Freshman Class Issues Winning Paper

Stout, Albright, Denny, Committee, Award Five Dollars To First Years

The freshman issue of the QUEENS BLUES, published recently in the annual contest between the sophomores and freshmen, edited by Ann Peyton and managed by Anne Mauldin, was announced yesterday to be the winner of the contest by Dr. Agnes Stout, chairman of the committee of judges.

Qualities on which the papers are judged from the editorial standpoint include timeliness, quality and extent of interest, structure and style, accuracy, functional aspect, make-up, editorials, headlines, and features. The total of possible points is fifty. In the totaling of points submitted by Miss Mary Denny and Miss Thelma Albright, instructors in English and committee of judging, along with those of Dr. Stout, the freshman paper was five points ahead of the sophomore issue.

From the business standpoint, the sophomores cleared twelve dollars and the freshmen, thirty dollars.

The sophomores, said Dr. Stout, are to be commended for their better make-up and headlines, while the freshmen contribution to citizenship and features were good.

Ermine Waddill was editor of the sophomore issue and Elizabeth Imbody was business manager.

This contest is sponsored each year by the BLUES, regularly published by the junior class.

Frances Hunter, vice-president of the local chapter of the League of Evangelical Students, was elected secretary of the national organization at a convention held at John Brown University in Siloam Springs, Arkansas, February 17, through February 19.

Frances was sent as a delegate to the convention from Queens-Chicora. She left here on Wednesday before the convention and returned Saturday, February 25. Frances will meet with other members of the executive council at a meeting in Philadelphia in June. Plans for next year's convention will be discussed at that time.

There are now fifty-two chapters in the league which is strictly for college, seminaries, and universities. Four new chapters were installed at the convention. The league was founded by Dr. J. Gresham Machen and is around fifteen years old. This was the fourteenth national convention.
