HOUSING '92

Razing History, Not Raising Funds

St. Anne's Academy, the old Kyle mansion and former school for college-bound Blacks, has gone the way of many parts of East Winston's history. Page 9.

Some Are Homeless By Choice

Despite programs and efforts to house and feed the homeless, some refuse to do for themselves. Phoenix Managing Editor, Pat Smith-Deering, discusses this issue in this month's "Crossroads" column. Page 11.

Helping People Become Self-Reliant

Making things right for her clients is what fills the work day for Queen Wright, a shining star and saving grace at the Experiment In Self-Reliance, according to Glendolyn J. Pope, in her special feature. Page 15.

Blacks Keep Victimizing Each Other

The senseless violence by Black teenagers, particularly the young men, must stop, and teens themselves can take charge, says Aprelle Alexander-Williams, a young contributing writer on "Phoenix Teens-News & Views". Page 16.

On The Cover...
