Councils Are To Sponsor Peanut Week Whose Nut Are You—Who Is Your Shell

Each Girl To Be Both Nut and Shell. Hints As To Identities Given Daily. Object To Promote Better Friendship Between Two Student Bodies.

"Nerts to you" will be quite a permissible phrase at Queens next week, for that will be PEANUT WEEK at the college. And for once every student will be a recognized nut—and like it—and every girl will possess a shell into which she can retire.

Because it is believed that all the students need to mingle more "just for fun," the Boarding and Day Student Councils have functioned as one governing board in planning this week. Those girls who know each other slightly, or not at all, have been paired as a "nut" and a "shell." And each student is in turn a "shell" of some "nut" and the "nut" of some "shell."

The "shells" on the Queens campus next week will, however, be more than protecting bodies. They will be entertaining and surprising. Each day every shell will send a note or a small nickel gift to her "nut," always being careful to keep her identity a secret from her "nut."

On Saturday evening, March 21, "nuts" and "shells" will get together at an informal hilarious party at the Gym, and for the first time in the week "nuts" and "shells" will meet as such and be recognized. The "shells" will be in control, however, for it shall be their responsibility to send to their respective "nerts" a note revealing the sign by which the "shell" will be known to the "nut" at the party.

That week of March 16 will be seven days of fun and surprises for the students at Queens. There are but a few rules which make the fun. Every "shell" must keep her identity a secret. No "shell" shall forget or neglect her "nut." Everyone is to enter into the spirit of the week, so no one will feel deserted. No "shell" may spend more than five cents a day on her "nut," and she need not spend that much, for a stamp, a postal card, or a chatty note will be a surprise. And surprises are the things that will make the fun at Queens next week.

DR. ELLWOOD TO DISCUSS REVOLUTION

On Friday evening, March 20th, Dr. Charles A. Ellwood of Duke University will speak in the Queens-Chicora College auditorium on the topic: Revolutions and How They May Be Avoided. This concludes a series of four lectures by Dr. Ellwood in the field of sociology, sponsored by the American Association of University Women. All these lectures have been delivered in the college auditorium and have been attended in large numbers by students of the college. In speaking of this coming lecture on revolution Dr. Ellwood stated that, if he might be permitted to use the modern term, it is to be "a hot one." Dr. Ellwood is head of the department of sociology at Duke University, is author of a number of books in his field and is a noted lecturer. Queens students have been afforded an unusual opportunity in hearing this distinguished scholar.

John and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., sons of the President and Harvard students, have taken a pledge for safe driving. Both have been involved in numerous accidents.

Convention To Be Held At Decatur

In And Out-Going Presidents To Represent Queens At Student Convention

Queens-Chicora college will be represented by two girls at the convention of the Southern Inter-Collegiate Association of Student Government. They are the out-going president of the student body, Margaret Trobaugh, and the in-coming president who has not yet been elected.

The convention which will be held from the twenty-sixth to the twenty-ninth of March, will take place in Decatur, Georgia, with headquarters at Agnes Scott college. It enables the representatives from the various colleges of the association to meet, discuss and solve problems incident to institutions of their calibre.

Membership of the Southern Inter-Collegiate Association of Student Government is confined to the student government organization of women's colleges in the south, each college of which must have a minimum of two hundred students. Dr. Frazer has been recently elected president of the Southern Association of Women's Colleges and Secondary Schools.

This will be the 21st Annual Convention held by this association. The last convention was held at Florida State College for Women, Tallahassee, Fla., and was attended by two delegates from Queens.

To win a $3.00 bet, a former University of Minnesota swimming team captain swam 225 feet under water.

STUDENTS OF LEAGUE TO CONVENE

Prominent Church Leaders
Featured As Speakers

The League of Evangelical Students will hold a regional conference at Queens-Chicora on April 17th and 19th. This is the first conference of its kind to be held in this part of the south. Delegates will be invited to it from all colleges in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

The conference will open Friday afternoon, April 17th, with registration at 4:00. After dinner Friday evening there will be a vesper hour out on the campus, followed by an address at 8:00 in the auditorium. Dr. William Childs Robinson, professor of church history at Columbia Seminary in Decatur, Georgia, is the speaker selected to deliver this address. After the close of Dr. Robinson's message, there will be a social hour for all delegates to the conference.

At the chapel hour Saturday morning, April 18th, Dr. R. B. Kuiper, of Westminster Seminary, Philadelphia, will address the college student body and the conference delegates in the auditorium. Open forum will be conducted through Saturday afternoon. The conference will close with a banquet meeting Saturday night. The last feature of the conference is an inspirational address at the close of the banquet meeting.

There will be special music throughout the conference, to be furnished by conference delegates. The pianist is Virginia Dobson of Converse College and the song leader is Rev. E. A. Dillard of Tenth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Charlotte.

Perhaps the most promising feature of the conference is the opportunity in store of hearing the speakers being brought to it. Many prominent church leaders have consented to come and take part in the meetings and it is indeed a rare privilege to have them as guests. Among these have already been mentioned the distinguished Dr. William Childs Robinson and Dr. R. B. Kuiper. Others to be here are Dr. W. H. Wrighton, pro-

Seniors Are Now Practice Teaching

Approximately Thirty Girls To Observe and Teach In City Schools

Approximately thirty seniors have begun their tenure of practice teaching in Charlotte City Schools with a teachers' certificate as their objective. Applicants are required to spend twenty hours observing and thirty hours actually teaching in order to receive a North Carolina certificate. Faculty heads of the various departments are supervising the girls of their departments. Dr. Althea H. Kratz, Dean of Instruction, is in charge of all practice teachers.

Seniors doing work at Central High School are: Catherine Anderson, Anne Batten, Roberta Kilgore, Frances Query, Helen Thompson, Bettie Wicker, Jean Stough, Rose Ellen White, Elizabeth Sullivan, Ida Virginia Miller, Louise Holland, and Louise Orr.

At Piedmont Junior High School the following girls are practicing: Dorothy Ehrhardt, Ione Smith, Virginia Hubbard, Eleanor Woodcock, and Sara Griffith.

May Day festivities will be carried out in quite a novel motif this year. A Grecian scheme is being planned and the court promises to be a lovely one. The scene will be centered around the story of Iphigenia, daughter of Agamemnon. The myth will be supported by Grecian dances, the scarf and balloon dances. The most unusual part of the festivities is the fact that the maids of the court will be gowned in Grecian costumes.

The court is not yet complete but the following girls have been selected as attendants: Margaret Calder, maid-of-honor, Charlotte; Nancy Philips, Charlotte; Marjorie Timms, Winnsboro, S. C.; Marion Price, Charlotte; Josephine Long, Catawba; Lib Martin, Charlotte; Mary Frances Ehrlich, Chester, S. C.; Bertha Burch, Charlotte; Jean Stough, Cornelius; Jean Orr, Charlotte; Martha Petteway, Charlotte; Martha Elizabeth Alexander, Charlotte; Martha Ward, Bainbridge, Ga.; Jane Wiley, Charlotte; Margaret Land, Chester, S. VOCATIONAL PROGRAM FOR SOPHOMORES

Here at Queens-Chicora there is a very important work going on. This work is the enlarging of the educational and vocational guidance program for the students under the supervision of the department of psychology. There is a committee composed of faculty members who are working to carry out the best possible program. Dr. Ethel Abernethy is chairman of the committee; other members of the committee are Dean Kratz, Dean Edwards, Dr. Delano, Dr. Howe, Miss Jones, Mrs. McEwen, Miss Nooe, and Miss Turnipseed.

One new phase of this guidance program is the testing. The testing consists of an inventory of study habits, tests of general aptitude (so-called "intelligence tests"), and measures of special aptitudes and abilities for the fields of teaching, medicine, music, and such like. Inventories of personality traits are being made also. These include introversion-extroversion, and dominance-submission. One of the most important of these five groups of tests is the inventory of vocational interests.

These tests and inventories are being correlated with the mental hygiene course. The seventy-eight members of the mental hygiene class are serving as subjects.

The committee is working in an attempt to score and interpret test results by the middle of March. Then five weeks will be devoted to personal interviews with each student tested. The interviews will be concluded shortly before classification begins in the spring.

The typical Harvard man is "an indifferent old maggot with a funny accent," says the university's alumni bulletin.
