, especially when they can effectively improve upon existing conditions. The success of this opportunity depends upon the participation of each student.

We're Still Number One

Even though there wasn't an athletic victory for GHS on the 300 foot playing field where the Grimsley and Page football teams met, our student body swept the honors in displaying good sportsmanship.

The prevailing mood of the Whirlie viewers was one of the fierce devotion that helped to keep the stadium resounding with familiar cheers. Whenever the going became a little rough for the football team, the assembled students reminded their uniformed representatives that they wholeheartedly supported them.

Yet, the 13-12 victory that Page received is just another memory for the Pirates to tuck away in their scrapbooks. The red friends try to forget that GHS is the number one school in the city. Our superiority is well borne out of the number of Merit Scholarship semi-finalists that Grimsley had.

From the 26 semi-finalists in Guilford County, GHS was the home of 16. Where were the Pirates when these honors were being distributed? Perhaps their genius is used to manufacture cafeteria jam-ins and other bright ideas.

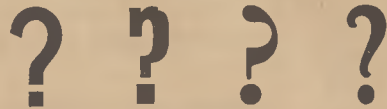

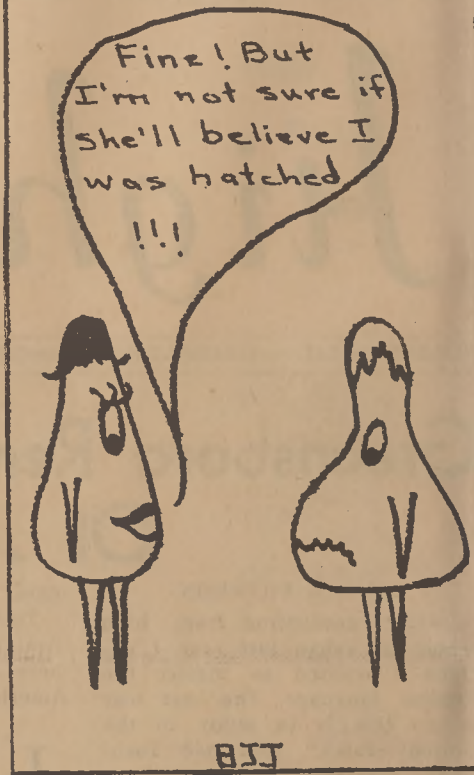

The Whirlies have learned to show their respect for their school by conducting themselves in a manner that would distinguish their beloved alma mater. The boufant school spirit that is beginning to capture Grimsley students is an excellent example of the pride that is associated with GHS.

Expression of school spirit is determined by the possessors of it, but the sumber one school appears as if it is leading the others in this expression.

Whenever hundreds of students confront each other with a rivalry that is similar to the one that Page and Grimsley, the explosive tempers are ready to be ignited. A compliment for each of the participants seems to be at hand for a job well done by the cheering students.

Whirlies you have defeated the Pirates many times, but the ultimate in bictory is the fact that Grimsley remains number one by virtue of maintaining the dignity and stature that is required of a leading school. Good sportsmanship in athletic games as well as in academic areas is one of the best ways to keep GHS number one in the south.

I had some requests to ask a different kind of question this week, and since I try to please (well, I sorta try), I'm going to ask it—What do boys think of the London look?

I found that some boys are experts on apparel and others have no idea of what the London look is. As a brief explanation of the London look as I see it and for those who don't know . . . it consists of the empire waist-line dresses, wild patterns and colors together, boots, long, straight hair, long bangs, heavy eye make-up, no lipstick, and so on. The type of looks you see on Shindig and Hullabaloo.

Since the male attitude is generally the same at all ages, I see no reason for giving classes or ages.

First I asked about hair styles and received the most decided vote—against perfectly straight hair:

"I like long hair, but straight hair does nothing for any girl. If you don't believe me take a look at my kid sister."

"About shoulder length and sorta turned up at the ends looks good."

"Bangs are fine, but I wanna see the girl's eyes once in a while!"

Woe to some of us girls!

As to the dresses:

"Purple and yellow?"

"Well, I think . . ."

CENSORED

(What some boys DO think!)

"When a girl wears what you call the London Look, she shows off the dress; but when she wears good old American skirts and sweaters, they show off the girl."

About the make-up:

"Who died?"

"Did color go out of style?"

"Tough enough!"

About boots:

"The greatest!"

"Clumsy"

"Yea . . ."

"The high kind are some kind of different! The short white ones aren't bad either."

All I can say is I feel sorry for the girls with straight hair and long bangs, wearing purple and yellow dresses, green lipstick and not wearing boots!

Letters for the next issue of HIGH LIFE are due October 29 in the HIGH LIFE Room.

Help! Student Contribution To 'High Life' Expanded

Help! HIGH LIFE has issued this call to the Grimsley student body on several previous occasions. The result of the significant plea was that the four-page weekly paper now being published, will on November 1 become a sometimes six page paper.

The assistance that the staff now requests is the contribution of student work for publication. One of the two new pages will provide an outlet for creative writing, which includes poetry, science and history papers, and pictures of art work.

Alternating with the student page will be a page devoted to reviews of concerts, art, plays and books. In an effort to prevent this material from becoming stilted, interviews with touring celebrities will occasionally be featured. Comments on restaurant openings that might be of interest to the student body will add to the variety of this page.

While the student and preview pages will alternate with one another, the second page being added will be used for either sports or feature stories.

The staffs for the new areas being covered will be from the first year journalism class. They will assemble the stories and assume the responsibility of choosing work of superior quality for publication.

Patty Lauten, editor of the Review Page, and Marilyle Upchurch, editor of the Student Page, will head the effort to organize the innovations and bring better reading to the student body.

Only the best of the work submitted by the faculty and the student will be used, although the must be a limit of 300 words each story because of a lack space.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Having been to all of the football games this season, there are several facts that I have established regarding the actual playing a school spirit which I would like share with the student body. They are the following:

Happiness is going to a game, but more happiness is paying attention to it.

Happiness is being a member of GHS, but more happiness is being an active member of GHS.

Happiness is loving your team, but more happiness is proving it.

Happiness is not giving up, but more happiness is never giving up.

Happiness is completing a tough pass, but more happiness is knowing that you've done it for the team, not for yourself.

Happiness is hustling while ahead, but more happiness is hustling while behind.

Happiness is being a cheerleader, but more happiness is really cheering.

Happiness is screaming, but more happiness is yelling the right word at the right time.

Happiness is winning, but more happiness is winning in the right way.

Happiness and more happiness are not bought; they are made.
