

The Question Box

The honor system is one of the most prized phases of any college's student government. It was decided, therefore, to see what Queens' students think of the system on our campus. Their replies are printed below:

- Doris Pons "I think it works very effectively and puts the responsibility on each individual."
- Caroline Collins "I think it accomplishes very well the purpose for which it was intended and is an essential part of Queens."
- Dot MacLeod "I believe the honor system is the most dominant factor on the campus. It is something that each individual respects and holds dear. I don't believe there is anyone who deliberately violates any point of the honor code, for each feels her responsibility in upholding the system which Queens treasures above all others."
- Mildred Butler "I think the honor system is just one of the many wonderful things on Queens' campus that goes into the making of mature, Christian women."
- Rebecca Scholl "The honor system at Queens is an understanding and a spirit of agreement of standards bringing together not only the students, but making for a better student-faculty relationship."
- Louise White "I think the honor system at Queens works almost perfectly. If a person is not accustomed to this system when she first comes to Queens, by the time she has completed a semester's work, she realizes the value of our honor system, both to herself and to others—a value which will develop and integrate all parts of her life."
- Wanda Oxner "I think the honor system is one of the best policies that any school could have. Here at Queens the honor system proves that Christian citizenship is at work on our campus."
- Dot Wilson "The honor system on Queens' campus is one of the greatest factors in building Christian womanhood. It helps to give each student a sense of responsibility, and it is one of the dominant traits which makes Queens an outstanding college."
- Jacquie Otey "The effectiveness of the Honor System on Queens' campus is proved by the fact that the students uphold it."

WITH THE GREEKS

Alpha Delta Pi

The Alpha Delta Pi's held their alumnae tea this past week. It was quite a success and enjoyed by all who attended. The Alpha Delta Pi's extend their congratulations to all their members who recently made Dean's List.

Alpha Gamma Delta

"When Alpha Gams gather there's sure to be fun," even when it's "Spring house cleaning" time with mops and brooms and buckets. The Alpha Gam house fairly shines inside and out, with its new coat of paint, clean curtains, and every corner scrubbed. The Alpha Gams wish to congratulate Betty Sue Wright for making Dean's List.

Chi Omega

The Chi Omegas congratulate their three members who made the Dean's List—Betty Jean Byerly, Mary Anna Hamilton, and Jane Boyd Humphries. For the first time we are having a candlelight banquet on March second given by the actives to the initiates-to-be. After initiation on March seventeenth, the initiation banquet will be held at Rozzelle's Ferry. The initiates-to-be are Patsy Black, Katie Chapman, Cornelia Dick, Joan Farabow, Bunny Fowler, Kitty Gallant, Betty Lipe, Betty Mauldin, Eugenia McCrae, Betty Jean McCutcheon, Kitty Moore, Jean Moorefield, Pats

Powell, Barbara Tillson, and Mary Waters.

Phi Mu

The Phi Mu alumnae chapter of Charlotte sponsored a very successful benefit bridge party Thursday night. Everyone was invited to play bridge or canasta and try their luck at the grand prizes. Among the lucky ones were Emily Kimrey, who won a lovely blouse; Murphy Alexander, who won a beautiful sterling silver cigarette box; Pete Peterson won some sachet, and Jay Hall won a free bath for her dog—too bad she doesn't have a dog. Lois Strong even won a jar of delicious pickles which she plans to put away for her and Floyd. The profits of this benefit are going to the pediatric ward of the Good Samaritan Hospital and to our local Queens Chapter.

The chapter is also making plans for Phi Mu Founders Day on March 4th. The ninety-ninth birthday of Phi Mu is going to be celebrated by a party, and all alums have been invited.

Kappa Delta

The Kappa Delta's extend their congratulations to Roberta Jones who gave a brilliant performance on February twenty-third when she, Jane Tipton, and Suzanne Scheer presented a recital in Ninness Auditorium. Following the recital there was a reception held at the Kappa Delta house for the family and friends of Roberta Jones.

CAMPUS . . .

. . . CHOICE

"Did you hear about the little girl who fell down a well and they've been working days to get her out? Isn't it just awful?" The foregoing remark is accompanied by a large tear trickling down the cheek of a lovely girl with dark hair and eyes. Always soft-hearted, that's Betty Lynn. Many a time in the days of window seats, the one in No. 8 North was seen hanging outside the window to dry. This was due to the buckets of tears shed over a dog that was lost or some other tragic article in the newspaper.

A tender heart is not her only virtue for she is simply blessed with the appearance that qualifies her to be May Queen. Of course, she has always been a queen to Roy, her husband. Betty Lynn changed Davenport to Horn this past summer and has been living happily ever after at an apartment (mighty cute one) here in town.

Her record at Queens has been an athletic one, getting on R. A. Council her freshman year. I would say something about her dating life during her freshman year but—let us say it was more than adequate. Every year she climbed up in R. A. until her junior year when she became the vice president. Her athletics now are more or less narrowed down to flipping pancakes for Roy's breakfast.

This year she's in the midst of practice teaching. What do you bet her children are crazy about her? Next year, she'll be teaching in Texas while Roy is going through ministerial school.

Lovely, understanding, sincere, and a mighty good friend to have—that's Betty Lynn. Anyone who saw her walking down the aisle last August the 19th will be looking forward to seeing her walk down again in the May Day Dell. Yes, Betty is certainly a true Campus Choice.

Betty Pratt

It's here again—basketball season!!! Already practices for the tournament have begun. Judging from the way girls have been practicing, it should be quite a tournament, as you all know, to be eligible to play you must have six practices. The games will be played between dormitories, sororities, and classes—so get your practices in and be all set for the first game on March the ninth. And remember if you don't play, it's load of fun to watch.

I wonder what new sport the physical education department will present next year. Last year it was horseback riding, and this year it is bowling—yes, bowling—in case you haven't heard there is now a physical education class dedicated entirely to bowling. Now is a good time to learn the latest thing about it and be a "whiz" when you go home next summer.

By the way, have you read the Rec-Re-Ator. If you haven't, it's high time you got a copy. It has the up-to-the-minute news about the basketball tournament and ALSO A RECIPE FOR SLIM FIGURES!

Why . . .

Someone recently asked, "Why do we have a Religious Emphasis Week?"

Religious Emphasis Week is a time here at Queens when students, faculty, and staff have the opportunity for a spiritual experience. It is a time when the speaker gives a message that quickens the thoughts and hearts of the hearers.

It is three days set aside to have our hearts, minds, and lives rededicated to the task of bringing the Kingdom of God here on earth. To all those who willingly search their hearts for the True Way, to all those who worship God with humble hearts, to all those who forget self and who seek to serve others for the Master, Religious Emphasis Week services offer an inward strength, an exultant radiance, a sense of well-being, an outgoing love, and an ineffable peace which nothing in this world can take away.

We can prepare ourselves for Religious Emphasis Week in various ways. The Chapel is open each night after dinner with quiet organ music for a period of meditation and prayer. In private devotions we can open our hearts to hear the voice of God.

Through our relationships with others we can invite them to attend services with us. These are only a few of the numerous methods that we can find at our finger tips to prepare ourselves spiritually, mentally, and physically for our Religious Services.

Elections . . .

It is only a few weeks before we will be confronted with elections on Queens campus. Election time is one of the most important dates on our Calendar of Events. It is a time when we choose those students who are to be our campus leaders for the coming school year, those students who are to represent Queens as a student body, those students whose responsibilities lie in upholding the ideals of the College, those students whose interests are for their classmates and not for themselves, those students who are best qualified for their job. If we consider all of these factors, our decision in choosing the most qualified person for each office cannot be made in a few minutes. It takes time and consideration. Many of us are guilty of waiting until the day arrives to vote for new officers before we give it a thought as to the most qualified person to fill each office. Queens has a democratic system of electing officers. Each of us is given an opportunity to contribute a straw ballot; and if the nominating committee does not nominate our candidate, it is our privilege to nominate her from the floor. We should begin now with an open mind and consider all prospective candidates for each office; so when the time comes for making final decisions, we will be prepared. This is a time for college loyalty; and a time when prejudices, personal obligations, and sorority ties have no part. We should remember that it is not only the duty of each student to use her privilege of voting but also her duty to use it to the advantage of her college.
