

Albright's Class Dines At Thackers

The Parliamentary Law Class entertained its members and visitors at a dinner party March 17, at 6 o'clock at Thacker's Restaurant in a private dining room. The class has studied all types of meetings, banquet, etc., and this was one of the types they studied. The banquet was supervised by Miss Thelma Albright who teaches the class.

Betty Baker, a member of the class, was chairman and toastmistress of the affair. She greeted the visitors and introduced Charlotte Sutter who gave a reading entitled, "The Origin of St. Patrick's Day." Next Frances Riddle sang a group of Irish Songs. Concluding the program was an Irish Jingle Contest. Sarah Thompson won the prize for the best jingle submitted.

Special guests at the dinner party were: Miss Agnew, Dr. Stout, Sarah Thompson, Alice Barron, Frances Riddle, Pedie Burke, Irene Davis, Peggy Schaeffer, Madeline Lottos, Mary Currie, Sara Durant, Lib Brammer, and Elizabeth Green.

Members of the Parliamentary Law Class who attended the party are: Miss Albright, Olivia Gillespie, Ann Purnell, Lynch Crockett, Betty Baker, Louise Crane, and Charlotte Sutter.

Other types of social and business meetings as studied will be given by the class for actual experience and practice.

Literary Group Hears Albright

was written during the poet's first visit to the famous Black Forest of On Friday, March 18, Miss Thelma Albright gave an interesting preparatory lecture on Louis Untermeyer at the Day Student Union.

In the beginning Miss Albright brought out the fact that she was not an authority on Untermeyer but merely interested in him as a writer. She stated that Louis Untermeyer was born in 1885, a Jew and a Yankee. He was a semi-professional musician and a successful business man before he became interested in writing verse.

Miss Albright also stated that Untermeyer's work is divided into four types: poetry, parody, translation, and literary criticism. All of his various types are characterized by a keen sense of humor and a charming, clever style.

In closing Miss Albright read several of Untermeyer's best known poems and parodies.

QUEENS EXECUTIVE COUNCIL ELECTED

(Continued from page one, column five) president of the student body only. On Saturday, March 26, campaign speeches were made in chapel for the two nominees having the highest number of votes. Sally McDowell spoke for Helen Cunnock, and Mildred Lowrance spoke for Helen Hatcher. Then polls were open from ten o'clock until two, when votes were counted.

On Monday, nominations were made for the four remaining offices. These were announced Monday afternoon, with the two highest candidates running in each case. Voting took place on Tuesday, closing the election of the five major officers for the year.

Seniors Have Cone To Practice House

Senior members of the Home Economics Department took charge of the practice house Tuesday, March 22, under the supervision of Mrs. Warren H. Booker, head of the department. The girls will remain at the practice house until May 10.

The students have artistically re-decorated the house. They have charge of planning meals, ordering food, keeping account of the cost, cooking, and carrying on all home activities. The girls rotate their duties by pairs, in order that each girl may have an opportunity to do each task. A host and hostess are appointed to serve for a period of a week, and are privileged to entertain guests for meals or a tea.

The students who are in the practice house are: Margaret Montgomery, Louise Faircloth, Geneva Brawley, Thelma Cathey, Willie Allen, Freddie Ward, Margaret Garrison, Ora Lee Dougherty, Martha Johnston, Carolyn Kuykendal.

Dramatic Group Presents Play

"Slow Curtain," a petticoat play, was presented in the Queens-Chicora auditorium on Friday night, March 25, by the dramatic group of the Spectator Club.

Miss Albright of the college English department was advisor for the play, and it was directed by her and Miss Caddie Willis.

Make-up chairman was Miss Ashley Dulin, and Properties chairman, Miss Margaret Hudson.

The cast consisted of the following: Malvina Hathaway, Natalie Niven; Sloper, Mary Payne; Dorothy True, Carolyn Sibley; Delia True—Dorothy True's daughter — Marie Roseman; Frieda, Louise Moore; and Miss Hall, Sue Welch.
