Clubs Hold Membership Drive

Grimsley Service clubs gave speeches for their annual membership campaign to the sophomores and new students to the GHS scene. The October 7 speeches, made by the service club presidents, enthusiastically proclaimed the work provided by the various clubs. Some of the activities highlighted were school beautification, homecoming, City Stage, interclub sports, and the GYC Carnival.

Three of the service organizations -- Jaycettes, Civinettes, and the Serteen Club collected rubble and debris from the stadium after the Page vs. Grimsley football game. Meanwhile, the Key Club is in the process of producing its directory of students' names, addresses, and phone numbers, a project offered free of charge to the student body and faculty. Insiders of this organization predict that publication and distribution will take place following Thanksgiving.

National Merit Announced

Grimsley's Guidance Office has released the names of seven students who are Merit Program Semifinalists. These students scored among the top 15,000 participants in the 1982 Competition. These students are eligible for the finalist list of 5,000 students to be announced in the spring of 1982.

Fifteen million dollars worth of awards for college undergraduate study will be divided among the finalists.

Those students from Grimsley are Catherine Smith, Gerit Newton, Barbi Prillaman, John Krege, Sunita Chandra, William McClamroch, and Michelangelo Grighi.

A number of Grimsley students have been commended in the 1982 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Scoring highly on their PSAT's, these students placed slightly below the NMSF semifinalists.

These students include Paul Walter Celmer, Renee Denise Godard, Max Steven Lloyd, Jeremy Bentham Petit, Rebecca Hall Reed, and Roberta Marie Rohan.

French Students Immersed In Language

Grimsley, along with third-fifth level French students from the other high schools, attended an October 21 French Immersion Day at the Department of Romance Languages at UNC-G.

Each student signed a pledge to speak only French from 8:30 to 3:00 that day. The students were divided into four teams by color and symbol. Four French cars were the symbols: Simca, Renault, Peugeot, and Citroen.

UNC-G graduate students worked with the high school students throughout the day with learning activities. The first activity of the day was the High IQ Competition. The topics were French literature, culture, and history. Each winning team was awarded points, and the teams with the most points went to the playoffs.

The second activity was for the fourth and fifth level students only. Each team was given two outlines of a situation to act out. This activity was judged by UNC-G professors and the winning team was awarded points.

The third activity was a volleyball game. The initial games were played along with the playoffs to determine first, second, and third place winners.

After lunch, the students heard a lecture from Dr. Chauvigne, a UNC-G professor, on the aspect of French culture.

Following this, was the awards ceremony for those who finished first and second. The awards were presented by the professors.

To round out the day, the French National Anthem, "La Marseillaise," was sung.

This day, sponsored chiefly by Grimsley's French Clubs's May Daisy sales from the past two years, brought all four city high schools and Weaver Center together in cooperation.

Each student received academic credit for participation in this exercise, and it underscored the importance of foreign language today.

Jody Powell Lectures At GET SET

Jody Powell, press secretary of former President Jimmy Carter, was the speaker at a convocation of approximately 850 senior high school students on October 20. Powell was introduced to these city high school students by onald Spruill, GET SET representative to student council from Grimsley. The Grimsley Jazz Ensemble was on hand to serenade Powell with several selections from their repertoire. The convocation was held in UNC-G's Aycock Auditorium.

Powell, a true insider in the Carter administration, enlightened his audience with his opinions of the former president's strengths and weaknesses as president, and gave personal reflections on the Carter administration's loss to Ronald Reagan. He also provided the group with an understanding of "Reaganomics" and the national climate in the fall of 1981.

While he was in graduate school at Emory University, Powell became a volunteer in the Carter gubernatorial campaign in Georgia. Powell served as press secretary during Carter's four years as governor (1970-74), continued during the mid-1970's presidential campaign, and has remained a close advisor as press secretary to Carter.

Since January, he has lectured and accompanied the Carter family on the recent trip to China. He has continued to keep a close eye on Washington politics and has been quoted often about events or reactions to the Carter administration.

GET SET (Greater Enrichment Through Scholarly and Entertaining Talks) is a program funded by Burlington Industries, Ciba-Geigy, and Lorillard to provide challenging and timely experiences for senior high students in the Greensboro Public Schools.

Students Meet Candidates

The three candidates for Greensboro mayor met with city high school students on October 1 at an 8:00 p.m. GYC (Greensboro Youth Council) sponsored program.

After an introduction by GYC Chairman Paul Moskowitz, candidates Sol Jacobs, John Forbis, and Vic Nussbaum were given approximately five minutes each to address some pertinent issues, such as the ward systems, industrial growth, and housing and zoning laws.

Then students, by school district, were given the floor for about 35 minutes for questions.

According to GYC Records Director Lorraine Marca, this program was sponsored in order to give an "opportunity for high school students to meet the candidates and see where they stand." She believes that people at least need to know who the candidates are and need to become "more informed about city government." In addition, Marca maintains that students need "some sort of understanding of issues facing the city."

Marca hopes that meetings with this type of structure will encourage good questioning and promote some good debates. She adds that the GYC has tentative plans to hold other such informative meetings in the future. Such events will be open to all high school students.
