PTSA Project Now In Effect

By Tamera Majors

The Cultural Arts Project, sponsored by the PTSA, is a plan to make students of Grimsley more aware of cultural arts programs and opportunities.

Mrs. Linda Kershner, chairperson of the Cultural Arts Project, says she hopes to publicize the musical concerts and dramatic performances in order to make students more aware of these events. She is also interested in forming an art gallery of student works in the cafeteria. Any student would be eligible to submit his or her work to be displayed in the gallery.

Another item represented by the Cultural Arts Project is the cultural arts contest, called "Reflections," which is sponsored by the national PTA. Because of the lack of participation from Grimsley students in the past, Kershner would like to encourage students to enter. "I know we've got the talent at Grimsley, and I'd

Christmas Dance

By Susan Thaxton

The Civinettes are working hard to make this holiday season a very special time of the year. They are sponsoring a Christmas Holiday Dance with the theme of "Jingle Bell Rock."

The dance will be on Saturday, December 18 from 8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight. Tickets are $5.00 per couple; a single ticket is $3.00. Weaver Center is printing the tickets.

Proceeds from the dance will go to the Association of Retarded Citizens. This is one of the main fund raising projects done by the Civinettes.

A special feature at the dance will be a Christmas Tree decorated with all the Civinettes' names on it.

Child Care Presents Holidays Around The World

By Lisa Freiberg

Grimsley's Child Care Class on December 6, presented a program, "Holiday Around the World." Each of the eight groups was discussed and represented at the program.

The eight areas represented were: France, presented by Veronique Koenig and Beth Jordan; Israel, presented by Margaret McQuade and Kathy Richardson; Hawaii, presented by Toshima Harris and Cynthia Jones; Mexico, presented by Heidi Eure and Cathy Sharpe; Holland, presented by Brenda Forman and Tracy Ozmond; Japan, presented by Julie Robertson and Barbra Bogaty; Africa, presented by Monica Grave; Germany, presented by Beth Forsyth and Angela Eason.

Each group presented two art activities, a song, dance, game, costume, food and decoration from its respective country. The groups had two weeks to prepare for the presentations.

There were 20 seniors and 50 kindergartners involved in the program. Each of the eight groups was made up of one or two seniors and six or seven kindergartners.

Mrs. Patricia Beamer, teacher and organizer for this annual program, explained that the class pretended they was going on a trip around the world. The classroom is divided into eight different sections. As the class walked to the different sections, that particular group presented its mini-program.

Parents of the children used to attend these annual programs. Now the kindergarten class has become so large that students and teachers can barely fit into one classroom.

The seniors who were selected for this year's Child Care class were chosen from more than 50 applicants. The selection is based on analysis and recommendation. A prerequisite for the course is Child Development.

Clubs In Brief

By Alise Weinstein

Clubs Have 'Heart'

The following members of the Exchange, Exchangelettes, and O. Henry Junior Service Clubs volunteered their time to help coordinate the 1983 Jump Rope for Heart, sponsored by the Greensboro Heart Association, on November 12: Exchangelettes, Beth Bunting, Anna Thompson, Ethel Priestly, Barbara Bulla, Sharon Sasser, Leslie Christopher, Marie Clayton, Jeri Roberts, Kara Anton, and Corey Reed; Exchange, Jeff Ferrell, Jay Scism, Mike Baer, Mike Moses, Bart Manning, Tommy Rohan, and Tommy Rouse;

OHJ's, Noel Busch, Michelle Tirella, Diane Morton, and Sarah Forbes.

These students worked directly with elementary students who jumped rope for over a three-hour period.

Jaycettes

The Jaycettes Service Club has been quite busy this past month. On December 6 they had BAG Night sponsored by the Empty Stocking Fund, during which they "bagged" toys for needy families.

They are also going to have a "Learning to Share" program in which they take underprivileged children shopping for elderly people at a church. When the children bring the gifts to the Starmount Presbyterian Church, a Santa will be there with presents for the children.

AFS

The AFS club seems to be very busy also. They had a covered dish supper in Room 521 on December 7 with the adult chapter of the American Field Service Club.

They are currently selling doughnuts as a fund-raiser.

Little Four Is Coming

By Bill Newnam

On December 28, 29, and 30, the seventh annual Little Four Invitational Basketball Tournament will be held at the Greensboro Coliseum. Four city teams, Dudley, Grimsley, Page, and Smith, and four county teams, Western, North east, Northwest, and Southeast Guilford will battle for the championship, starting at 4:00 p.m.

The Grimsley Whirlies have won three of the six previous tournaments, including the last two in a row. Grimsley is the only team to win two consecutive tournaments. Their other victory came in the 1978 tournament.

The Page Pirates are the strong favorite in this year's tournament, but Whirlie head coach Phil Weaver feels "we have a chance" also.

"Being an underdog will help us," said Weaver. "There is a lot of pressure on Page. Anything can happen in a tournament," he added.

Despite the rumor that this will be the last Little Four tournament, Grimsley athletic director Robert Sawyer said that by no means will this be the final tournament.

The first round match-ups are Dudley vs. Northwest in game one, Page vs. Western in game two, Smith vs. Northeast in game three, and Grimsley vs. Southeast in game four. The championship game will be held on December 30 at 9:00 p.m.

This year there will be an additional feature in the tournament. "The Great Shoot-Out" is an attempt to increase interest and tournament attendance. Each school will have a free-throw champion from the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grade levels who will compete against each other and find an over-all champion from each grade level.

The Little Four Basketball Tournament is sponsored by the Greensboro Sports Council in conjunction with Greensboro City Schools.

Campus Happenings

SSBAG

SSBAG (Student School Board Action Group) has been busy recently especially since the Little Four Basketball Tournament is coming up.

SSBAG is sponsoring the Little Four this year, and many activities have been planned including a free-throw contest. For the contest, there will be one winner from each grade level shooting free throws during half-time of the games.

Another topic of discussion for SSBAG is the issue of rezoning. At a recent meeting, Carl-Henry Geschwing proposed a rezoning policy but it was voted down by the group.

Torchlight

Torchlight, Grimsley's National Honor Society, is in the midst of discussing many activities. They plan to help students with learning disabilities by recording biology books on tape making the material easier to understand.

The group also hopes to sell doughnuts as a fund raiser.

Key Club

The Key Club, led by president Anthony Hipp, sold Whirlie Country bumper stickers for one dollar.

Their annual directory should be out soon after Christmas.

School Board

The Greensboro Public Schools' Board of Education is presently discussing the new rezoning proposal. They will be voting on this issue sometime during the next couple of months.

GHS Receives Drama Awards

By Eddie Drew

Two GHS seniors were presented awards in the regional drama competition held at the Weaver Education Center on November 19.

The award for best actor was presented to Kevin Coltrane, and an honorable mention award for acting was presented to Marty Leary.

Grimsley also received two other honorable mentions: for Scenery and Costume in the play Chamber Music, for Endgame as one of the best eight plays.

Advisor Mr. Richard Zaruba felt that "the competition was not only challenging, but it was also a learning experience."

The series of one-act plays presented at the competition will be performed at Grimsley sometime this school year.

GHS Musician Of Note
