TO THE SPECTATORS

Are you proud of your team? Yeah, Man! That's the reply you will hear from our cheering section. Here are a few hints from your cheerleaders to help you show that you're really proud. What makes a good cheering section? A group of high school students willing to do their share of cheering at the games. Ask yourself these questions to see if you are doing your part. Have I done my share of cheering? Have I tried to help the cheerleaders in cheering. or did I just wait till they were through with their cheer and start one by myself? The cheerleaders are glad to see the students full of pep and doing chants and we always join in. But when we start our cheers, please help us out. It's the yells everybody joins in that carry encouragement to the ears of the players and show the opposing fans our school spirit. Just before the game, our band, or another band from the school we are playing, plays "The Star Spangled Banner". While this great song is playing we know we should be silent, but at our last few games some of us have forgotten and kept right on talking. Let's show the proper respect for our National Anthem.

Confetti is all right to throw up in the air when our boys are marching on to victory; but when the confetti gets to be the size of paper cups, chewed gum, etc., it's just awful.

Those of us who have young brothers and sisters in grammar school can coax them to stay in the bleachers. It's hard to try to cheer with about twenty youngsters right on your heels.

These are our suggestions to the fans. Let us make our cheering section and conduct this year the best ever. We can and I know we will.
