

STATE COLLEGE ANS. TIMELY FARM QUES.

QUESTION -- How can I save on feeding baby chicks?

ANSWER -- Use all the green feed possible to save on mash and grain, suggests C. F. Parrish, Extension poultry specialist at State College. Careful feeding practices can save you 10 pounds of feed per bag. Feed plenty of good mash. A supply of grit helps to save feed. Providing a supply of fresh water is an essential practice. When a chick gets sick, separate it from the flock at once and find out what is wrong from a reliable source. Start proper control measures and be sure to follow through on the program.

QUESTION -- What is the best control for earworms in garden corn?

ANSWER -- The best direct control is the use of a white oil such as is used for medicinal purposes, says Dr. B. B. Fulton, associate in entomology at the Experiment Station at State College. The oil is poured on or injected into the bundle of silks at the tip of the husk, just after the silks wilt and start to turn brown at the tips. The best dosage is one fifth of a teaspoonful. About 24 drops is the right amount and a little practice will enable an operator to guess at the amount to be used.

QUESTION -- Should cattle be fed to a real good finish?

ANSWER -- The fattening of cattle to excessive finish, as was common a few years ago, is a wasteful and unpatriotic practice under present conditions, says Dr. J. E. Foster, in charge of beef cattle research for the Experiment Station at State College. He points out that gains during the latter part of such a feeding period are slow and expensive, and that most of the fat so produced is not consumed by humans. "To produce more meat is not enough. The aim should be to produce more meat more efficiently and from less foods that are suitable for human consumption," says Dr.

SORGO

A new sorgo cane from Ethiopia may have possibilities for sugar production, say USDA officials. It will be tested in the Southern States and in the Canal Zone.

WHEAT

The U. S. wheat crop shows progressive improvement, with no material winter killing anywhere, say reports. Heavy snows have blanketed much of the Western belt.

POTATOES

The largest supply of seed Irish potatoes in history has been available to farmers this spring. Certified seed potatoes jumped from 20 1-2 to 29 million bushels.

SOIL

Soil conservation is being emphasized in the new year, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

THOUSANDS OF ARMY VEHICLES USE SINCLAIR LUBRICANTS

In saving wear and avoiding breakdown the U. S. Army uses Sinclair lubricants in many "Jeeps", tanks and other vehicles. Your Sinclair Dealer has the same quality lubricants to reduce wear in your car.

To save engine wear he has Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil. Opaline stands up better and lasts longer because it is not only de-waxed but also de-jellied. Play safe, have your Sinclair Dealer drain and refill your crankcase with Opaline every 1,000 miles.
