THANKSGIVING, 1946

Thanksgiving is here again. There could be no better time to express to you our friendship and good will. We, who have the responsibility of managing this business, are aided in meeting that responsibility by your loyal effort.

We welcome this opportunity to tell you so—to send to you this Thanksgiving our thanks for all you have done to make this business successful.

In speaking of making this business successful we are using the word in its broadest sense.

For while a business must show a profit to continue and endure, there is much more to it than that.

We want this business to be successful in being, and continuing to be, a good place to work.

Successful in having, and keeping, good feeling and trust between all of us who are in this organization.

Successful in giving full value and service to our customers—those who buy from us and whose continued goodwill makes it possible for this to be a going institution where we can all earn a livelihood.

We want this business to be successful in holding the respect, not only of customers, but of the people of this community as well as the people who work here.

Our own pride in this organization will be greater as you take pride with us in being part of this organization. We want you to share in the satisfaction of knowing that we, all of us together, are doing a work which contributes to

Christmas Party

Plans have been completed for our annual Christmas party, which will be held Friday, December 20, at 2:30 o'clock. We encourage everyone to attend and enter into a period of good fellowship and fun.

Because of the December holiday, the next edition of "The Messenger" will not come out until the end of January.

Community Radio Council Gets Underway

The Community Radio Council has at least become a reality after many months of planning and organizing. The primary purpose of the council is to interpret the community to the community and enable people of High Point to participate in their own programs. It further has as its purpose the related one of developing listener interest in educational radio generally.

The council plans to write and produce shows for all of the High Point social agencies. It will be able to co-operate with the hospital by a series of broadcasts arousing interest in the community's need for better hospitalization. Planned also are transcribed broadcasts for use in all local elementary schools, and a Junior Town meeting of the air which will use students from the Junior, Senior and William Penn High Schools. Eventually High Point hopes to put a radio in each school room—but until that time, the Community Radio programs will be heard over your home radio. A program for grammar school children has already been started and these programs can be heard over W. M. F. R. every Monday night from 8:15 to 8:30.

An important feature of the Community Radio Council is that every one in High Point is priv-
