A STEP FURTHER

A sound business man commented the other day after giving fine endorsement of Governor Gardner's Live at Home program:

"It seems to me that the idea should be developed a step further—our people should be taught to buy at home, too."

This phase of the matter needs close attention. Since the dawn of time, distant fields have seemed greener, but many have returned, well spent and disillusioned, to the better opportunities near home. Yet the lure of travel, the promise of a bargain miles away, will cause a commotion in feminine, and masculine ranks too, far out of all proportion to the facts.

All of us have seen an 'economy cry' trip to save 15 cents, cost $15.00.

Local merchants deserve support and when they fail to provide what the discriminating wish, then the local merchants have no right to complain, but it does grind into the feelings of many and deeply into their success as community enterprises when folks speed away to look elsewhere for the identical articles which may be bought for the same price, and many times, lower, right in the local communities. The shopper's time is not so valuable that a trip of inspection cannot be made at home.

Live at home, yes—produce as much food and feed as needed for the farm and have some to sell in the town. Take it a step further—buy at home whenever quality may be matched.

FIGHT FIRE

An erroneous impression which was growing through the boll weevil area that forest fires destroyed the pests is happily corrected in interviews with farm agents and forestry workers. Hate for the weevil being so intense, there was danger that some might adopt a hasty policy of burning a house in order to kill a rat.

The weevil played havoc with us down in the East and all proper means to fight the pests are encouraged, but let us not destroy valuable timber, a potential source of revenue, in an erroneous policy of burning over the young timbered land. We can not be too careful with fire in our homes—that truth should be carried afield, too.

In Memoriam

IRENE VINCENT SHEARON
 In sad but loving memory of my daughter, Irene Vincent Shearon, who departed this life one year ago today, February 19, 1929.

Dearest one gone to heaven,
 How we miss your smiling face,
 But you left us to remember
 None on earth can take your place.

God works in ways we cannot understand now, but being truly born again in Christ as she was, we shall certainly know why some day she has gone home to God where suffering is unknown; and our highest hope is to meet her there when our call has come.

FATHER AND MOTHER, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

W. D. SMITH
 In sad but loving remembrance of my dear father, W. D. Smith, who passed away three years ago, Feb. 19, 1927.

Three sad, long years have passed away,
 But my heart is just the same;
 For many a tear has fallen, dear Father,
 At the mention of your name.

Like our loving Saviour,
 You were faithful to the end;
 So in my great loss and sorrow,
 To His will I humbly bow.
 His daughter,
OLIVIA SMITH ANTHONY.

A Storehouse of History

ORGANIZED 100 years ago in Petersburg, Virginia, a city rich in historic interest and destined to play a deciding part in events of future years, the Petersburg Railroad was the worthy pioneer of that notable group of railroads, serving the famed coastal plains of the Southeast, that were brought together to form the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company.

No part of America has more of historic interest than the sections served by the Coast Line. Here is a land that "fairly reeks with history."

Gentlemen of France, Grandees of Spain; Lords and adventurers of Merrie England; pirates and buccaneers; Indian fighters, baronial planters, noted statesmen; the persistent, will-o'-the-wisp forces of Sumter and Marion; the ragged, hungry, undaunted armies of the Confederacy. All these have lived and loved and fought and died and left their imprint here.

In this section the first English colonies in America were started; France and Spain made futile bids for this great empire.

Here are cities and towns that date back to the dawn of our country's history. Many have known the hardships of occupation by hostile armies. Hardly a back-roads hamlet but has witnessed stirring and important events, or has sent its sons to play leading parts in the affairs of their times.

Here the tyranny of George the Third first met with outspoken and organized resistance. Here scores of bloody battles have been fought. These shores have been pillaged by Blackbeard and Gasparilla and other pirates of their day. Into these ports swift blockade runners came, daring the fire of Union fleets, to bring food and munitions to Lee's tattered forces.

Richmond, Norfolk, Petersburg, Newbern, Wilmington, Fayetteville, Augusta, Columbia, Charleston, Savannah, Brunswick, Montgomery, St. Augustine, Tampa, Bradenton. Each name brings up pictures of the stirring events that all of these have seen. And there are scores of other places where much history has been made.

Not the least important event of an eventful century has been the welding of more than 100 railroads into the Atlantic Coast Line System, serving the six southeastern states and making a reality of that "Great Highway of the Union" which the founders of the Petersburg Railroad envisaged one hundred years ago.
