

Campus Life, Young Life Begin 72-73 Programs

Campus Life is having an active year! So far there has been a "burger bash" and a trip to Atlanta taken last weekend, October 20. The trip included an all-day visit to "Six Flags Over Georgia" and a visit to a haunted house "Scream in the Dark."

"Scream in the Dark" was built as a money making project for another Campus Life group in the Atlanta area.

A trip to Gatlinburg, Tennessee, has been scheduled for the Christmas holidays.

This year, Campus Life is being conducted by Bill Owens, a 1972 Grimsley High senior. Grimsley's Campus Life group is selling felt-tipped pens for its money-making project.

Campus Life meets once a week on Tuesday nights. It is held in the homes of various people who attend Campus Life.

What's a good way to spend a worthwhile evening with your friends? Attend Young Life meetings every Thursday night at 7:30 at the home of a student at Grimsley.

Young Life is an international, interdenominational organization. It is supported entirely on contributions from individuals. The main objective is to give high school students an opportunity to hear about Christ in a real and meaningful way. It is open to every student at Grimsley.

The directors of the Grimsley Young Life are Vic Cochran, an employee of Barker-Cochran Construction Co., and his wife, Susan. Also helping out are Anne Brandes and Susan Johnson, students at UNC-G, and Fox Pressley and Jay Poole, GTI students.

ing a meeting. Trips to Awanita Valley, S.C., and Windy Gap, which are Young Life-sponsored camps, are always a highlight of the year.

"We consider that high school people are real people and are able to face real questions such as who they are and what their purpose is," says Mr. Cochran, "and that is what we will try to accomplish."

"We also urge everyone to come out and give Young Life a chance; you'll be glad you did," he concluded.

American Poems Basis For Concert

Choir Director Ron Hill is preparing the members of the Grimsley Choir for a joint concert with the choirs of Smith, Page, and Dudley.

Together they will perform a "Choral Symphony on American Poems" on Nov. 20 at 8:00 p.m. in the Smith High School Auditorium. An orchestra, made up of members of the music departments from the schools, will accompany the choirs.

The concert will promote better relations between the city schools. The Greensboro City School Association is sponsoring the concert by loaning the choirs by loaning the choirs the money to finance the expenses of the performance. Ticket sales should cover the cost of music, and the excess funds will be placed in the individual choir's treasury.

Jack M. Jarrett, composer of the score, will be the guest conductor at this special performance. Mr. Jarrett, a professor at UNC-G, will visit each school to rehearse with the choir. A Sunday rehearsal and several other weekday rehearsals have been scheduled for the 200-voice choir during October and November.

The music, especially written for this age group, consists of four poems depicting some aspect of American history. The poems are (1) "Concord Hymn" by Ralph Emerson, (2) "The Statue of Old Andrew Jackson" by Vachel Lindsey, (3) "Out of May Shows" written by Walt Whitman, and (4) "In Praise of Johnny Appleseed," also written by Vachel Lindsey.

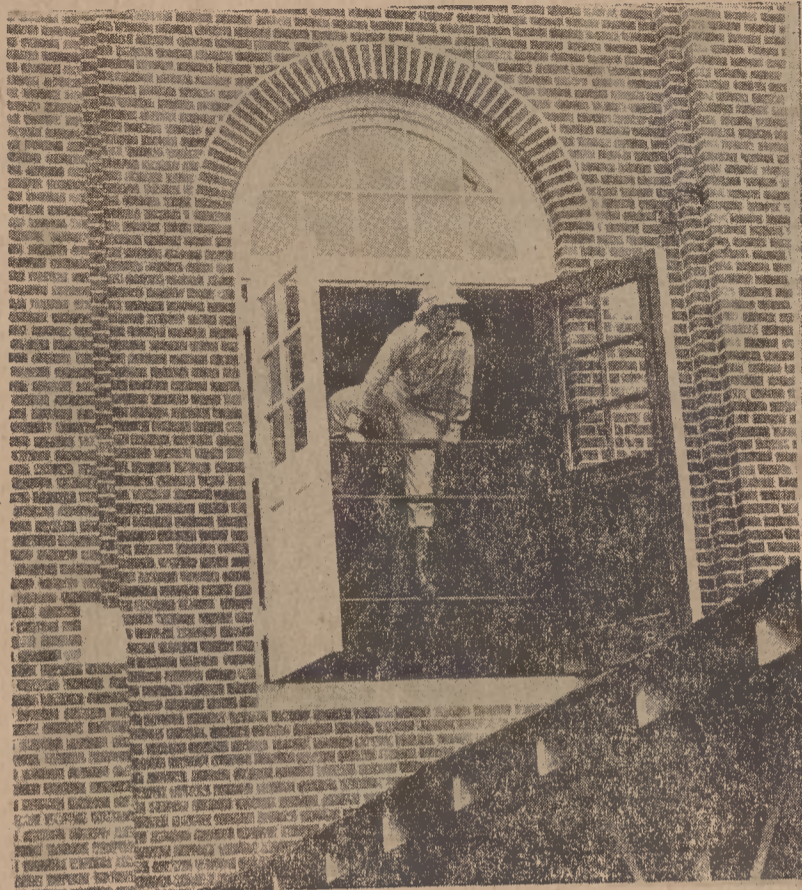

New Pep Leader— "Dandy" Dan

"Dandy" Dan Franklin, the new pep board chairman, really has things moving. According to board members, committees are being formed and people seem to really be getting interested.

One of the most innovative ideas is the spirit jug, the reward for the old cheer where sophomores, juniors, and seniors stand up and yell.

According to some students this yell seems to be a farce, for every year the seniors "win."

Llewellyn Heads Up Dystrophy Group

"Teens Against Dystrophy," an organization to help children who are afflicted with muscular dystrophy, has helped many children in many different ways.

The program was formed three years ago, after several teenagers returned from the muscular dystrophy camp where they were counselors.

These people felt a need for continuing interest, throughout the school year, instead of one week during the summer.

Mouse And Mums, Crown And Crowd; Homecoming Held

There was nothing Mickey Mouse about this year's Homecoming, even though the theme was Walt Disney. The big day was Friday, October 20, at our game with Reynolds.

The court was nominated on Thursday, October 5, by the senior football players and the boys who are senior student council representatives. Voting for the court was done by juniors and seniors on Tuesday, October 10.

Committees were set up with primarily junior chairmen: Election—Sharon Brewer and Sam Stephens; Props—Ross Little and Kay Shoffner; Programs—Kathi Garrett and Pattie Parrett; Invitations—Debbie Gutterman; Flowers—Barbara Shaw, Blanche Osborne, and Beth Cameron; Club Projects—Jimmy Matthews; Dance—Angie Dixon and Anne McDaniels; Music—Randy Kaplan.

The festivities began with a banquet held on Friday, October 20, during fourth and fifth periods, for the homecoming court and their escorts.

Cross Section Of Students To Make Affairs Committee

Along with the implementation of desegregation came six problems which had the potential to cause disruption in the schools. They included (1) student involvement policy, (2) facilities, (3) restrictions, (4) cross-cultural clashes, (5) classification of students, and (6) increasing politicalization of schools.

To meet head on with these problems is the purpose of the Student Affairs Committee. Whereas Student Council is involved with relations between students and the administration, Student Affairs is involved with relations among the students—all the students.

While members of the Student Council are elected, members of the Student Affairs Committee are elected and appointed. Twelve members will be elected, and twelve will be appointed.

There will be 8 representatives from each grade (4 elected, 4 appointed). The committee will be 50% black and 50% white; it will include all types of students—the poor, the rich, the militant, the not so militant, the intellectual, the not so intellectual, and the all-round average student.

If the administration discovers that an element of the student body is not represented on the committee, it will use its "power of appointment" to fill the position.

With such a diverse committee, it is hoped that integration, better human relations, and a sense of brotherhood can be accomplished more easily.

Thousands Attend College Program At Exhibition Hall

Over four thousand area students flocked to the Greensboro Exhibition Hall on October 2nd and 3rd to ask questions and receive literature from over one hundred colleges, universities, and trade schools representing the entire eastern seaboard.

The Kiwanis Club of Greensboro rented the Exhibition Hall and worked with the GHS Key Club to help set up tables and chairs and hang signs.

The Vocational Guidance Committee from Kiwanis worked with the Guidance Counselors from the city and county schools in ironing out all of the many details involved in this project.

The chairman for the city schools was Catherine Ray, and serving as chairman for the county schools was Janice Resseger.

"This proved to be a bigger success than we had ever hoped for, and I'm sure there will be more planned for the future," says Mr. Hoyt Price, a Kiwanis Club member.
