CCNC Endorses State Legislation

The Conservation Council of North Carolina (CCNC) is an active organization dedicated to improving the environment.

This year CCNC is endorsing many pieces of state environmental legislation, among which are a tax on non-returnable bottles, grants or matching funds for local waste treatment, and a state environmental act similar to the national act. CCNC also favors action on population planning and a broadening of the powers of the Wildlife Resources Commission.

CCNC has led the fight against commercial development of Bald Head Island, arguing that the beauty of the island would be spoiled and the balance of nature upset.

CCNC has also been involved in the New Hope Dam controversy. Its influence and the threat of lawsuit forced the Army Corps of Engineers to file an environmental impact statement (a statement describing the dam's effect on the surrounding area).

Presently the organization is trying to prevent highway construction through Joyce Kilmer Forest. It is proposing an alternate route which would bypass the forest.

CCNC is also involved in national affairs, and recently sent a telegram to President Nixon which stated its opposition to the firing of Walter Hickel as Secretary of the Interior.

How does CCNC accomplish its

Twelve Artists Get Gold Keys

Twelve artists from Grimsley High School were recently awarded gold keys in the local Scholastic Art Awards competition sponsored by WFMY-TV for excellence in achievement.

"We at Grimsley won more gold keys than any other high school in North Carolina," said Mrs. Richardson, art teacher at Grimsley. "Only one hundred were awarded in our state, fifty-five of which were for junior high students. So we actually won about one-third of them."

The schools with the second highest number of winners were North Carolina School of the Arts, and R. J. Reynolds High School, both of which came away with eight. Dudley was the only other high school in the city to have placed a winner.

There is also a second level of competition in the Art Awards this year. Outstanding entries in this category receive certificates of merit, but can go no further. Grimsley did not place in this category.

Membership involvement is stressed. Each month a newsletter, The Carolina Conservationist, is printed. It tells of all activities and suggests ways each individual can help. It urges letter writing campaigns to officials in all levels of government. The Conservationist also reports who voted how on environmental legislation.

This year's president of the CCNC is James C. Wallace, social studies professor at State. Wallace has pledged a strong legal program to fight ecological problems in the courts.

Membership in the CCNC has steadily increased. High school students can now join for only $1.00. Interested students should please write:

Stang's Multi-Phasic Response Proposal

A former Grimsley student, Howard Stang of the class of 1970, recently exhibited his interest in the school by presenting a suggestion to the Student Council.

Howard, a freshman at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, appeared before the council to present his plan, entitled "Stang's Multi-Phasic Response Proposal to the Grimsley Student Council."

The plan goes as follows:

I. Recreational

A. More small dances to help finance the program of the council.

B. A school dance in the main hallway of the school.

C. A recreational project to raise the bulk of money for program.

D. Council can make some more suggestions—they're good at that.

II. Athletic

A. Open school gym to Grimsley students only—one night a week for basketball, whiffle ball, etc. to be coordinated by an adult or a coach who will be compensated for their time.

B. Petition Coach Jamieson to allot one coach to handle and supervise an intramural program either at night or during the afternoons depending on the season and the weather. (Athletic staff's purpose is to provide athletics for the entire student body not just the super-athlete).

III. Culture and Educational

A. Film of the week to be shown one night each week at school to be supervised by a willing teacher—who will be paid. Films will cover all areas of interest from ACC Highlights to the Black America Series. Maximum publicity for good attendance.

B. A monthly rap session at school with announced topics; preferably with Mr. Glenn present to field questions and answers.

C. A schoolwide project such as the Care project done a couple of years ago; example: build a school in an underdeveloped country.

D. Free pamphlets: a committee to send away on pamphlets on everything that might interest high school students. Locate stand in main hall.

E.A weekly summary of bills being presented to Congress and State legislatures along with addresses of representatives to whom one may write. Voice student opinion: to teach government to students.

Howard, who was a very active student at Grimsley during his three years here, hopes to improve the school with these suggestions. He admits that all ideas are neither good nor bad, but hopes that with these suggestions maybe parts can be used toward the goal of improving the school.

Student Council would appreciate the students' suggestions and criticisms of these ideas and any other helpful suggestions. Students may discuss the ideas with home room representatives or any members of council.

'I Remember Mama' In Early April

Miss Causey's third period Dramatics' Class is planning a production of the play, "I Remember Mama" for sometime in early April. The play will count as the students' final exam.

The play was adapted by John Van Druten from Kathryn Forbes' book, Mama's Bank Account. "I Remember Mama" is a two-act comedy concerned with a large Norwegian family and their financial worries.

Susan Bass plays Katrin, the oldest sister and narrator of the play(Ann Warner plays as Mama, John Lewis as Papa, Paula High as the second sister, Christine, Kathy Breez as the youngest sister, Dagmar, and Chuck Meece as Nels, the oldest and only boy in the family. Other characters are played by Rick Johnston, Susie Boone, Linda Doudt, Ruth Keller, Mike Moody, Wendy Robinson, Charles Herr, Mark Cecil, Larry Burick, Leslie Arona, Ola Davis, Richard Lowe, Audrey Barrall, Marlene Moreland, and Linda Enos.
