

Phoenix People's Voices:

Politicians always promise to clean up the neighborhoods and improve the quality of life in the community. What would you want to see done?

Anthony Barrow

We should work together to help those who are less fortunate. Develop community watch for our people of all ages including our kids, regardless of their nationality or creed and encourage one another if we want a better community instead of condemning. No one is perfect.

James McCorKoe

Lifestyles have changed so much. We need some kind of organizations or groups that would involve adults and children where everyone could express themselves, so we can improve and cater to each other according to our needs in our neighborhood.

Mary Jenkins

We should pull together as sisters and brothers. We need to stop looking down on people for what they are and to accept them for what they are about.

Carrie Wilkes

I have very nice Christian neighbors. The neighborhood has grown since I moved into it. People should practice Christianity more often. We need a sidewalk for the young and older people. Overall, my neighborhood is splendid.

Patricia Sheppard

Times have changed. People are not close any more because of the fast pace of life, our difference of direction, and the economic changes. We have different lifestyles, and people are skeptical of each other. People need some kind of common interest to draw each other together so we can familiarize ourselves with our neighbors.

Geraldine Green

I think that the neighborhood should be kept up neater and cleaner than it is now and stop all the kids from hanging around in front of Burger King. They need to find a place just for young people to hang out.
