

Kings Mountain Puts Accent on Religion Classes

Through the magic of modern teaching aids, children at Christ the King Church, Kings Mountain, learn without the boredom of humdrum old fashioned methods. Modern teaching aids add interest to subject matter and enthusiasm on the part of the child. They cultivate the mind and stimulate the soul. Visual teaching is quite expensive, but the profits reaped are far more rewarding than the money spent.

Above is a photo of Father Keenan's Saturday morning religion class in the process of watching a film at Christ the King Church in Kings Mountain. The film is one of the St. John's Film strip series.

The Sisters, the Mary Missioners and the parishioners all join in the work of conducting the religion classes. After the instructions on Saturday mornings the children attend Mass and have the opportunity to make their confessions.

During the past year the congregation in Cherryville, which is served by priests at the Kings Mountain Apostolate Center, was able to erect a small, but handsome church. The new building is comprised of a main hall for worship, a room for teaching, and a small apartment for the priest. It is dedicated to the Immaculate Heart of Mary.
