

Dr. W. H. Fraser Will Present Miss Grace Robinson in Recital

Interesting Program To Be Presented March 30—Several Foreign Selections To Be Sung—Miss Wharton Is Accompanist

Dr. W. H. Fraser will present a recital by Miss Grace Robinson, soprano, Monday evening, March 30, at 8:30 P. M. This is Miss Robinson's first public recital since her arrival in Charlotte last fall to become voice instructor at Queens. The words of the foreign compositions will be translated on the programs so that there will be no difficulty in understanding them.

Miss Mary Wharton will accompany Miss Robinson on the piano.

Miss Robinson will give the following program:

I (a) Amarilli, Mia Bella

—Girdio Caccini (1546-1614)

(Translation)

Amarilli, my fair one, can't thou doubt my love true and tender? Do but believe, for should e'er fear assail thee, it can ne'er avail thee. On my heart 'tis writ Amarilli, my beloved.

(b) Gia Il Sole Dal Gange

—Alessandro Scarlatti (1659-1725)

(Explanation)—

This song is the work of Alessandro Scarlatti, who was himself a fine singer, as well as a master of the harp and harpsichord. In this song Scarlatti gives a musical description of sunrise on the Ganges River.

(c) O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?

—Handel (1685-1759)

(Explanation)

This song, composed in 1743, is from a secular Oratorio Semele by George Frideric Handel. His mastery of his art was supreme in almost every branch but most especially when he was dealing with voices, whether as solos or chorus.

II (a) Die Lotosblume

—Schumann (1810-1856)

(Translation)

The lotus flower feareth the sun so bright And with her head low bended she dreamily waiteth for night.

The moon he is her lover He wakes her with silvery lure To him she gladly unveileth Her snow white flower face pure.

She blooms and glows and lightens And gazes mutely on high Exhaling and weeping and trembling

For love and loves overjoy.

(b) Du Bist Wie Eine Blume

—Schumann

(Translation)

As sweet as any flower so fair and pure thou art Yet as I gaze, foreboding fills my heart

I fain would lay on thy tresses my head in silent prayer Praying that God ever keep thee so pure and sweet and fair.

(c) Wiegenlied

Franz Schubert (1792-1829)

(Translation)

Slumber my darling baby gently rocked by mother's hand Softly rest and slumber while she swings the cradleband

Slumber sweetly buried in mother's arms All her wishes, possessions, and love shall shelter thee from harm.

Many a song for thee she'll sing And when thou wakest, to thee, a rose and lily will she bring.

III (a) Pourquoi (from "Lakme")

—Delibes

(Translation)

Ah, why in these sombre woods Do I love to roam? Is it to weep alone? Why is my heart so saddened By voice of ringdom calling

At sight of flowlets fading

Or of brown leaflets falling

And yet these tears have charms for me

Even though I sigh

I feel that I am glad

But why?

(b) Beau Soir

—Debussy (1862-1918)

(Translation)

When setting sun turns rivers to rose

And warm tremors run o'er fields of grain

And urge to be happy seems to come from things

And to surge towards the troubled heart

An urge to exult in the pure joy of living

Especially when young, and the evening is beautiful

For we all go away, as the wave goes away

(c) Mandolin.....Debussy

(Translation)

Gay cavaliers who make serenades

And beautiful listening maidens

'Neath branches singing as gaily

Soft, foolish words are exchanging

Here's Tricis, and here's Arminta and there eternal cliftander.

Here's Damis for some cruel maid

he makes tender verses

Their short waist coats of silk, their long robes with trains

Their elegance, their joy and their soft blue shadows

Whirl in ecstasy 'neath a rose gray moon

While the mandolin chatters mongst tremulous breezes.

II Neige.....Bemberg

(Translation)

'Tis snowing and the large flakes like cotton, fall on snow-covered roofs

The timorous birds huddle together closing their eyes too cold to sing.

'Tis snowing, 'tis snowing, and all is covered,

With the white mantle of snow

'Tis drear and cold and the icy winds freeze

Our very hearts and unhappy lovers sigh for

The Warmth of Spring.

I Bring You Colored Toys

—John Alden Carpenter

(Explanation)

This song is taken from a collection by our American composer "Gilan-jali" Song Offerings. The words are by Rabindranath Qagore, the modern East Indian Poet.

Clouds.....Ernest Charles

(Explanation)

This song is by one of our very modern composers.

Unforseen.....Cyril Scott

(Explanation)

Cyril Scott, an English composer living in Australia, frequently uses familiar chords and extra notes for fresh color.

He has done this in this song.

A Spirit Flower.....Campbell Tipton

(Explanation)

Campbell Tipton, an American composer, composed his first song at the age of 15.

Second In Series Of Programs Given

Queens-Chicora presented a program of special interest to Charlotte and vicinity, Wednesday evening, March 25th at 10:30 over station WBT. The entire choral club sang an Irish tune by Galway to begin the fifteen minutes.

Dr. W. H. Fraser, president of the college, spoke on "The Present Day Challenge to the Educational System," a fitting successor to Dean Kratz's talk last week on "The Scope and Possibilities of a College Education."

"The vital thing," Dr. Fraser said, "in education is the adjusting factor of the individual life being educated to an honest and harmonious relationship to mankind and to a proper approach and subservience unto God." He gave as his beliefs regarding the context of the challenge, that it is a challenge "for an education that aims not only at the development of intellect, but also at the development of character." He gave as another purpose of the challenge, the production of citizenship.

Dr. Fraser closed with the true and effective statement that "Our world must be healed; and truth must be the healing balm."

The program was concluded by the singing of "Alma Mater" by the choral club.
