Seniors Present Musical Play

This year's Class Day play, which is to be a musical comedy production, will be presented to the student body May 24.

Authors of the original script are Steve Dixon, Nancy Foster, Audrey Lavine, Carolyn Lyday, Linda McKee, Ray Mendenhall, and Jane Tesh. Audrey Lavine and Linda McKee are the play's directors, and Carolyn Lyday is the stage manager.

Point System Devised

Rehearsals are currently underway. To insure attendance of the entire cast, a point system has been devised by Linda and Carolyn. An accumulation of 10 points results in dismissal from the cast.

Faculty advisors for the production, which will not exceed ninety minutes in length, are Mrs. Edna Hutton and Mr. B. J. Caines.

Committee chairmen for the stage committees are Julie Foard, scenery; Martha Wilmering, costumes; Cynthia Souers, make-up; Paul Allen, sound; Craig Pyron, music; Randy Vestal, lighting; and Sheila Steacy, props.

GYC Members To Be Elected; Council's History Given

Editor's Note: Since the Greensboro Youth Council elections are upcoming, this article discusses the GYC and the purposes it fulfills.

The GYC was founded in the fall of 1962 after the city's youth became involved with social clubs and got arrested after parties. A committee formed by Mayor David Schenck recommended abolition of social clubs; the hiring of a full-time, city-employed youth coordinator, to work solely with the high school youth; and the establishment of a permanent, city-wide youth council to form a line of communication between youth and the city government.

The purposes of the group, first called the Youth Council on Civic Affairs, are to serve as the standing committee on youth activities of the Greensboro City Council in all matters relative to youth and to serve as a junior city council for local youth to advise them and to listen to them on all matters of civic interest and needs; to initiate, organize, and supervise programs and projects that will benefit the youth of Greensboro; and to serve as a line of communication between the youth and the government of the city.

OOOPS!!!

In the May 1 issue of HIGH LIFE, in the article on May Day, the paper said Mark Buie escorted Judy Patterson. However, Dickie Stover escorted Judy Patterson, and Mark Buie escorted Debbie Clemmons, the Junior Maid of Honor.

The Youth Council is composed of young people selected from each of the six Greensboro high schools. The number of persons elected from each school is proportionate to the total enrollment of the school. The Youth Council obtains its members by a combination of open application followed by a school-wide election. The average membership is between 60 and 80 people.

The Youth Council meets three times a month. It has three permanent offices: a chairman, a vice-chairman, and a secretary, and it has program chairman offices which are determined by the programs of each year.

The above offices compose the Executive Board, along with the adult advisors selected by the Greensboro City Council because of their ability to work with youth.

Each program chairman has a committee of a size necessary to operate effectively in his area of responsibility. All Youth Council programs are handled by the youth themselves. The Youth Council is advised by an ex-officio board of city high school student body presidents who are not official GYC members. The Executive Director of the Youth Council is the City Youth Coordinator.

The Youth Council, as begun in Greensboro, is now spreading through North Carolina and the surrounding states. Already Councils may be found in Raleigh, High Point, Asheville, and Fayetteville with many new councils

Talented Seniors Present Final Musical Tribute

Once again this year, as in years of the past, the first of many graduation events will be held on May 15, in the Grimsley Auditorium. Concerto Night is a night when outstanding seniors in the field of music perform, as a final tribute to Grimsley.

Variety Presented

There is a large variety of music in store, ranging from Audrey Lavine singing Mozart's aria, to Randy Foy playing a piano concerto by Schumann. Also featured will be Sharon Rhodes, Craig Pyron, and Vicki Anne McInney each playing a violin solo, accompanied with full orchestra.

Jan Lenio and Larry Reid will also perform pieces by Williams and Beethoven on the piano.

Playing the only bass solo will be Gail Knieriem. She will be playing a selection by Bach called Air. Ann Fredrickson, the only cello soloist, will present a piece by Vivaldi.

Complimentary Tickets Given

Tickets can be bought, from any member of the orchestra; however, each senior will be given a complimentary ticket in homeroom. Other tickets will cost 50 and 75 cents. Following the concert, seniors will be invited to a reception with their parents.

The orchestra is also involved in many other graduation ceremonies other than Concerto Night. Members from the orchestra play at the Senior Tea, Vespers, Class Day, and for graduation on June 4.

Student Councils Meet To Elect New Officers

Student Council Convention attended by over 200 delegates from the central district of North Carolina took place at Grimsley Saturday, April 27.

The purpose of the convention was "to promote better communications and relationships among member student councils from Piedmont North Carolina," according to Jody Turner, student body president.

Officers Elected

Officers were elected at the convention who will serve the central district for the school year 1968-69. They are president, Jeff Wood, from North Forsyth High School, Winston-Salem; vice-president, Leslie Fich, Fayetteville High School, Fayetteville; and secretary, Brenda Hartmen, Walter Williams High School, Burlington. The treasurer will automatically be the president of the Roxboro High School, where the council will be located this year.

Two candidates from GHS were running, Tye Hunter for president and Allison Albright for secretary. Both were defeated.

Patty Bridges was in charge of registration for the convention; Suzanne Wyatt was in charge of refreshments; Gary Clemmons, of bulletin boards; and Martha Monnett, of financial arrangements.

Groups Discuss

The theme of this convention was the "greatest deeds yet to be done." After an introductory speech, the members broke up into discussion groups on various phases of student council government such as the purposes of executive committees, constitutions and assemblies.

At a banquet catered by Stamey's Barbeque and served in the cafeteria at lunch, the speakers were the Reverend and Mrs. J. L. Williams.

WHIRLIGIG Staff Sees Printing Plant

Members of WHIRLIGIG's 1968 staff recently visited the Washburn Printing Company in Charlotte, North Carolina, where this year's WHIRLIGIG is being printed.

Those visiting the large plant with Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Routh and Miss Virginia Powell, yearbook advisor, were Bonnie Boyles, Cindy Johnson, Barbara Kay, Judy Meyers, Fred Pearsall, Tom Reid, Craig Siler and Linda Willard.

Mr. Norman Forest is president of the printing company. Mr. Frank Fleming, sales manager, invited the group to tour the plant and watch the work on the yearbook. Each year a group goes to visit the company.

Lunch was served to the visitors before they toured the printing plant. They saw all the various processes associated with the different stages of printing and assembling the WHIRLIGIG.

This year's WHIRLIGIG is the largest ever printed, 272 pages in length. It will be at least three weeks before the books are returned for distribution.

Next year's staff is already busy with picture taking and page layouts for next year's edition of WHIRLIGIG.

NCHSLA Convention Occurs In Durham

North Carolina High School Library Association member clubs met for their annual convention to elect new officers Friday and Saturday, April 26 and 27 at the Jack Tar Hotel in Durham, North Carolina.

New Officers Elected

The newly elected officers, who will serve one year are President, Jones Fuquay, from Farmville; Vice President, Marie Andrews; Secretary, Sally Andrews, Chapel Hill; Treasurer, Mike Lee, Wilson's Mill; Editor, Peter Barnes, Chapel Hill; Reporter, Tom Lewellyn, Chapel Hill; Chaplain, Margarita Townsend; and Songleader Connie Mercer.

These officers were installed in a candlelight ceremony Saturday morning, in which, after the duties of the office were read, the new officer's candle was lit by the out-going officer, who then blew out the candle.

VICA Representatives Selected To Attend Annual Convention

Charles Hall, a member of ICT-VICA, has been selected to be one of five VICA members from North Carolina at the Qualifications Committee to select candidates for State VICA officers.

Vince Hendrickson, also from GHS's ICT-VICA program, has been selected to be on the Rules and By-Laws Committee to review VICA's state constitution and to make any called-for changes in the constitution.

These students, along with Mr. Herbert Trost attended the state VICA convention which took place in Winston-Salem April 26 and 27.

VICA stands for Vocational Industrial Clubs of America and is an extra-curricular part of the ICT course. Students who enroll in ICT may join the Grimsley VICA chapter. The club provides an opportunity to participate in contests such as public speaking, parliamentary procedure, Job Interview, Current World Events, and Domestic Events, and also a speech on safety.

The State Contest winners have the opportunity to represent the state in the National Contest which will occur this year in Oklahoma during the month of June.

Students also learn to take part in formal meetings and to develop leadership qualities by filling various offices and serving on committees.

Grimsley were Carolyn Lyday, Joy Williams, Sheila Steacy, Linda McKee, Rick Price, Roe Buchanan, Ann Fredrickson, Cindy Jones, Martha Wilmering, Dena Higgins, Beth Boatenreiter, and Carr Holland, along with Miss Herring, librarian.

646 Attend

Of the 2841 members in the NCHSLA, 579 students attended, representing 63 schools from across the state. Teachers and advisors attending numbered 67, making a total of 646 at the convention.

Speaker at the Friday night banquet was William C. Char-michael, III, who discussed various ways in which books high-light education. Mrs. John Stokes spoke Saturday morning on "A Teacher Looks At Library-AV Assistance." Mike Keever, past president, delivered a keynote speech Friday at the opening session entitled "Hi-Lighting Education."
