Seceding from Union, Alaska joins Iron Curtain

Hollywood superstar Tom Hanks will be producing a new movie, scheduled to play in theaters in time for Christmas of 2013. The name of the movie is The Son of Forrest Gump. Hanks will reprise his role as the title character's father. Neil Patrick Harris will assume the role. Creating an ironic twist to the movie, North Carolina writer Nicholas Sparkle portrays Forrest Gump, Jr. (FGJ) as an incredibly attractive hunk with supernatural powers.

Unlike his father, FGJ will experience life as the man on top. He will attract all of the young women he can muster and perform as the best player on the high school football team. Also to his father's surprise, he will earn amazingly good grades.

“I am excited about the huge spin in the film's plot,” said Sparkle. “Viewers will learn that FGJ is not really Forrest Gump's biological son with Jenny. This dramatic discovery will adequately explain why FGJ is not following in his father's footsteps. Near the end of the story, the audience will discover that Jenny did not really die, but instead faked her death so that she could return to her life as a junkie. For those individuals curious as to whom the real father of FGJ is, they will have to buy tickets to watch the movie.”

One may recall the stories of Christine O'Doyle's practice in witchcraft back in 2010 when she ran for a U.S. Senate seat. Now more evidence is surfacing regarding her witchcraft and demonic schemes. On March 27, pictures of a witch were released in Wilmington, Delaware from where she was flying on her broomstick.

“I am not a witch. All I did was dabble in witchcraft. In fact, I have only burned three men at the stake as sacrifices, and I only practice my potions on stray cats, but I stopped doing that stuff three years ago,” said O'Doyle.

Attorneys defending her believe this whole matter was a setup with another politician behind it. Some of her defenders presume Minnesota Michelle Bawkmann is the ringleader. Whether there is physical proof of her sorcery, most agree Bawkmann is a lunatic with very eccentric thoughts and habits.

Florida Senator Marco Rubix-Cube even had to drink some bottled water before he could discuss the subject. When he set down the water, he mumbled something about her disgraceful behavior.

“It was our President's fault for trying to regulate gun control and raising the minimum wage,” said Rubix-Cube. “Such policies would likely induce irrational behavior.”

Fore Seezuns Mall will close its doors on High Point Road and will move to another location. No access to its stores will be available for at least three years, as the company owner has yet to determine a new location. Options include areas near Southeast Guilford High School, land adjacent to the Asheboro Zoo, and the site of the old Greensboro baseball stadium.

Management from the Greensboro Coliseum was looking to expand their site and purchased the property where the mall currently stands. Therefore, all of the consumers who shop at Four Seasons will have to seek other places to shop for their clothes, shoes, and jewelry. This change in venue will

“I will provide a design layout for the mall by November of 2014,” said architect Joseph Landlubber. “I know for a fact that this new shopping mall will include a basketball court, an ice skating ring, a car wash, and even a go cart track.”

Although the shutting down of Four Seasons will be devastating, the wait for the new and improved super mall should be well worth the wait.

“I think I will call the new shopping extravaganza Utopia,” said Four Seasons owner Monfried Moneybags.
