Tricks In Safety Show

"Don't Bet Your Life" is the of Clyde R. Powell's exciting demonstration in which he presents the tried and tested principles of safety in a completely fresh and dramatic way.

This show will be sponsored by the Eastern Carolina Safety Council, in the Braswell School Auditorium, in Rocky Mount, Thursday, December 2, at 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Powell, who is Public Relations Director of the Endicott Johnson Corporation, and Lehigh Safety Shoe Company, drives home the simple rule of safety with astonishing feats of magic. He materializes an endless flow of coins out of thin air-shears a rope to bits, and whips it whole again-links visibly solid rings together-with humor.

Mr. Powell has for many years studied crooked gamblers tricks. He defies his audience to detect his nimble fingers in dealing from the bottom of the deck, colddecking, second deal and other sharper's tricks. He shows how foolish it is to "bet the other fellows game"-and how much more foolish the man who bets his life on an unsafe act for only a few seconds of time.

Mr. Powell is a master hypnotist and will, if desired, give a demonstration.

This is a professional show that entertains as well as drives home the importance of safety. The Safety Council has tried to schedule it for a number of years. Don't miss it!
