

Sorority Sidelights

Alpha Delta Theta

The Alpha Delta Theta's played hostess this week-end — Porter and "Pris" Poole were kept busy thinking of ways to entertain their Wilmington friends.

Doris and Nancy Raley enjoyed company from South Carolina.

To add to the enjoyment, we had Miriam Teal, an alumna, spending the day with us.

Frances Poole took a flying trip to her home in Mullins, S. C.

Sybil Trexler reports a fine time at Carolina Mid-Winters last week-end and is looking forward to Davidson Mid-Winters.

Hilda Harmon breezed home as usual.

Can you imagine Carolyn Pierce and Henrietta McIver playing golf in Mt. Holly—but they did and report a wonderful time.

Dr. Stout was our guest Sunday night.

We enjoyed Margaret Thompson's attractive guest, Bernice Dorsey of Forest City. Annette Bruton's interesting sister of Clarkton was also a bright spot on the campus.

Margaret Holland tripped over to Mt. Holly for the day Sunday while Carolyn Pierce followed in her footsteps.

Chi Omega

We were all very happy to welcome Mildred Sneeden and Sally Crosland as pledges in the Theta Gamma chapter of Chi Omega last week. The pledging was conducted by our president, Eleanor Alexander, who has returned to school after her illness. We are so glad to have both her and Beebe McQueen back with us again.

Last week, Ann Mauldin left us for Chapel Hill where she attended the Carolina mid-winter dances. This week Delf Sutherland, Gentry Burks, Sara Kelly Lillard, Nancy Hovis, Mary Marshall Jones, Dot Branan, Helen Cumnock, Virginia Hickman, Maujer Moseley, Ann Mauldin and others are attending the Davidson mid-winters. Tena Garinger had her appendix taken out Thursday morning.

Last Sunday, we enjoyed a visit from Lib Maynard, an alum, from Columbia, S. C. Lib is now teaching in Chesterfield, S. C.

Alpha Gamma Delta

Visiting seems to have been the high light for Alpha Gamma Deltas last week-end.

Virginia Garrison visited at Catawba and from reports she had one of those "wonderful times."

Mrs. Frank Larson, Jr., who was formerly Viviane Bane, is visiting here. Viviane is now living in Newport News, Virginia.

Lemmon came to see Elaine Suber and they journeyed up to Lincolnton for a nice visit on Sunday.

Keller Young enjoyed dinner with her aunt last Sunday out in town.

Sarah Meyer hopped up to Randolph Macop during exams to see Nancy Claire Allen. That certainly must be a fine school.

Betsy was sick and out of school several days, but she is much better now and is back with us.

We certainly are glad to have Cornelia Truesdale back with us.

This week-end Virginia and Kay Duncan plan to visit Jo McDonald in Hamlet. Jebby Clark is going home, too.

Edith Brooks is to be a visitor on the campus this week-end. Welcome, Edith!

The rest of us haven't planned anything special for this week-end, but we'll have fun.

Music

The Metropolitan Opera Saturday afternoon presentations over nationwide radio networks have proved a very cultural and entertaining feature in the world of music. Operas which are too far away for us to see, may be enjoyed right in our own rooms over the radio.

An interesting note, especially in connection with the past two operas, is that several of the leading or supporting roles are taken by North Carolinians. Outstanding among these young singers are Norman Cordon, Lucille Browning, and Helen Olheim. The first two are from North Carolina while the last is a frequent visitor to Charlotte. All of them have appeared frequently in the Saturday Matinee Broadcasts, (Norman Cordon was excellent in "Aida" this past week) and they will no doubt be featured in more of the matinee broadcast.

On the 17th of February, another concert of the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra will be given under the direction of Mr. de Roxlo. The great artist will be Fernanda Doria, who will sing "Mors et Vitae," which was written by Mr. de Roxlo. Many Queens girls are expected to be present at this concert.

Finer Film Forum

A committee, representing Charlotte's cultural groups, has been organized to co-operate in bringing to this city fine and entertaining films never seen here—films not made in Hollywood, and having no Hollywood stars to assure their success—films

Phi Mu

Congratulations to Dot Duckett who is now a full-pledged Phi Mu. Initiation is fast speeding toward many of the other pledges, too, and we can hardly wait.

Among those enjoying the Davidson Dances are Jane Rankin, Helen Westerfield, Betsy Springer, and others. Lucy Harman, however, has gone to Clemson for their Mid-Winters. Billie Harmen has been invited to the Mid-Winters at Wake Forest the week-end of Feb. 25.

The feed last Sunday night was a huge success, what with the excellent food prepared by Dot Alexander and Mimi Bradham, along with Sarah Thompson's delightful songs. Peggy Sloop, an alum, was among the guests that night.

Best of luck to Eleanor Jenkins and Mitty Lowrance, who have started practice teaching at Central High.

The re-decoration of the house is now complete, and it's so lovely that we want all of you to see it. We know you'll be as thrilled over it as we are.

that receive no booking in the large theaters as their sole appeal lies in the artistry of their composition.

Such pictures as "Mayerling," "Moonlight Sonata," "Les Perles de la Couronne," and "Life of Beethoven," will be presented at the Visulite Theatre. The plan is to form a Forum presenting five films of this type for $1.00, payable in advance. Regular admission will be 25c. The first presentation was "Mayerling" with Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux on February 6, 7 and 8 followed by "Moonlight Sonata" with Paderewski on March 13, 14 and 15.

Spectator Club

On every college campus, there are a number of activities which offer cultural advantages to its students. Queens is very fortunate in having a great many organizations, one of the most important of which is the Spectator Club. This club is divided into three groups: The Book Tea Group, the Dramatic Group, and the Creative Writing Group.

One of the greatest aspects of culture is one's ability to discuss and criticize the latest books. The Book Tea Group encourages its members to read every worth-while, available book. At each meeting, a book, such as The Yearling or All This And Heaven Too, is reviewed by one of the members. Then the entire group takes part in a discussion. In this way students become acquainted with many good books.

The Dramatic Group studies plays and presents several during the year. A member who attends regularly acquires a certain amount of poise and eloquence of speech.

Just as the Dramatic Group teaches eloquence of speech, so the Creative Writing Group allows one to develop eloquence in writing. Oftentimes, in writing poems, essays, and themes, a student may develop an individual style that will remain with her the rest of her life.

To any girl who seeks culture along with knowledge, the Spectator Club offers unusual opportunities.

Columbia University has a new course in angling as a part of its "camp leadership" curriculum.

Kappa Delta

On the whole, Kappa Delta has had a rather uneventful week, but we do have a few things to tell you:

"Cookie" Scoggin left last Thursday morning for Lexington, Virginia. While there she attended the "Fancy Dress Ball" at Washington and Lee, and from all reports, we know she must have had a wonderful time.

Frances Riddle and Alice Barron spent the week-end in Columbia, S. C., with their parents.

Lib Erwin, Margaret Harden, Nancy Walker, Olivia Gillespie, Olive Crowell, Dove Venning, "Lib" Taylor, Judy White and "Lil" Sample went to the skating party given last Friday night, by the Young People of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Alene Long and Jane Kirkpatrick of Charlotte were guests at the "feed" Sunday night.

Pedie Burke, a last year's pledge, was married at her home in Freeman, West Virginia, Saturday afternoon, to Hampton DeJarnette. They will make their home in Princeton, West Virginia.

Tiny Waddill, Nell Abott, Kat Curran, and Dot Muse are attending the Mid-Winter dances this week-end.

Chi Omega Tea

The Theta Gamma chapter of Chi Omega sorority gave a lovely tea Friday afternoon at the sorority house in honor of the patronesses of the chapter.

Newly elected patronesses are Mrs. A. A. McGeachy, Mrs. Edgar G. Gammon, Mrs. W. B. Hodge, and Mrs. J. J. Akers. Others are Mrs. W. H. Bell, Mrs. J. C. Crowell, Mrs. O. L. Barringer and Mrs. W. Myers Hunter.

Other special guests at the tea included Mrs. Warren H. Booker, Mrs. James M. Godard, Mrs. Virginia Miller Agnew and Miss Margaret Van Devanter.

The sorority house was attractively decorated with bowls of narcissi and forsythia. During the afternoon, a tea-course was served, and the sorority members sang a group of Chi Omega songs.

Our Co-Ed

I guess you've heard Orson Well's program on "Things To Come", and about the terrible earthquake in Chile; but how trivial these all seem when you stop to think about "our Co-ed." You've dreamed of riding away with your knight in shining armor on a white steed, and I suppose you could even imagine "him" as the knight (?).

I started out to write about "him" with great expectations, but I have just about reached my wits end. When it comes to being elusive, Katie Hepburn and Garbo had best look to their laurels; honestly, I've never seen any one person so hard to find something about as "Our Co-Ed." After inquiring at the office, I was still in the dark because they had no record of his name. He isn't so dumb because he comes to school at 8:30 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays,

Alpha Delta Pi

Yvonne Williams' birthday party at Betty Carr's Saturday night was enjoyed by Marguerite Craven, "Pug" Russell, Marjorie Russell, Nina Brown, Lib Walters, and Dot Myers. Yvonne and Lib's parents came and spent the week-end with them.

Snoodie Mattheson went to Wofford to the Kappa Sig dances with Forrest. She spent Saturday night at Converse with Jean Miller.

Marjorie Russell and Marjorie Timms both went home for the week-end and Nina and Lulu went home for the day Sunday.

We had a most exciting feed Sunday night. Our guests were Mrs. Agnew, Miss Peggy Dunlap, Jo Long, Betty Baker, Ruth Archer, and Elliott McCormick. Betty came out to tell the sisters that she was getting married. We hate to see her go so far from home to live, but he's so nice, we know Betty is going to be happy. Annie Mae Brown was repledged Tuesday night and after the service, the Big Sisters gave a party for their Little Sisters.

Anne Cromartie went home Wednesday to her brother's wedding.

Jo Long spent last week-end with Margaret Jager and Catherine. She is here doing practice teaching at Dilworth School.

Trip is going home an awful lot these days. Do you suppose she is homesick or is there an interest there?

Katherine Martin went home for the week-end. She missed all the excitement of seeing Betty off and was she mad!

and everyone's far too sleepy to notice him much.

I gathered from one of his classmates that he's a "whiz" at chemistry. (By the way, he's taking Advanced Chemistry, and seems to know all the answers.) I caught a glimpse of him one Monday morning, consequently, it may not be very authentic, but at any rate he was average size, (no All American) dark hair (not any too thick in places (a nose just a little on the long side) and above all he had on glasses. Perhaps this was just a reflection of my night—er, dream the night before, but anyway, it's something to start with. I don't pretend to be giving any "advice to the lovelorn," but from the looks on some of your faces, a hint to the wise would be sufficient. As far as I know he's free, white, and twenty-one, and he probably would look very nice in one of the parlors on Saturday night.

Akron University students have a new rating for their professor—h.p.h. (harumphs per hour). They've given their leather medal to Prof. Ross Stagner, for his record of 107 h.p.h. and 16 sniffs in one one-hour lecture.
