

Moscow Circus Comes to Civic Center Nov. 18

The 2004 Moscow Circus is coming to the Statesville Civic Center, Thursday, Nov. 18, for two shows for both children and adults. The show has performers from around the world such as clowns, jugglers, acrobats, aerial ballerinas and comedy routines.

The only animals in the ring are of the human variety. The "fast paced, high-energy circus of the future" is called a cross between Cirque du Soleil and the traditional Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The show is highlighted by the mother-daughter team of Riatta and Lyric Wallenda, the granddaughter and great-granddaughter of high-wire legend Karl Wallenda. "It's going to be great," said Lee Cauble, Statesville Civic Center director. "There will be something for everyone; and because it's a very upscale show, we expect an excellent crowd."

Tickets are $20 for adults and $7.50 for children under 12. For information on where free tickets for children are available, call the Civic Center at 704-878-3493 or check the web site www.moscow-circusstars.com. Shows are at 4:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.
